

Aberdeen Man's Father Killed In Road Crash

A Robeson County man who had been visiting his son at Aberdeen received fatal injuries Saturday evening in an auto collision on US Highway 1 near Southern Pines.

Troy Malcolm Kinlaw, 53, of Lumberton, Route 1, father of Troy Kinlaw, Jr., of Aberdeen, died Sunday afternoon at St. Joseph's Hospital of a crushed chest and other injuries.

Trooper E. G. Shomaker said Kinlaw turned from the northbound into the southbound lane, heading toward Westbrook's store, directly into the path of a car driven by Malcolm Lewis McNeill, 31, of Southern Pines. Kinlaw, who was alone in his car, was thrown to the highway as it was spun around.

McNeill had his wife and four children in his car. He and his wife, Doris, 28, and their daughter Carol, aged three, remained overnight at Moore Memorial Hospital, receiving treatment for minor injuries. The other three children, boys, aged six to 10, were not hurt.

McNeill, a Southern Pines town employee, told the trooper that Kinlaw appeared to stop to let him go by, then started up again and drove into his path too late for him to avoid the crash. There was no evidence of negligence on McNeill's part and no charges were preferred against him, Shomaker said.

Kinlaw's car was demolished, and McNeill's had to be towed away.

Watson Lands on Market; Include Lake, Residence

Property owned by the late John Warren Watson, between Southern Pines and Pinehurst, is being offered for sale, with the main 796-acre "Sunny Sands" tract priced at $425,000.

L. L. Biddle II of Biddle & Co. at Pinehurst, sole agents, said the property also includes tracts of 67, two of 14 and one of four acres across Morganton Road or Highway 15-501 from the main Sunny Sands tract.

Included in the main tract are Watson's Lake and the residence and boathouse nearby. The lake is two miles in circumference with its shores mostly high and well drained, except where the streams that form it enter and leave the lake.

Before Mr. Watson's death several months ago, Mr. Biddle said, efforts had been made to find a buyer or buyers for the property who would develop it as a private club, and that it is hoped this type of disposition can be made of it now. He said offers from lumber companies are being rejected and that the property will not be sold for the timber. Virgin pine trees on some of the property measure up to four feet in diameter, he noted.

Mr. Biddle said that there would be no objection to sale of the property to a developer if it were subdivided into tracts of at least five acres each, possibly with construction of golf course and development of a private club.

There are no definite plans for a sale at this time, he said, although "groups have been discussing" purchase.

service in the Army in World War II, largely in Europe.

While living here, Shomaker helped to organize a "Health and Strength Club" of law enforcement officers. He specialized in weight lifting. Weighing only 150 pounds, he took part in weight-lifting tournaments throughout the state, in the lightweight division.

Shomaker was informed Tuesday about his transfer. Mrs. Shomaker said today that she and the children hope to be able to move to Salisbury by the first of the year. She said they all regret leaving their many friends in this area. Shomaker himself could not be reached for comment today.

QUOTAS APPROVED

Moore County farmers, like those throughout the state, gave a heavy majority in favor of marketing quotas on tobacco, and cotton in a referendum held Tuesday. The vote means that price supports and marketing quotas will continue in North Carolina through 1964. Also approved for the next three years were assessments against tobacco and peanut growers for promotion of these agricultural products.

Swain Discharged From State Patrol, Denies He Is Guilty of Any Offense

J. Frank Swain, longtime State trooper in Moore County, who was suspended by the State Highway Patrol in October, has been discharged, despite strong support by many citizens who requested his reinstatement.

In a letter received this week from Major C. R. Williams of State Patrol headquarters at Raleigh, Swain was notified of "the decision of this headquarters that the action of Capt. A. W. Welch be upheld." Welch, Troop D commanding officer, initiated the suspension.

The letter failed to specify any reason for dismissal other than the statement, "We do not feel he had any alternative in the light of the facts and circumstances in your case." The only charges previously made have been the general ones of "conduct unbecoming an officer and failing to carry out orders in a satisfactory manner."

Swain sought and was accorded a public hearing at troop headquarters at Greensboro November 14, in which he denied a report of an alleged bribe, which the Patrol had investigated but did not cite as a reason for the firing. Moore County court officials police officers and other leading citizens representing various communities testified to his good character and integrity. The Patrol put on no evidence and took no action at that time.

Swain, 40 years old and the father of four children, whose wife teaches music in the Aberdeen school, has been stationed in Moore since 1946, except for two years of employment in private industry. For the past six years he has been stationed at Aberdeen, while living at Pinebluff. At his home in Pinebluff Wednesday night, Swain expressed gratitude to those who went to bat for him during his period of suspension from the State Highway Patrol.

Said the former trooper, "Their confidence in me has meant everything. I want them all to know that my conscience is clear. I have not done any wrong or anything that I believed was not in keeping with my duty as a patrolman."

Swain said he has no immediate plans "but I will have to get busy about something soon. I had hoped to stay with the Patrol as that has been my lifetime service. Now I have been off the payroll for two months and for a man with a family, that is pretty tough. It looks like a lean Christmas around here."

He said he hopes very much to be able to stay in Moore County as "after all these years, this is home and this is where my friends are." He has through the years had a sideline of buying and selling hunting dogs but "this has just been a hobby and a service to friends who like to hunt."

Patrol Sgt. J. S. Jones of Siler City said this week that an additional trooper will be assigned to Moore County to replace Swain.

Man Sought by Officers After 12-Mile Chase Around Area on Saturday Night

An Aberdeen Negro led the local police car on a 12-mile chase Saturday night, jumped from his car, tussled with one state trooper and then another and finally got away.

In his ditched car he left a young Jackson Hamlet girl. Officers are still hunting the man, whose name Chief Earl Seawell declined to give at this stage, noting, "I believe he will give himself up. It will be the best thing for him to do."

Taking unwitting part in the chase was another Negro man, name also withheld, who had just been placed under arrest and was in the police car when the chase began. He had an unexpected hair-raising ride.

Sgt. L. D. Beck had just arrested the man for a traffic violation in West Southern Pines, and was starting to take him to the station, leaving Officer Coy Frye to bring in the other car, when he observed a car down the street backing off and whirling around suspiciously. He started that way and saw the car pick up speed. He followed.

The pursuit led him to Morganton Road, where Trooper R. R. Samuels, answering his radio SOS, attempted a running roadblock. The man dodged around him, jumped a ditch and on reaching Broad St. braked down sharply, causing a slight collision with Samuel's car. His own car in the ditch, the man jumped out, abandoning the girl, and ran, with Samuels behind him. The trooper caught him, he struggled loose, and ran on, into the arms of another Trooper, E. G. Shomaker, who had also answered the radio summons. Rolling down a bank to elude Shomaker's grasp, the man disappeared into the darkness.

Exhibits Placed In Windows of Vacant Building

All nine show windows of the vacant former Patch Department Store building have been filled with holiday exhibits by merchants, professional persons or other businesses of this area.

The new owners of the building, a corporation named One Seventy-Six Northwest Broad Street, last week offered to make the windows available free of charge. Officers of the corporation are Frederick J. Mahony of Boston, Mass., and Dr. P. J. Chester and Garland McPherson, both of Southern Pines.

The exhibitors in the windows are: Colonial Furniture Co. of Southern Pines; Southern National Bank of Lumberton, which will open a branch here early next year; a window taken by Mr. McPherson, providing recorded Christmas music that can be heard on the street; the Southern Pines Board of Realtors; Piedmont Aviation, Inc., which serves the Southern Pines-Pinehurst Airport; the town Information Center; The Moore County Tuberculosis Association, featuring its current Christmas Seal sale; Tots' Toggery and Mrs. Hayes Shop; and a window shared by Henry H. Turner, photographer, and the Allie McIntosh antique shop.

The Information Center and Christmas Seal windows were arranged by James Hartshorne of Resort Realty and Insurance Co. A tenant for the building is being sought by the new owners.

Its power flows down from the sun, which changes carbon dioxide and water into sugars and oxygen through photosynthesis. Its products are wood and bark fiber, its byproducts starch, fats, resins, tannins and other sugars.

Churches Should Make Influence Felt, Gavin Says

Robert L. Gavin of Sanford, Republican candidate for governor of North Carolina in 1960, was guest speaker last night at the regular monthly supper meeting of the Men of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, voicing his conviction that there must be a return to the principles of Christianity in the home, community life, business and government. He was introduced by Garland McPherson. John F. Pottle, president of the men's group, presided.

Saying that many Americans have forgotten to apply the Golden Rule in everyday life and in business, Mr. Gavin, who practices law in Sanford and is an active Baptist layman, said that he thinks the church is not exercising its full influence in government.

Recognizing the Constitutional separation of church and state, the speaker said that voters should help the church influence government by demanding active church members as candidates for public office. Representatives of churches should attend and make their influence felt at meetings of county and municipal officials, he said.

In taking the lead in the fight against communism, churches can render a great service to government, Mr. Gavin asserted. Many churches have done little to combat communism, he said, though churches have most at stake in the fight. All churches, he said, should combine in a great crusade against communism.

"I hope to see the church become a strong influence in government," he said. "Only the church can bring a change in our concept of values."

Other Reports

Marvin Ritter of Robbins gave a detailed report of a recent inspection by the Building and Grounds committee, and Allan McDonald of West End reported for the Neighbor Air Fund. This fund, started about two years ago, is still active in aiding needy cases.

Staff Appointments

John M. Currie of Carthage, chairman of the Professional Relations Committee, announced the staff appointments for next year. Dr. Charles A. S. Phillips of Southern Pines will again serve as chief of staff. Dr. Duwayne D. Gadd of Pinehurst is vice-chairman and Dr. William W. Allen of Knollwood is secretary-treasurer. On the Executive Committee are Dr. Robert M. McMillan, who served in this capacity last year, Dr. William F. Hollister and Dr. Harold A. Peck.

Accredited

Dr. Phillips reported that during last year the hospital was inspected by a representative of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals and received full accreditation. He noted that professional relations with the hospital were on a very high level.

Growth

Duncan McGoogan, administrator, said, "The year 1960-61 was a year of continued growth in service for Moore Memorial Hospital. More people than ever before used the services of the hospital, and this demand is reflected in the yearly activities of every department."

He reported the year just ended saw 165 more inpatients treated and discharged, 38 more babies born, 438 more operations, over 11,000 additional laboratory procedures performed, and 872 more patients x-rayed. In spite of this additional patient load there were 20 fewer deaths during the year.

"This," Mr. McGoogan said, "is indeed a tribute to the professional care which the patients received." Patients treated in the emergency room totaled over 6,000, increasing 30 per cent over the previous year.

Mr. Poole presided at the meeting, which followed dinner in the hospital dining room.

block and walk into the business section. He said riding bikes downtown is dangerous, regardless of the other complaints.

Deferred

The council deferred a request from the United Telephone Co. that a 15-minute parking zone be established in front of the company's building on Pennsylvania Av., at the corner of Leak St., pending a decision from the town attorney as to whether this can be done legally. Mr. Brown said he didn't think it could, quoting an opinion from the attorney general's office that this could be done only for public buildings, not for private business or individuals.

On recommendation of Police Chief Earl Seawell, the council suspended for one year the taxi operator's permit of Henry H. Salmon, following his recent conviction in Southern Pines Recorder's Court of buying an alcoholic beverage for a known alcoholic who was himself forbidden to buy it.

A beer sales license was granted to Paul Clark McDonald, to operate at 140 E. Connecticut Ave. Police approval had been given to the applicant.

Council Capel said he thought the council should express appreciation to the Jaycees for the part they had played in getting Christmas lighting decorations for the business section. The Jaycees conducted a fund campaign for the lights and were active in installing them.

sewer, water, and power connections. Superior Court Judge Francis O. Clarkson of Charlotte advised the committee that these legal matters can be cleared up in time for the ground-breaking ceremony March 4.

J. L. McDougall of Southern Pines administrator, reported that any interested person is invited to contribute the cost of one room and bath as a memorial. He said already one such memorial of $10,000 had been contributed by a North Carolina Episcopalian to build one apartment as a memorial to members of his family.

The Episcopal home is a project that was suggested six years ago by the late Bishop Edwin A. Penick, who, "practically drafted" H. T. Cosby of Charlotte and told him to get an episcopal home built with the ways and means left to Mr. Cosby, according to the report from Charlotte. The action of the committee at its Charlotte meeting authorizing the beginning of the construction is the fruit of six years of work toward a goal that many times seemed impossible of attainment, said the report.

The home is supposed to be ready for the first occupants one year after the beginning of the building work. The construction will be of one story contemporary design with 40 private rooms and baths. These will be built around a large lounge, which will form the center of the building, with solarium to provide pleasant retreats for relaxing and reading. A 12-room infirmary will be included for residents who may need minor medical and nursing attention.

Reservations for memorial rooms are now being received by J. Melville Broughton, First Citizens Bank Building, Raleigh. Applications for residence are being received by Mr. and Mrs. McDougall, who have an office at 120 E. Pennsylvania Ave., in the rear of the Information Center.
