GEESSE ARE MODELS
Visitors can photograph "tame" Canada geese at close range at Gaddy's Goose Refuge near Ansonville (Highway 52). The big birds are actually wild creatures making their winter home at the Refuge, but grow so accustomed to human beings that they come up close to be fed or photographed. The Refuge is open to visitors through March, and some 10,000 to 12,000 Canada geese and many ducks are now wintering there.
