

$200,000 Libel Suit Is Filed Against Pilot

A $200,000 libel suit was filed in Middle District Federal Court at Greensboro Tuesday against The Pilot.

Filed by F. Edwina Hallman of Washington, the suit alleges that an article published in The Pilot last September held her "up to public scorn" and was "for the most part untrue, false and defamatory."

Miss Hallman refers to statements in the article where were attributed to Mrs. Valerie Nicholson. The statements concerned the continuance of trial of a Superior Court suit which Mrs. Nicholson filed.

Parties to the Superior Court suit are Miss Hallman, Vincent J. Daly and Martha D. Underwood, all of Washington, who earlier filed a federal court suit against Mrs. Nicholson for damages totaling $100,000.

Miss Hallman claimed in September she was not able to come to Carthage to stand trial because she had been beaten up by two men who had entered her apartment in Washington, D. C. The Pilot quoted Mrs. Nicholson at that time as saying this claim was a hoax and part of a continuing plot engaged in by Miss Hallman, Daly and Mrs. Underwood.

In the federal court suit, the trio alleged that Mrs. Nicholson had conspired to drive them "from their normal and legal enterprise" of operating the "Sandhills Institute of Social Adjustment" at Southern Pines.

Mrs. Nicholson filed a $150,000 counterclaim to the federal suit, alleging that Daly and the two women had conspired to drive her from her occupation as a newspaper reporter and to ruin her reputation.
