

THEATRES SUNRISE

What happens when a swarm of college students descend on Fort Lauderdale, Florida, on an Easter vacation in search of fun, relaxation — and romance— makes for entertainment combining love, laughs, music and drama in "Where the Boys Are," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film version, in CinemaScope and color, of Glendon Swarthout's best-selling novel.

The film will be shown Sunday and Monday at the Sunrise Theatre.

Much of the picture was filmed by Producer Joe Pasternak and Director Henry Levin on location on the magnificent ocean beach at Fort Lauderdale and in other play spots of the famed resort city, and it is against these backgrounds that the story traces the experiences of four girls in their quest to find the man of their dreams.

The picture's leading roles are played by a cast of fresh and talented screen faces, headed by Dolores Hart, George Hamilton, Yvette Mimieux, Jim Hutton, Barbara Nichols, Paula Prentiss and Frank Gorshin, with popular recording star, Connie Francis, in her film debut.

Increase In Use Of Services In 1960 Reported By St. Joseph's Hospital

An increase in use of its services during 1960 was reported by St. Joseph's Hospital this week.

Sister Virginia, hospital administrator, announced that fiscal 1960 had been "quite an active year."

In the 12-month period, 12,094 days of patient care were recorded. This, Sister Virginia explained, represents over 41 per cent of total occupancy. Average length of stay was 6.4 days per patient.

Births climbed to 269 from 257 in 1959. Four sets of twins were born in the 1960 period while 1959 saw just two sets.

Out-patient use of St. Joseph's facilities, it was noted, showed a marked increase. The "Doctor's office for the poor," the Tuesday-and-Thursday organized clinic service, marked a big 78 per cent jump in number of patients cared for. In 1960 it was 729; in 1959 it had been 409. This service, Sister Virginia pointed out, can be expected to expand even further in 1961.

The very active out-patient emergency service took care of 3,480 patients in 1960, an increase of 57 per cent.

Although a spread between operating expenses and income was acknowledged, a decrease in uncollectible accounts and charity allowances was reported. While reflecting this decrease, the correct figure still indicated that over 38 per cent of in-patient hospital bills ended up as charity allowances or uncollectible accounts. The 1959 figure had shown that slightly over 41 per cent of total charges had thus been written off.

The report also showed 1,002 radiographic examinations against 797 the previous year; 13,365 laboratory examinations compared with 11,788 the year before. Blood transfusions totaled 174 in 1960 and 124 in 1959.

USDA says supplies of vegetables for fresh market are likely to be a little smaller this winter than last. Potato supplies are up moderately from a year ago.
