

Former Patch's Location Leased To Charlotte Company For Apparel Shop

W. H. Cato, Jr., president of Cato Stores, Inc., with headquarters at Charlotte, told The Pilot this morning that his firm has leased space in the former Patch Department Store building and expects to open a ladies' and girls' ready-to-wear shop there within a few weeks. The building is located at the corner of N. W. Broad St. and New Hampshire Ave.

Cato Stores, Inc. operates about 90 ladies' and girls' ready-to-wear shops in the two Carolinas, Virginia and Georgia, selling merchandise in the medium price range, the company president said.

The lease was negotiated with One 76 N. W. Broad St., Inc., the corporation that has owned the building for about the past two years, since closing of the Patch store and sale of the structure. Stockholders in this corporation are Dr. P. J. Chester and Garland McPherson, of Southern Pines; and Fred Mahoney of Boston, Mass.

Mr. McPherson said that the shop will occupy about 2,000 square feet of floor space on the ground floor of the building—an area that includes the main portion of the former Patch store. The Charlotte firm will not immediately use the second floor store space but has an option to use it, he said.

The former Tog Shop location in rear of the building, fronting on New Hampshire Ave., has been occupied for several months by Mary Rowe Interiors, a decorating business, which will remain in that portion of the building.

Mr. Cato said that extensive remodeling and renovating of the exterior and interior of the shop will be carried out by his company, with a goal of opening before the end of November.

Mr. McPherson said that the leasing of the store space shows Cato Stores' faith in this area. He said that the stockholders of One 76 N. W. Broad St., Inc., are well pleased with the result of their long efforts to lease the building to a company that will be a definite asset to the community.

Details of the remodeling and other plans of Cato Stores, Inc., will be announced.

Library Campaign For Added Funds Nearing Deadline

The campaign to raise $7,500 by private donation to supplement bond issue funds for work at the Southern Pines library has been going slowly, but a substantial increase in the amount given is expected before the Monday, October 21, deadline, W. Lamont Brown, chairman of the library's board of trustees, said this week.

He quoted John C. Ostrom, drive chairman, as reporting about $1,400 on hand early this week, derived from contributions ranging from a few cents to several hundred dollars.

The private fund for the town-owned library is to pay for work that was not anticipated when estimates were drawn up, on which a $25,000 bond issue for the library was based, Mr. Brown pointed out.

Plans call for an addition that will greatly expand the library's inadequate space for both book storage and its use by readers and students, as well as expansion of the art gallery, improvement of office facilities and other work.

When estimates were made, presently needed work on the heating system was one of the items not anticipated, Mr. Brown explained. The private funds would also make possible use of better quality materials in certain phases of the project.

He pointed out that use of the library has more than doubled since it was taken over by the town from private ownership several years ago.

MEMORIAL BELL—Shown here are the new bell and bell cote at Emmanuel Episcopal Church, presented to Emmanuel Parish as a memorial to the late Eugene C. Stevens. With special prayers by the Rev. Martin Caldwell, at Sunday morning's service, the bell was blessed and set apart for sacred use, to be rung for Sunday and Wednesday services, at 6 p. m. Saturday and at special services from time to time. Mr.

Stevens, who had been treasurer, vestryman and a longtime communicant of Emmanuel Church, was active for many years here also in civic projects, becoming one of the community's best-loved citizens. The bell cote was designed by Charles Benton of Wilson, original architect for the church. It stands over the entrance to the parish hall. The main portion of the church is to the left, out of the picture. (Pilot photo)

Electronic Bell System Presented To St. Anthony's

The Rev. John J. Harper, pastor of St. Anthony's Catholic Church, today announced that an electronic bell system has been given to the church by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cosgrove, in memory of their daughter, Anne Cosgrove Boros, who died in 1951.

The bell system, capable of producing a variety of sounds, is being rung regularly at dawn (7 a. m.), midday (noon) and dusk (6 p. m.) for the traditional angelus, calling people to a moment of prayer, Father Harper said.

The bells also peal for Sunday morning and other services and the solemn toll of a single bell will be used in connection with funerals.

Mrs. Boros was the wife of Julius Boros, outstanding professional golfer now living in Florida but playing out of Mid Pines Club here, which is owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. Cosgrove. She died when their son, Jay, was born. Mr. Boros married again in 1955.

The governor will be at Whispering Pines Motor Lodge and Restaurant with a group of special guests, arriving Friday afternoon. That's all—no C & D meeting. And The Pilot regrets the error.

Man Bound Over To High Court On Attack Charges

An Aberdeen Negro, charged with assault with intent to commit rape on an 85-year-old, semi-invalid white woman at her home Saturday, was bound over Tuesday morning for grand jury action at the November 12 term of Moore County Superior Court.

James McMillan, who gave his age as "about 40," failed to make bond of $10,000 set by Charles MacLeod, a Carthage magistrate, on the finding of probable cause at the preliminary hearing.

McMillan was returned to Moore County jail, where he was placed early Saturday afternoon by officers who reportedly found him within an hour after the alleged assault, drunk and "passed out" on the kitchen floor of his home in the Berkeley section of Aberdeen.

He had on his forehead a dressing covering a cut inflicted by a Negro practical nurse, Mrs. Annabelle McPhatter, who told officers she found him molesting Mrs. Esther Styers, grappled with him and was herself attacked.

The incident, occurring about 12:30 p. m. at Mrs. Styers' home on the Laurinburg road about a mile south of Aberdeen, shocked (Continued on Page 8)

4-Grade Elementary School Among Projects Bonds Would Pay For

Urging active support of the proposed $3 million county bond issue for public schools construction and the $1 million bond issue for construction of a community college, N. L. Hodgkins, chairman of the Southern Pines board of education, and J. W. Jenkins, superintendent, outlined work planned here with bond funds, if they are approved, at the East Southern Pines Parent-Teacher Association meeting Monday night.

If approved, the $3 million in

SCHEDULE LISTED Committees Use Radio Program To Boost Bonds

A series of radio programs on Station WEEB here is giving local steering committees from school districts around the county an opportunity to tell how approval of the proposed $3 million bond issue for school construction will improve their schools, as well as help the county as a whole.

W. P. Saunders, chairman of the county steering committee on behalf of the school bond issue and the $1 million bond issue to build a community college in the county, said that the programs run from 5:15 to 5:30 p. m. according to the following schedule:

The county school system staff opened the series on Monday of this week. Yesterday (Wednesday), the Cameron committee had charge of the program. Other programs to come are: October 18, West End and Eagle Springs; October 21, Vass-Lakeview and Farm Life; October 23, Aberdeen; October 25, Robbins, Highfalls and Westmoore; October 28, Southern Pines; October 30, Pinehurst; and November 1, Carthage.

On November 4, the day before the election, the county steering committee for the bond issues will have charge of the program which will be extended to a half

SCHOOL BROCHURE BEING PREPARED

A brochure about the local schools and the proposed bond issue for school construction over the county is being prepared, Supt. J. W. Jenkins told the East Southern Pines PTA Monday night.

It will outline local school needs and tell how the board of education hopes to use bond funds to meet those needs, if the county-wide issue is approved by voters November 5.

The brochure will be sent to homes by all school children and will otherwise be widely distributed in the community before the November 5 voting, the superintendent said.

school bond money will be divided on a per student basis among the county's three school systems—Moore County schools, Southern Pines and Pinehurst, with Southern Pines scheduled to get $554,700.

Chief projects for which this would be used, the officials reported would be:

East Southern Pines—A 16-classroom unit for 400 students in the first through fourth grades, to be located on a nine-acre tract which the school board proposes to purchase, adjoining the present school campus and bounded by Orchard and Weymouth Roads. The building would have its own cafeteria, capable of serving half the students at one time, taking pressure off the present cafeteria which serves meals from 11 to 1:30. It would also have an assembly room, its own library and a principal's office. Construction of this building, at an estimated cost of up to $300,000, would permit other elementary school classes to be taken out of the high school building back into the present elementary school and would thus permit expansion of the high school's library and laboratory facilities.

West Southern Pines—The projects there, which would use the balance of the bond funds, dividing them almost half and half between the two local school areas, are listed as the third "Phase C" of a new high school already partly constructed, a new auditorium and four elementary school classrooms.

Mr. Hodgkins said that the plan for East Southern Pines, which is altogether new and replaces formerly announced tentative plans to build a junior high school and cafeteria on the nine-acre tract, has the "strong approval" of school planning experts who came here from the State Department of Education at Raleigh to confer (Continued on Page 8)
