SUNRISE

A magnificent six-star action picture filmed in the most thrilling color process ever brought to the screen will show at the Sunrise Theatre Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, with the presentation of Universal-International's "Night Passage," which has James Stewart and Audie Murphy heading its six-star cast.

The film is truly the most exciting package offered outdoor fans in a decade, since it combines the talents of two topflight action heroes with a unique story screened in Technirama, the new wide screen process, never before used in a movie, which has more clarity and warmth of color than any process to date.

Colorado is the background of this payroll robbery thriller with Stewart and Murphy in the most two-fisted portrayals of their fabulous picture careers. Murphy becomes a villain in this one for the first time and Stewart is a hero, but both play in a relationship which remains a secret until the audience finds it out toward the middle of the story.

Never has U-I assembled such a perfect big name cast for an outdoor film as for this exceptionally suspenseful robber-kill yarn written by Borden Chase. Chief of the gang to which Murphy belongs is Dan Duryea, whose smile has more venom than a snake's fangs. An outstanding performance is given by young Brandon deWilde, the boy who was so good in "Shane." In this film he's an unwilling member of the robber gang.

On the distaff side, Dianne Foster, as Charlie, the waitress, who loves Murphy in vain only to find that Stewart is her man, turns in a finely shaded characterization.

Elaine Stewart, as the wife of railroad mogul Jay C. Flippen, has a come-hither look for both Stewart and Murphy which establishes her as one of the screen's most alluring glamour girls.

Efficient planning is the key to successful farming. Cool damp weather often brings on plant diseases.
