

Meat Stolen From Farm Smokehouse

A thief visited the home of Lonnie Garner on Robbins, RFD, some time last Saturday night, robbing his smokehouse of four large hams, two large shoulders and two large sides of fresh meat, Sheriff W. B. Kelly reported this week.

Garner didn't know he'd been robbed, until Sunday evening when his wife noticed the smokehouse door standing open, and he went to investigate. The smokehouse is close to the house and they figured the meat must have been taken the night before, as no one could have come that close during the day without having been seen.

The robber didn't have to break open the door. "I've lived here 40 years and never figured I had to lock anything up," Garner told Deputies H. H. Grimm and I. D. Marley, investigating. "Guess I'll have to start now."

Pistols Stolen In Moore Linked To Greensboro Case

Two pistols stolen from Alfred Presler's store and service station at Highfalls in a break-in and robbery early Christmas morning turned up later in Greensboro in connection with a homicide last Friday, for which Greensboro police placed a man in jail.

This information was relayed Monday to Sheriff W. B. Kelly at Carthage as, with Chief Deputy H. H. Grimm and Deputy June Cockman of Robbins, he pursued investigation of the Highfalls robbery. No further details of the homicide were learned immediately.

The two pistols were taken with four others, also a dozen watches and $25 from the cash register, the loot all having an estimated value of $435, the sheriff reported.

Left untouched at Presler's place, which is widely known as a center of trading for firearms, were other revolvers and the proprietor's collection of various types of shotguns, including some of extremely high value, which form a display in the store. Kelly expressed the view that the thieves might have been frightened away before they had completed their "haul."

Entry was made through the front door, which was prized open. Time of the robbery was set at about 2 a. m., the time when a neighbor heard a noise at the store and turned on a light. A moment later, the neighbor said, a car sped away from the store. Presler discovered he had been robbed when he dropped by his place of business late Christmas afternoon.

The pistols taken were listed as a .22 short Astra with serial number 111443 and an Army automatic with the name Simpler on it, identified by the SBI in connection with the Greensboro homicide and held by police there; a .22 Smith & Wesson, an Army Colt revolver, a .41 calibre double-barreled Remington deringer and a .22 target pistol. Also reported stolen were a man's 17-jewel Elgin wristwatch, 10 used wristwatches and a yellow gold Lord Elgin watch described as "having a peep-hole which you look through to tell time," plus the $25 in cash.

The SBI is assisting in the investigation.
