Young People Urged To Continue In School, At 4-H County Council Meet

By AMELIA S. CAPEHART
Home Economics Extension Agent (Negro Work)

The County Council of 4-H Clubs held its first meeting of the year in the court room at 9:45 a. m. Saturday morning, with Phillip Davis presiding.

Gloria Williams and Fayette Martin of Pinehurst 4-H Club gave the devotion after which roll call by clubs and minutes of last meeting were read by Helena Wyatt, Bellview Senior 4-H Club.

Lawrence Barrett, Long Leaf 4-H Club, Azor Williams, Bellview Junior 4-H Club and Mrs. Carrie Martin, leader of Pinehurst, reviewed club activities during the months of November and December.

County, District and State activities were outlined by Mrs. Amelia S. Capehart, Home Economics Extension Agent.

Mrs. Josephine Brown, Morrison Training School, spoke to the council on "The Challenge of Drop-Out." In her talk she related some of the reasons for dropping out of school, such as: lack of interest, economic and physical condition. She urged 4-H members to remain in school and complete their education in spite of all the hardship, as jobs are waiting for those who stay in school and complete their training. She also asked them to urge their friends to stay in school.

Episcopal Men To Hear Nicholson

H. Gilliam Nicholson of Raleigh, former president of the Laymen's Association of the Episcopal Diocese of North Carolina, will be the visiting speaker at the monthly dinner meeting of the Men of Emmanuel, Wednesday evening of next week, January 15.

The dinner will begin at 7 p. m. in the Parish Hall of Emmanuel Church. Other persons interested in hearing the speaker may attend following the dinner.

Mr. Nicholson will speak on "What Is the Purpose of Men's Clubs in the Church?" His talk will be an analysis of the activities, aims, responsibilities and benefits of laymen's organizations like the Men of Emmanuel.

Registration for a 12 hour course in "Education For Living in the Nuclear Age" was held at the Lee County Industrial Education Center, Sanford, Tuesday night, January 7.

Classes will start Tuesday, January 14, and will meet each Tuesday night from 7 to 9:30 for five weeks. There is no cost for this course.

Topics covered will be the civil defense system; fallout shelters; principles of radiation; blast and fallout; existence during the danger period; food and water supplies; and related subjects. Demonstrations using various materials and equipment will be conducted.

George Resseguie, a member of the Industrial Education Center faculty will be the instructor. Mr. Resseguie attended a 25 hour instructor's training course in Fayetteville and has been certified by the Department of public Instruction, Civil Defense Adult Education Program to teach the course.

Sign-up Going On For ACP Program

Friday of next week, January 17, will close the "initial sign-up" period for the 1964 Agricultural Conservation Program, reports Walter I. Fields, office manager of the Moore County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

The program is voluntary and is available to farmers through the Carthage ASCS office, paying about half the cost of carrying out various soil and water conservation practices.

The program also offers cost-share assistance in developing conservation practices primarily for benefit of wildlife.

Cottonseed is an important crop, amounting to about six million pounds annually from the total United States cotton production.

An Important Announcement From Collins Dept. Store

Since the government has taken so much control of private business and tells us how much we can work our help and how much we have to pay them it has made it necessary that we change our store hours in order to comply with all this red tape.

We hope that you, "our customers," will understand and cooperate with us in this movement during these slow months.

Our new policy is simply this:

We will close on Wednesday afternoons and at 6:00 o'clock p.m. on Saturday nights. Other week days - 9:00 to 5:30.
