ON CLAY COURTS

Tennis Stars Stage Fine Exhibition; Spring Tourney Begins Here April 28

Local tennis enthusiasts and a number from out of town Saturday afternoon saw a series of exciting singles and doubles matches on the Pinehurst Country Club clay courts.

Bo Roddey of Greensboro and Whit Cobb of Durham, who played exhibition matches at Pinehurst in the fall, were here Saturday. The nephew of Pinehurst tennis pro Joe Roddy, Dr. "Bo" probably holds more state closed titles than any other man in tennis history. He and Cobb, fifth ranking player in the state 11 years ago teamed to win the Southern Conference Doubles Championship.

The other two players were Jack Warmath of Greensboro and Herb Brown of Charlotte. Warmath and Bo Roddey last summer won the state doubles title. Brown is a former captain of the UNC tennis team and the 1961 North Carolina Singles runner-up.

In the first singles match Warmath defeated Cobb, 6-5. The second match was a hard-fought set, with some brilliant volleying, between Bo Roddey and Herb Brown with the latter, who seemingly could do no wrong, defeating Roddey 8-4. Roddey and Warmath then teamed to win against Cobb and Brown in the third set of the excellent doubles match.

Spring Tournament On Saturday, April 28, the spring tennis tournament opens, under direction of Pro Roddey, on the clay courts.

The tourney to last through the week, will have a men's and a women's division and a junior division for boys and girls 15 and under.

Entries to date are mostly from the Sandhills area.

TO RUN THROUGH SUNDAY

'Under the Yum-Yum Tree' Provides Merry Ending for Playhouse Season

A pert and lively comedy, "Under the Yum-Yum Tree," sent Tuesday's first-night audience at the Pinehurst Theatre into gales of laughter throughout its four scenes and two acts.

The play, which will run through Sunday night, provides a merry ending for the Pinehurst Playhouse's spring series. Fast-paced and lively, it sparkles along its insouciant way, ably carried by four attractive and talented performers.

It's a racy play, not for children, filled with sexy situations—but let it be said, virtue, or a reasonable facsimile, triumphs in the end.

Mary Harrigan, an elfin and button-cute blonde, stirs up all the ruckus when she proposes that her serious young sweetheart move into her borrowed apartment on a platonic basis. Object, to find out if their characters are compatible without interference of the physical. Richard Morse, the young attorney who loves her, takes her up on it but finds the terms well-nigh impossible to keep.

The devil creeps in in the form of the landlord, an across-the-hall Lothario, who in a casual and offhand way mounts a sneaky campaign of the type which has always worked before, so why shouldn't it this time? Robert Moore does a masterful bit in the role of the wily Hogan, who admits he's no good, he lies, he eavesdrops, he uses pink flowers and stuffed toys as props—and almost gets away with murder.

The heroine, Robin, is saved by the bell—in the person of old friend Louise Latham, a somewhat dignified lady who happens to be a sociology professor and original owner of the apartment.

After lending it out, she leaves, but keeps popping back—she has her own interest in Hogan, and manages to protect her interests as well as those of the marriage-minded pair.

The moral, if there is one, is that this platonic stuff doesn't work. Something's got to give—and it can be darned funny happening. In the hands of this deft quartet—again with a special salute to Hogan—it's a riot.

Curtain is at 8:30 nightly, with a Saturday matinee at 2, except for a special post-theatre party performance at 9 tonight (Thursday).

"Yum-Yum" winds up the Pinehurst Playhouse's season, which has provided a rich menu during the past 10 weeks, offering drama, comedy, tragedy, even a musical ("The Boy Friend") with casts studded with fine, experienced performers. From the theatre, movies and television shows they have come, to give the Sandhills an exciting theatrical season.

Viewers have come from all over the State. From the stage this week Donald Filipelli, young producer of the Playhouse, speaks his thanks to the audience, and in the program reveals his plans to come back in 1963. He's certain to find an even warmer welcome.

Archeological Group Has Talk On N. C. History

The upper Cape Fear Chapter, Archeological Society of North Carolina met at the Bel Aire Restaurant, Fayetteville, the evening of April 20. Dr. Jerry Jernigan of Dunn presided with 15 members and 12 guests present.

The program was a talk by Lt. Col. H. A. MacCord of Fort Bragg on the history of North Carolina prior to 1700. He pointed out the numerous Spanish, French and English efforts to explore and settle the Carolina area and stressed the disruptive impact these European contacts had on the Indian cultures of the region. He pointed out, too, that the historian and the archeologist must work together closely in piecing together the historical data of this early period.

The next meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m., May 18 at the Parish House of St. Thomas Episcopal Church, Sanford. The program speaker will be Dr. Joffre L. Coe of the University of North Carolina and the recognized authority on North Carolina archeology. The interested public is invited to attend.

The chapter has a number of members in Moore County.
