Woman's Club

Mrs. Leon Keith's home on Route 2 was the place of the Vass Woman's Club's April meeting Friday night when Mrs. Keith, Mrs. A. D. McLaughlin and Mrs. C. R. Pope, all of upper Hoke County, were hostesses to the group.

After a short business session, Mrs. P. A. Wilson presented the Rev. A. C. Trivette, pastor of the Vass Presbyterian Church, who gave an interesting and challenging talk on "Christian Citizenship." He based most of his talk on "The Bishop of Heard County," a Methodist minister in Georgia, whose life was a shining example of real Christian citizenship.

Plans were made for serving dinner at a district meeting of the Junior Order to be held at the Vass community house on the following Monday night.

Reports of welfare work done by the club were made, and the club authorized the sending of a letter to Rep. H. Clifton Blue in regard to proposed legislation.

Mrs. R. G. Rosser was welcomed as a new member, and Mrs. L. W. Hutchinson as a guest.

During the social hour the hostesses served delicious homemade cake made by Mrs. Pope, who was deluged with requests for the recipe, a drink, and Easter candy.

Supper Meeting

The Methodist Youth Fellowship will hold its monthly evening meeting Sunday, preceded by a covered dish supper in the fellowship hall at 6:30 o'clock. A worship service will be held, followed by a song fest.

Doing Their Bit

Some families turn their attention to beautifying towns and communities; others limit their activities to their homes. The children of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Blue are channeling their efforts toward improving the appearance of the citizens.

Their oldest daughter, Mrs. R. A. Edwards (Mary Catherine), has a beauty parlor here. She is president of the recently organized Moore County unit of the North Carolina Cosmetologists and Hairdressers Guild, and last week attended a board meeting in Wilson.

George R., the eldest son, who was recently married to Miss Pat Barber Shop here soon after completing a barber course two or three years ago.

Last Friday, Billy, son number two, got his sheepskin (or was it a razor strop) at the Durham School of Barbering, and after a weekend at home left Wednesday for Greensboro to work.

There are two more young Blues. Friends will be waiting to see what course of action they'll take.

Beta Club Convention

Twenty members of the Vass-Lakeview Beta Club chapter in four cars driven by Donald Bridgers, Jimmy Key, P. T. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Gladstone, set out early last Friday morning for Asheville to attend the annual Beta Club Convention, going by way of Chimney Rock.

Highlights of the convention, aside from business, were a talent contest Friday night in which members of the local group presented a Gypsy number, and a banquet and ball Saturday night. The group got an early start home Sunday morning and stopped on top of Craggy Mountain, where they held a Sunday School session.

Beta Club members in the group were: Johnsyne Cameron, Bonnie Sue Johnson, Elise McWilliams, Felicia Hutchinson, Joan Baldwin, Jimmy Key, Danny Cameron, James Cameron, Bruce Jackson, Polly Key, Estelle McIntosh.

Also Reba Willard, Doreene Keith, Myrna McRae, Joanne McRae, Linda Nicks, Janice Cameron, Henry Matthews, John Starling, and Jerry Smith.

Senior Superlatives

Vass-Lakeview High School seniors have chosen their superlatives, and the coveted honor of being named best-all-around went to Brent Hall and Johnsyne Cameron. Bobby Apple and Janice Jackson were voted the most popular, Larry Taylor and Vonnice Mae Frye the most courteous, and those with the best personality were John Alex Chavis and Peggy Patterson.

Other superlatives were: best sports, Brent Hall and Janice Jackson; most athletic, Bobby Apple and Janice Jackson; most likely to succeed, Jimmy Key and Elise McWilliams; cutest, James Howell and Johnsyne Cameron; friendliest, Sherman Gibbons and Felicia Hutchinson; best looking, James Howell and Elise McWilliams; quietest, Sherman Gibbons and Peggy Patterson; most talkative, Arnold Wooten and Elise McWilliams; biggest flirts, Douglas Johnson and Joan Baldwin; most happy-go-lucky, Roger Marion and Bonnie Sue Jackson;

Also, neatest, Billy Ray Thomas and Vonnice Mae Frye; having the most school spirit, Brent Hall and Felicia Hutchinson; most fun to be around, Louis Taylor and Bonnie Sue Johnson; biggest pests, Jimmy Key and Elise McWilliams; most mischievous, James Howell and Barbara Griffin; best dressed, Douglas Johnson and Johnsyne Cameron; and, finally, the most bashful, Louis Taylor and Peggy Patterson.

Class mascots are Barbara Sawyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Sawyer, and Stewart McFayden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dougald McFayden.
