Around a hundred were absent from school last Friday, most of them ill, with others having to look after members of their families who were sick. Three of the teachers, Miss Dunn, Mrs. Blake and Mrs. Maurer, were among those kept at home for short periods, and Mrs. C. P. Inspector Notes Violations of Building Laws

Building permits are needed for all construction work in Southern Pines, Ralph Mills, building inspector, pointed out today.

He said there have been recent instances of construction crews from out of town putting up small houses in West Southern Pines without obtaining a permit, resulting in violations of the zoning or building code.

One house, he said, was placed too close to a property line. On another the chimney was not built to the required height.

Under local ordinances, the town has authority to have an improperly placed new house moved or altered to conform to building and zoning laws, Mr. Mills said.

Most of the violations, the inspector said, have been in connection with sale of small "shell" houses by out-of-town companies who bring in building materials and a crew of carpenters and quickly put up the foundations, walls and roof of a house, to be finished later by the purchaser.
