WATERCOLOR—This scene from the Midland Road area, "Winter Afternoon, Mid-South," is among a large group of watercolors by Roger Deering, now being shown at a Key West, Fla., gallery. Three other watercolors of Sandhills scenes are included in the exhibition which will run through February 25.

Deering Paintings Exhibited at Key West, Fla.; Classes to Open Monday

A group of about 20 paintings by Roger Deering, the Kennebunkport, Maine, artist who has a winter gallery and studio on Midland Road, between Southern Pines and Pinehurst, are on exhibition, through February 25, at the Martello Gallery and Museum in Key West, Fla.

Primarily an exhibition of watercolors, the group contains only two oils. Four of the paintings are of Sandhills scenes and there are other subjects, landscapes and marines, from Maine and Massachusetts.

Exhibited simultaneously at the large Key West gallery are sculpture by Dorthe Chilcutt and lithographs by Stow Wengenroth.

Mr. and Mrs. Deering, who have been in the Sandhills since December, left Friday for a trip to Florida where Mr. Deering is painting in the St. Augustine and other areas, possibly visiting the Key West exhibition if time permits.

They will return to the Sandhills in time for Mr. Deering to open his painting classes for adults at the Carolina Hotel, Pinehurst, Monday, February 5, to continue on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings, during February and March. Opening of the artist's outdoor painting classes will be announced later, he said.

The gallery on Midland Road will be opened Tuesday, February 6, featuring largely oil paintings, including local scenes, and landscapes, street scenes and marines painted in New England. The public is invited to visit the gallery.

An oil painting of a Maine coastal scene, "September Surf," by Mr. Deering, was included in an exhibition of paintings by members of the Salmagundi Club in New York City, December 30-January 19.
