

Mr. Copeland Speaks HD Clubs At Achievement Program Awards Given

"Try giving yourself away," due. Mr. O. B. Copeland, extension editor of State College, to the Moore County Federation of home demonstration clubs at their annual meeting in the Court House Tuesday night. He gave the members six ways to give themselves away and in return reap rich benefits themselves.

The first way was to be tolerant. In this day of so many things to do, we fail to show kindness and appreciation of other people and their differences, he said. Second, we should obey our impulses to do good deeds when we have them. We put off these until in most cases, it is too late. Third: Patience is like bread cast upon water, it comes back to us. Fourth: Appreciation in depth. This means more than the ordinary. Fifth: Practice giving yourself in citizenship. Everyone should take an active part in some activity such as the can-ty program and many others. Sixth: give credit where credit is

Mr. Copeland stated that he used Dunn's book "Giving Yourself" as a basis for his discussion.

The home demonstration clubs won the club award for the best club program for the year: First, Jackson Springs; second, Stanton Hill; third, Creek; fourth, Eastwood.

The awards given by the Carolina B. Sixteen of the 21 clubs submitted their records for the award consideration. The club secretaries determined the winning club.

Mrs. K. W. Hare, vice-president of the county council, presented the award to Mrs. Fred Fry, president of the Lakeview Club. Mrs. Hare, vice-president of the county council, presented the award to Mrs. Fred Fry, president of the Lakeview Club.

Miss Flora M. installed the 1958-59 county club officers.

Mrs. Fred Fry, president of the Lakeview Club, and Mrs. Thomas Springfield, club secretary, were also present.

Winners In Popularity Contest Are Crowned At Vass-Lakeview Carnival

Highlighting the Halloween Carnival at Vass-Lakeview School last Thursday night was the crowning of the winners in the popularity contest. Charles Fowler and Mary Lynn Oldham were crowned King and Queen of the high school.

From the seventh and eighth grades, Joe Priest and Sara Von Metzger were made Prince and Princess. Successful from fourth through sixth grades were Betty Ann Key and Jimmy Council, and from the primary grades, Janice Boroughs and James Jessup.

In the costume parade, winners were: cutest, Beverly Marks; most original, James Laubscher, who appeared as a Phillips 66 gasoline tank; scariest, Kay Curtis; best Halloween costume, Sandra Von Metzger true-to-life witch.

Baby contest winners were the senior mascots, Billie Beth and Tony Patnode.

Mrs. Charles Von Meer was the winner of a turkey.

All of the foregoing events followed a peppy stage show which opened the evening's program.

Cake walks and numerous booths did a good business during the evening, with the economics department, where sandwiches, hot dogs, deserts, coffee and cold drinks were sold, having at times the crowded appearance of a fair midway.

Final figures on the program are not yet available, but a rough estimate was between three and four hundred dollars, which will benefit the school.

A Newspaper's A Citizen

A NEWSPAPER CANNOT BE A GOOD PAPER unless it works for a good community. Some of the wisest men, down through the years, add to that in saying: a community can't be a good community unless it has a good paper.

THE PILOT AND THE SANDHILLS, that's the picture, and the home town? . . . well, your home town's just something special, always. There's no doubt that Southern Pines is a good home town to have and The Pilot is the first one to believe so and to say so.

THAT MEANS: PRAISING THE GOOD; watching out for the not-so-good; and telling about it, too, so it won't be overlooked and can be made better. In other words, the newspaper's a citizen, first and foremost, with all the duties and the privileges that involves.

Tommy Byrne, New York Yankee Ace, Is Speaker At Catholic Men's Club

Tommy Byrne, ace left-handed pitcher for the New York Yankees, told members of St. Anthony's Church Men's Club here last Friday night that the Yankee organization developed its greatness through the years "from the depth of talent, something the Yankees are usually loaded with."

Byrne, brought here by Father Francis McCarthy, pastor of St. Anthony's, told the club: "There is always some player coming up the ladder to stardom as another player is descending, and there is always the spirit of helping each other."

He reviewed the recent world series in which the Yankees were defeated by the Milwaukee Braves, of whom he said: "It is amazing to see in a city of some 750,000 population a total attendance of more than two million. It was, to me, the inspiration of the fans that gave the players the motivation to rise to the heights of a championship team."

Louis Scheipers, Jr., town manager, and Earl Hubbard, president of the Chamber of Commerce, welcomed Byrne to the town. Larry Gelshehn, president of the club, also spoke and welcomed the guests.

Tony Borelli of Raeford was program chairman.

A new highway sign, which will be placed on US Highway 1, was displayed. The sign will point out the location of St. Anthony's Church.

Priests in attendance at the meeting were, in addition to Father McCarthy, Father John A. Brown of Pinehurst, Father Thomas J. Colgan of St. Joseph's Hospital; Father James White of Sanford, and Father Edward Byrne of Scranton, Pa.

Preliminary Plans For New Building To House Agricultural Agencies Is Presented To County Commissioners

Construction of a building that will house the county's various agricultural agencies and a new library came a step closer to reality this week when Southern Pines architect Tom Hayes presented the Board of County Commissioners preliminary plans for the structure.

The plans call for a building of some 17,000 square feet on two levels. Federal offices and most of the county's agricultural agencies will be located on one floor. On the other floor it is planned to construct an auditorium, a library, and offices for the Negro Home Demonstration workers. Total cost of the building would approach $200,000, if the present plans are used.

The building would be located just across from the medical center in Carthage. Hayes said that four different versions had been studied and that the plans he submitted this week encompassed "all that the agricultural agencies thought necessary. It is a sound structure and designed to serve the needs of the county for at least 25 years and probably longer."

Commissioner John Currie has been working with the agricultural officials in determining the requirements for the building and told the Board Monday that the plans had the approval of everyone who had been active in the planning.

No official action was taken accepting the plans but the commissioners voted to authorize boring into the site to determine the depth for the foundation.

Hayes said that the work would probably be completed in two weeks and that his office would continue working on the plans.

The Board has been requested a number of times in recent years to provide facilities for all the agricultural agencies to be housed under one roof and in a convenient location. Most of the agencies are now in the courthouse and have complained of the cramped quarters.

The proposed building would have a library which would replace the county's facilities now provided in the Southern Pines library.

The auditorium, Hayes pointed out, would seat 350 people, and could be used for many functions of farm people.

After the program in the auditorium, members will visit school rooms, all of which will be open, with special displays in many rooms, in connection with the American Education Week observance. Refreshments will be served in the cafeteria.

While many parents are expected to look over school facilities Monday night, all parents and other interested persons are invited to visit any school room Monday through Friday of next week, as part of Education Week activities, as outlined in another story in today's Pilot.

Mrs. L. A. Woodell, PTA president, has called a meeting of the executive board, consisting of all officers and committee chairmen, for tonight (Thursday) at 8 p. m. in the elementary school library.

In September, the PTA voted to meet on the second Monday night of each month, throughout this school year. This is a change in meeting time from previous years.

All parents are urged to attend. A prize is given to the school room which has the largest proportion of pupils' parents at each PTA meeting.

REFUSE CAN

In the Sandhills, where the tourist industry is vital, and where special emphasis is placed on beauty to attract visitors, there should be unusual effort to maintain this beauty and charm, Gilmore said. Unsightly refuse not only creates an eyesore but detracts from vital tourist income.

In his address Gilmore went on to other ways the tourist business can be increased in the Sandhills as elsewhere. He said the Travel Council in cooperation with the State Highway Commission is studying what types of signs can best be displayed along the highways to "slow down" motorists passing through the State by calling attention to Tar Heel attractions. The signs must be attractive in themselves—not a "roadside blight." He asked that any suggestions for such signs along the Southern Pines Parkway be forwarded to him.

Mrs. Marie Smithson, president of the club, conducted the meeting held in the auditorium of St. Anthony's school, and presented the speaker. In a business session plans were discussed for the Charity Ball to be held December 3 at the Armory. Following the meeting, coffee and cakes were served.

PTA Meeting Set Monday; Students To Hold Program

Marking the 37th annual observance of American Education Week, the East Southern Pines Parent-Teacher Association will hear students explain the function and purpose of various school organizations, at the regular meeting of the Association Monday night, November 11.

The meeting will begin at 8 p. m. in Weaver Auditorium. "Do You Know Your School?" is the topic.

After the program in the auditorium, members will visit school rooms, all of which will be open, with special displays in many rooms, in connection with the American Education Week observance. Refreshments will be served in the cafeteria.

Newtons Win Both Car And TV Set In Food Store Contest

Roy Newton, Southern Pines building contractor, will tell you it pays to fill out those contest blanks at grocery stores.

When the A&P stores in this area—there were 13 of them in 11 towns—advertised recently that they would give away 13 television sets, it was good news for shoppers. When the company announced that a new automobile would also be given away, the news was even better.

Newton and his wife filled out the contest tickets.

They won the TV set given away in the Southern Pines store and then, in a one in a million chance, saw their ticket also drawn for the automobile.

TV winners in other towns in the county were Ernest Haywood in Carthage, and Mrs. Irene Loftin of Troy in the Pinehurst store.

PINEHURST FORUM

Forum members and others are receiving letters this week announcing the schedule and inviting their annual contributions toward continuing the entertainment offered during each season at the Pinehurst Country Club. The letters, over the signature of President Cutler, list the various types of membership, as follows:

Patrons—Couples contributing $50, or for single patron members, $25.

Sustaining—Couples, contributing $30, or $15 single membership.

Annual—Couples contributing $20, or $10 for singles contributors.

Seasonal—Couples contributing any amount up to $10, or any amount up to $5 for individuals. Writes Gen. Cutler: "While all contributions to this classification will be welcome, it is designed primarily so that transient visitors who enjoy the Forum programs can become contributor members. It is hoped that all residents and winter residents will select one of the other classifications."

General Cutler urges members to cooperate in interesting non-members to join the Forum, with special emphasis on new residents of the area. Suggested names and addresses may be mailed to the chairman of the membership committee, Mrs. Donald D. Cooke, P. O. Box 350, Pinehurst.

The Country Club plans to continue its buffet dinners prior to each Forum program.
