Sunrise Theatre

In the carefully-chosen words of Alfred Hitchcock, "No one can see 'The Birds' until it's over." This is Hitchcock's way of saying that when his latest thriller, "The Birds," a Universal release in Technicolor, opens Sunday at the Sunrise Theatre, patrons must see it from the start. For the convenience of the movie-goer, starting times of all performances are advertised.

The Master of Suspense has a reason for the policy of discouraging his fans from seeing "The Birds" after it has begun to unfold its thrill-laden story. As with all Hitchcock suspense tales, this one is cunningly calculated to build toward a terrifying climax. In order fully "to enjoy being scared," the Master opines, one must see it from the start.

"The Birds" stars Rod Taylor, Suzanne Pleshette and Jessica Tandy, and introduces a fascinating new leading lady, "Tippi" Hedren, in an Evan Hunter screenplay based on a Daphne du Maurier story.

Described by the director himself as "most difficult" film he has ever made, it also promises to be the most astonishing of all Hitchcock suspense movies, as it reveals mass attacks by birds on the people of a small California community.

Funeral Held For L. B. McKeithen, For Many Years Business, Civic Leader

Funeral services for Leighton B. McKeithen, 64, leading citizen of Cameron and Moore County and outstanding Presbyterian layman during all his adult life, were held Friday morning at the Cameron Presbyterian Church, of which he was a lifetime member.

Officiating was the pastor, the Rev. W. L. Wilson, assisted by the Rev. A. C. Trivette of Laurel Hill, a former pastor. A choir composed of members of the Baptist, Methodist and Presbyterian churches sang. Burial was in the church cemetery.

Honorary pallbearers were deacons and elders of the church. Active pallbearers were Coy Warf, Claude Campbell, Frank Hargrove, Milton Holt, Raymond Marion, Donald McDonald and Jack Phillips. Crowding the church were friends from all over Moore County and North Carolina, for his church and business activities throughout the years had brought him wide contacts.

His promotion of and assistance to the dewberry industry had been the most powerful single force in bringing Moore County to prominence as the "dewberry capital of the world" in the late 1920's and 1930's, then in the come back of the dewberry in recent years.

He organized the Cameron Dewberry market and served for many years as a director and buyer on the market, with the McKeithen general store used as headquarters for the auction sales as long as they were held, up until about 15 years ago. Of late years, it served as the pickup point for the dewberries being sold to a single buyer.

In his church, he was for 32 years Clerk of the Session, in addition to serving his home church as ruling elder and Sunday School superintendent.

The son of M. McL. and Belle Ferguson McKeithen, he was born at Cameron March 27, 1899, he was an honor graduate of Davidson College and served in the Student Army Training Corps during World War I. Returning home he entered the farming and mercantile business with his father and continued these activities after his father's death, retiring last January when his health began to fail.

He served at various times on the Cameron town board, district school committee, Moore County board of education and Moore Memorial Hospital board of directors.

He was from early youth a great sports enthusiast, loved to hunt and fish and was until recent years an excellent tennis player.

His quiet and unassuming manner and gentle wit, combined with the finest qualities of a good citizen and friend, and business wisdom and experience, made him one whose advice was sought by all persons in every type of project. His influence for good was felt in many matters.

Surviving are his wife, the former Fay Ritchie of Clarkton; one daughter, Mrs. Warren Thomas of Cameron; two sons, the Rev. L. B. McKeithen, Jr., of Elkin, and Dr. Murdock R. McKeithen of Laurinburg; nine grandchildren, and one brother, Dr. A. M. McKeithen of Cameron.

Edmond Dixon Woody, Jr., Durham, speeding 84 in 55-mile zone, judgment continued on payment of $25 and costs, defendant not to violate speed laws during next 12 months, license suspended as provided by law; Roscoe Brown, Robbins, public drunkenness, violation of prohibition laws, not guilty; Norman Kennedy, Robbins, same charges, nol pros with leave; H. Aberdeen Shop Robbed Twice

A thief or thieves broke into the Fun 'N' Sun, Unlimited, shop at Aberdeen recently. They or others returned the next night, prying open the same rear door and stealing even more items the second time.

Officer D. M. Winfree, who investigated both break-ins, said the first time apparently only a model airplane, priced at $12.95, was taken. The second time, several different items of recreational equipment were stolen, with a total value of around $60.

Winfree said he was reasonably sure it was the same thief both times. "He didn't mess things up much, though we could see where he had been, and he didn't seem to be hunting for money, just things to have fun with."

Less than one out of four North Carolina dairymen were in the business 15 years ago.

DON'T RACE ENGINE

Racing the engine to get it hot won't help. It actually delays the process since the fan spins faster. The best advice: use moderate accelerator pressure and take it slowly for the first mile or two.
