PUBLIC SERVICE

The sale of Savings Bonds through this Payroll Savings Plan is an important public service. It fosters good citizenship. It helps Government spread the ownership of the public debt widely among the people. It helps to keep the dollar sound and the economy prospering and expanding. It is an important aid in our efforts to control inflation. Nationwide Bond savings build up a backlog of purchasing power which will help level off the cycle of "boom and bust."

UNUSUAL STILL— This illicit whiskey still was discovered by ABC officers deep in a swampy, heavily wooded location back from the Seaboard railroad, south of Addor. Arrested at the site Friday night was Mark Haith, 50, of Addor who was charged with its operation and made $500 bond in a hearing at Rockingham Saturday morning, for trial in the next term of Federal court.

Making the raid were C. A. McCallum, chief Moore County ABC officer, ABC Officer Edward Floyd and Federal Officer Rast of the Alcoholic Tax Unit.

Officer McCallum said he had never seen a still with this one's construction features. At extreme right of photo, at rear, is an old automobile gas tank containing kerosene that fed a row of six burners, apparently part of an old tobacco-curing unit, that heated the mash and water in the rectangular metal box above them. The steam ran through the keg and box on top, into a large copper coil that was cooled in the metal drum of water at left of photo in back, with an outlet for the whiskey at the bottom of the drum.

Left foreground is one of the two barrels that were found nearly full of fermenting mesh, totalling about 100 gallons. A 90-gallon mashbox also was found at the site.

Officer McCallum described the outfit as "about as filthy and dirty as any we have seen in a long time." Water for the operation was apparently obtained from a hole dug in the swamp nearby. The mash barrels were infested with maggots, roaches and other insects. Gnats and flies were so thick around the still that it was impossible to stay in the area with comfort.

The still and all equipment at the site were knocked down and chopped up Saturday morning, so that no part of it could be used again. Haith had been convicted earlier Friday in Recorder's Court at Aberdeen on liquor charges of transporting and possession for sale, receiving a suspended prison sentence and paying $100 fine, to include the court costs. That night he was arrested when he went to the site of the still. A cleverly concealed path led to the site off the railroad right of way.

Ponds in Moore to Be Stocked With Bream Fingerlings About October 27

By WILLARD K. KELLER
 Work Unit Conservation
 Soil Conservation Service

Glenn Adams, superintendent of the U. S. fish hatchery at Hoffman, was in Moore County on Friday, to check on the progress of our larger ponds. He states that he has tentatively set the date for delivery of bream fingerlings to Moore County pond owners for Friday, October 27. Individual pond owners, approximately 100, will be notified by mail of the exact time and date of delivery.

The dam to impound a fairly large lake on the Pinewild Farm near Pinehurst has been completed. The contractor is now clearing the lake basin.

Burtis Ragsdale and Leon Matthews (D. R. Guin farm), Route 3, Carthage, have installed excavated ponds. Each of these ponds is 200 feet long, eight to 10 feet deep and 50 feet wide, and will be used to irrigate tobacco. Martin Cameron, Route 1, Cameron, has had a pond excavated. Laurence Falls, Eagle Springs, and H. T. Cameron, Cameron, have completed irrigation reservoirs.

Bahia Grass

J. E. Pollock, Raleigh, agronomist with the Soil Conservation Service, was in Moore County on Thursday, October 5. He examined the spring-planted bahia grass on the farm of James Full-Route 3, Carthage. He has worked widely throughout the southeastern states and is of the opinion that the results of this third bahia grass planting of Mr. Fulk are superior to anything he has observed north of Florida where the grass is native. Mr. Fulk now has nearly 10 acres of bahia grass pasture. Mr. Fulk is chairman of the Upper Cape Fear Soil and Water Conservation District.

Farmers Urged to Enter Exhibits in Moore County Fair Opening Oct. 23

By F. D. ALLEN
 County Agricultural Agent

We would like to compliment the Carthage Junior Chamber of Commerce for its efforts in having a good Agricultural Fair each year. They have built splendid facilities at the Carthage Fair Grounds. They work hard each year to get all the arrangements made for all the events connected with the Fair.

It is up to the farm people of Moore County whether this will be the best Agricultural Fair we have ever had. How can we make it so? Bring all the exhibits that you have on your farm, as listed in the 1961 Fair Premium Book. One quart of the following makes an exhibit: wheat, oats, rye, barley, milo, soybeans, field peas, and 10 ears of corn make an exhibit. We have one of our better corn crops this year, so go out and select 10 good ears for the Fair now!

We have just harvested the best quality tobacco crop in the history of Moore County. The prizes on tobacco this year are: $4, $3 and $1 in each of three classes—tips, leaf and lugs. Two hands or bundles make an exhibit.

We could go on and on listing things to bring to the Fair but you need a fair catalog to do the best job of planning your exhibits. Get it out now and begin assembling them to carry on October 23 to the Moore County Fair.

THEATRE SUNRISE

One of the most colorful and exciting periods of the West, when the U.S. cavalry was the only protection against murderous Apache and Comanche Indians, is depicted in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's outdoor adventure-drama, "A Thunder of Drums." The film will be seen at the Sunrise Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Famed Western historian and writer James Warner Bellah wrote this action-filled drama of events taking place at a remote cavalry post in Arizona of the 1870's, with the picture given authenticity in location scenes filmed in the desert-mountain area near Tucson.

Richard Boone, cast as the rugged commander of the garrison stationed at Fort Canby, plays his first major film role following his success on television's "Have Gun, Will Travel" and "Medic" series.

An unusual love story threaded through the narrative involves George Hamilton, as a West Pointer newly arrived at the fort, and Luana Patten as an Eastern society girl. This team first scored together as the young lovers of "Home From the Hill."

Yield per acre from the current soybean crop is estimated at 23.0 bushels. This equals the previous record yield per acre set in 1958 and exceeds the 1950-59 average by 4.6 bushels.
