Conventual Luxury

A converted convent, now a luxury hotel, is the latest thing in tourist-bait.

El Convento, located in San Juan, Puerto Rico, is built around a center courtyard; bedrooms with sun decks open on wide-arched galleries facing the patio, where there is a large, deep swimming pool.

What was once the church nave is now the hotel dining room, with 50-foot high ceiling and stained glass transoms. The cuisine is European, with the chef from the Ritz-Carlton in Paris; there is a great deal of woodwork from Spain and a set of iron gates from an old church in Spain.

This is an unusual idea, but not entirely original. The Driftwood Inn in Vero Beach, Fla. features the central courtyard theme; meals there are served at long refectory tables reminiscent of the convent or monastery and old iron work, dark woods and tiles, imported from Spain, are used in the architecture. Departing guests, if approved by the management, are speeded on their way with the ringing of a convent bell.

Closer to home; the Moore Country Club off Youngs Road in Southern Pines, where the hunter trial will be held Saturday evening, was formerly the convent and academic building where the Sisters of the teaching order of Notre Dame de Namur lived. The Sisters taught elementary and high school in the nearby building which had been a stable; and plays and entertainments were held in the auditorium, formerly the feed storage and tack room.

Talent Show Prize

An article in last week's issue on the talent show, to be held March 23 for the benefit of the summer recreation program here contained a somewhat misleading sentence which seemed to indicate that the vacation, as well as the TV appearance promised as prizes, would be in Charlotte. The vacation which is offered as one of the prizes, will be at the Holiday Inn here sometime this summer—the TV appearance will be in Charlotte and in other cities throughout the state.

Course Record

Charlotte Observer columnist Wilton Garrison, still claiming Pinehurst as Dick Chapman's place of residence, noted in his column Sunday that the "former U. S. and British Amateur champ set a course record with a 32-34-66 at Harder Hall CC, Sebring." Dick cut his teeth on the Pinehurst course, it's true, but for the past two years, has been making his home in Palm Beach, Fla.

Woman's Exchange Is Subject of Feature Article

The Sandhills Woman's Exchange, already a flourishing though strictly non-profit enterprise, received an added boost in interest from Don Grey's feature article, in Friday's Charlotte Observer, tracing the history of the Exchange from its one-room cabin in beginning.

The article gives credit to Mrs. John Tuckerman and Mrs. Richard Lovering for starting the organization in 1922, and for their leadership through the years, and to Mrs. W. W. Cogill is given special mention for her expertise in handicraft work.

In addition to a picture of the Exchange building in Marshall Park, there is a picture of Mrs. George Nevins, who is celebrating her 35th year with the organization.

Six members of the Exchange's executive board met Friday at the home of Mrs. John Dixon.

Mrs. George Harwood Monday entertained about 60 members of the Exchange at the Carolina Hotel. Mrs. Frank W. Gramelsbach, vice president, presided at the business meeting.

Refreshments were served following adjournment, with Mrs. Henry B. Spelman pouring tea and Mrs. R. M. Houghton pouring coffee.

Southern Pines Players Tennis Winners Here

In spite of chilly winds, a good-sized gallery turned out to watch the excellent mixed doubles tennis matches in the members-guest round robin tournament played Sunday afternoon under direction of Pro Joe Roddey on the Pinehurst Country Club courts.

Ray Sharpe and Lillian Bullock, both of Southern Pines, won all five of their matches, and the tournament. Runners-up were Mr. and Mrs. Ben Jordan of Saxapahaw and Whispering Pines and in third place were Edward King and Mrs. Albert L. Sneed of Pinehurst.

Contestants and galleries adjourned occasionally for hot cocoa dispensed before a fire in the tennis house.

Work has continued steadily since the fall in grading and leveling the ground for additional courts and materials have now arrived for the fence which, according to Contractor Melvin Johnson, will be started this week.

R. A. Stranahan, Longtime Visitor Here, Succumbs

Funeral services were held Monday for Toledo, Ohio, industrialist Robert A. Stranahan, Sr., at his estate there, with burial following at Woodlawn Cemetery, Toledo.

The 75-year-old founder and board chairman of the Champion Spark Plug Co. died Friday after an illness of several months.

In addition to his interest in the spark plug company, he was a generous contributor to the Republican Party, a 33rd degree Mason and maintained an active interest in sports, particularly golf. He and his wife had been Pinehurst winter visitors for over 40 years and were seasonal guests at the Carolina Hotel. He was a member of the Pinehurst Country Club and the Tin Whistles Club until last May.

One of his sons, Frank, is a prominent professional golfer. Another son, Robert Jr., is Champion president.

The elder Stranahan started making spark plugs as a hobby in Boston in 1908. He had just been graduated from Harvard, where he completed a normal four-year course in about half that time.

His parents, who managed the Tregon Hotel in Boston, helped Stranahan and another son, Frank, get started in the spark plug business. Frank operated a Boston bicycle shop.

Stranahan was married twice. His first wife, Agnes McCall, whom he married in 1908, is now deceased. Children by their first marriage included a son, Robert Jr., and three daughters, Mrs. W. W. Knight Jr., Sylvania, Ohio; Mrs. William E. Jones, Long Beach, Calif., and Mrs. Youka Troubetzky of Paris and New York.

In 1920, he married Mrs. Page Ellyson Lewis of Danville, Va. Their children were a son, Frank, the golfer, and a daughter, Mrs. Harold Holmyard, Darien, Conn.

"PROPER BOSTONIAN"

Cleveland Amory: Debunks Society at Forum, Feb. 22

CLEVELAND AMORY

Cleveland Amory, America's foremost social historian, will be presented by the Pinehurst Forum as featured speaker next Thursday evening, February 22, at the Pinehurst Country Club for Forum members and their guests.

Having won fame and fortune for his delightful ability to dissect traditions and customs of American "society," Cleveland Amory comes to Pinehurst at the peak of a brilliant career as editor, writer, lecturer and humorist.

His persuasive charm, youthful enthusiasm and affectionate respect, combined with his own Proper Bostonian background, have magically unlocked doors of the Old Guard and the Unguarded.

Two long-run best-sellers are ample proof of his observant eye on the higher social echelons as well as of his rapier wit and genuine understanding of the oft-misunderstood folkways of social aristocrats.

Hilariously good reading, "The Proper Bostonians" and "The Last Resorts" are also historically important and have, as the New York Times noted, "already become books of permanent value to all students of Americana."

On the platform Cleveland Amory has an unrivaled reputation as one of the most witty of raconteurs and trenchant of reporters of the American social scene of today and yesterday.

Cleveland Amory was born in 1917 in Nahant, Mass., rock-ribbed summer resort of the First Families. He grew up in Milton, attended Milton Academy and, of course, Harvard, developing budding literary talents on the Harvard Crimson.

Following graduation in 1939, he served as a newspaper reporter, edited the Postscripts page of the Saturday Evening Post, did a stint in Hollywood and by 1945 had returned to Boston to undertake "The Proper Bostonians," now in its 16th printing.

He was the moving spirit as well as editor-in-chief of the new international "Celebrity Register," the "do" book, as he calls it, the bids fair to replace the "Blue Book," containing 2240 individual profiles.

In between books, Cleveland Amory has written numerous articles for Life, Holiday, Harper's Bazaar, Reader's Digest and other distinguished magazines. He contributes a monthly column to the Saturday Review and is a regular reviewer for the New York Times book section. He is frequently called upon for social commentary on many of television's major shows.
