

'Broad-Band Zone Plan' Announced By Phone Co.

The United Telephone Company of the Carolinas, Inc. has filed tariffs with the State Utilities Commission which will reduce mileage charges by extending Base Rate Areas and by introducing a Broad-Band Zone Plan in its North Carolina exchanges, the company announced this week. The proposed tariffs will change the flat rates for the various classes of service in certain exchanges to more equitably reflect the calling scope of these exchanges and will pass on to customers the benefits of the recent reduction in Federal income taxes, the announcement stated.

In this area, United serves Southern Pines, Pinehurst, Carthage, Robbins, Vass-Cameron and adjoining areas. The company serves other areas in North and South Carolina and maintains its headquarters offices here. E. W. Smal of Southern Pines, president of the company, said that the proposed plan will correct inequities which have resulted from varying rates of growth and industrial expansion in the communities involved. The overall effect of these changes, will be an annual savings of approximately $20,000 to United's customers.

The Broad-Band Zone Plan is relatively new in North Carolina and it will result in lower mileage charges for many customers living outside the Base Rate Area, Mr. Smal said. For example, a customer with two-party residence service now paying a mileage charge of $2.56 for two miles could pay as little as 75 cents in mileage under the new Zone Plan. Local service rates under the proposal are based on the number of main telephones within the local calling area of the exchange. In other words, the announcement said, the more telephones that can be called for the flat rate charge, the more useful the service. At the present time, some communities with local calling areas of approximately the same size are paying different charges for the same general service.

The inequities can only be eliminated by classifying these communities by their calling scope, the company explained. Because of the classification of exchanges by calling scope, certain customers in affected exchanges will get an increase in their basic local service rate; however, many of these will receive offsetting reductions in mileage rates. The changes will enable all customers to be served on a more equitable basis, said the announcement. Through the elimination of reduction of mileage charges, many customers will be able to get an improved grade of service at a lower rate than they are now paying, it was stated.

lina Society for Crippled Children and Adults. In the first group of campers, a typical bunch, 12 will be in wheelchairs, while most of the others will be in braces or on crutches.

To Develop Capacities
Everything has been designed with their needs in mind, to help develop their own capacities for self-help, so that they will achieve new levels of skill and independence while enjoying a full and fine camping experience.

The rustic cabins with white hip roofs accommodate eight campers and two counselors each. Two of them are joined with a cement block bath house, one side for girls, one side for boys, serving all four cabins. Outside the bath house are wheelchair "parking areas"—though the chairs can be rolled inside if desired, and even used under the showers.

Some camp features weren't quite ready this week. A sandy beach and waterfront activity area is being built beside the lake, where swimming and boating will take place. A meadow to the right of the entrance gate is being leveled for a baseball diamond (have you ever seen baseball played with wheelchairs?). A site on the wooded hilltop overlooking the lake has been picked for a campfire site, for evening programs and Sunday vespers, and benches will be built by the counselors next week. Another site has been selected for picnic tables and benches, to be given by the local Moose Lodge.

No Visitors
Formal opening of the camp, with notables on hand and the public invited, is set for July 12. Until then, once camping is under way no visitors will be permitted, not even parents of the campers, as the trained leaders can handle the program best this way.

A total of 96 children from seven to 17 years of age, 32 in each of the two-week camping periods, will benefit by this enriching experience during the first summer, most of them on "camperships" sponsored by individuals and organizations. The seventh and final week of the camping season will be for adults. Following that, it is anticipated that one or more cabins will be "winterized" to inaugurate a year-round program of camping and therapy.

Though camping has been offered in several previous years by the N. C. Society, this is the first time it has been on their own property, with opportunity to develop and implement plans which have been long in the making.

Previous camps have been held on loaned or rented sites elsewhere in the State, providing little more than the barest essentials of camping. Camp Easter has been designed from the start to be one of the finest camps of its kind in the country. And this summer's program is just a beginning. Plans call for the building of at least one more four-cabin-and-bath house unit next year, and others as more funds become available, according to Robert A. Lassiter, camp director.

Staff Members
Lassiter, executive of the N. C. Society, is serving with Camp Easter in the transition period before he takes over his new job, State supervisor of vocational rehabilitation. Assisting is a staff of calibre which could hardly have been attained, Lassiter said, without the full cooperation of the University of North Carolina, through its recreation department.

The University has screened all applications for staff jobs and has assigned two outstanding graduate students to executive positions as part of their field work for master's degrees. One of these is Miss Clara Simons, a graduate of the University of West Virginia and former American Red Cross professional, who has served for the past six years as recreation director with the National Foundation at Warm Springs, Ga. Miss Simons, as associate director has prepared an outline of each person's duties, and of the full orientation program and run-through of camp routine, to be followed next week.

With the other graduate student, Miss Joan Ram, program director, she will occupy quarters in the "Staff House," the administrative building.

General assistant, with the designation "coordinator," is Mrs. Betty Liddell of Southern Pines, who as area secretary, a volunteer post, has worked with Lassiter in all phases of the preparation. In the fall Mrs. Liddell, a registered nurse, former Army Nurse Corps officer and one-time public health nurse in Wake County, will become regional executive, a professional post.

Waterfront director will be Marvin Cornell, Jr. of Southern Pines, and counselors will be college students Tom Culbreth and James Malloy of Western Pines and Jim Leake of Wadesboro, also Paul Kelly, a Southern Pines High School student; and four Carolina girls students, Taffy Henry, Joel Ericson, Susan Pollard and Jane Russell.

Junior counselors will be Perry Davis, Roberta Austin and Candy Jones of Southern Pines and Laurie Lassiter of Chapel Hill. Mrs. Dorothy Berseback of Durham, who served as camp nurse last year (at Umstead Park, Raleigh) will serve at Camp Easter in the same capacity, while Dr.

Aspects of Aberdeen-West End School Merger To Be Explained Friday Night

Aspects of the planned consolidation of the Aberdeen and West End High Schools will be discussed at a meeting to be held at the Aberdeen High School auditorium, Friday, June 12, at 7:30 p. m. School patrons who will be directly affected by this "Area III" consolidation program of the Moore County school system are especially urged to attend but all interested persons will be welcome, an announcement of the meeting stated.

On hand will be the Moore County Schools staff, the county board of education and members of the Aberdeen and West End district school committees, with two members of the State Department of Public Instruction as guests, to help answer questions about consolidation plans. Items expected to be discussed include a proposed school site on the Pinehurst-Airport road, the curriculum and "future plans for educational opportunities for children attending schools of the Moore County system."

The Aberdeen-West End consolidated high school is one of three built or to be built by the county school system. Union Pines, between Carthage and Vass, will open this fall. Next to be built will be one in the northern part of the county, and Aberdeen-West End will be the third, all financed in large part by last fall's county bond issue.

The announcement, which came from the county schools, made no mention of local interest in Southern Pines and Pinehurst joining the Aberdeen-West End consolidation, nor whether this proposal might be brought up at the meeting.

LARGEST CLASS

kins, on behalf of the board, presented Miss Miller with a gift symbolizing the gratitude and affection of the board and the community.

Commencement speaker was Dr. James S. Ferguson, dean of the Graduate School of UNC, Greensboro, who was introduced by Schools Superintendent J. W. Jenkins. Dr. Ferguson, whose field is history, described the many ways in which the study of history is of value in life. Fortifying his words with an effective use of quotations from the writings of outstanding thinkers, he cautioned his young hearers to avoid rigidity and be ever ready for "the changes that, in these days, are coming thick and fast."

The address was followed by a musical number of great charm played with skill by the school band. Fredcobaldi's "Galliard" was a fitting preface to the thoughtful grace of the valedictory speech delivered by Julia McMillan, which followed.

Dr. C. C. McLean, chairman of the school board, presented their diplomas to the seniors as they mounted the stage one by one, following their introduction by High School Principal, Glenn L. Cox.

til he received a fellowship to enable him to study the community college program at Florida State. The University is one of 10 institutions in the nation which trains leaders for community colleges.

Dean Chappell is a native North Carolinian who for the past five years has been dean of Wingate College, a private, denominational junior college. As dean at Wingate College, Dean Chappell was superintendent of schools in Wilson. In 1956 he led the effort among North Carolina school administrators which resulted in the first community college legislation in 1957.

Mr. Chappell is a graduate of the University of North Carolina, where he was president of the student body, and holds the master's degree from East Carolina College, and directed the student teaching program at Atlantic Christian College.

Both men will move soon to the Sandhills with their families, Dr. Stone said. Dr. Banaghan's wife, Mrs. Martha Banaghan, has a master's degree in Psychiatric Social Work. The Banaghans are the parents of two children, ages 2 and 5.

Dean Chappell is married to the former Agnes Arey of Shelby. Their only son is a Lance Corporal in the Marine Corps, stationed at Camp Lejeune.

In announcing the two appointments Board Chairman H. Clifton Blue of Aberdeen expressed delight that the college was able to attract two leaders so highly qualified to assist Dr. Stone with preparations for the opening of the college.

Dr. Banaghan said, "My attention was drawn to North Carolina by its pioneering effort in many phases of education. The community college program is especially noteworthy because of its breadth and comprehensiveness. The opportunity to work with an able young leader in higher education possibly was the decisive factor in my coming."

Dr. Stone recommended both men as capable and experienced and expressed confidence that the work of the college would advance under their leadership. The college has offices in the One 76 N. W. Broad St. Building.

—A large silver tray—the gift of the Southern Pines High School Class of 1964 and presented at the Awards Day program last week.

—A gold bracelet given by the town council on behalf of the Town of Southern Pines, presented at a Sunday afternoon reception attended by about 200 persons.

—A silver bowl gift of her faculty associates, along with a $100 bill, at a party given for her at Sanford recently. (The bowl was filled with the large flower arrangement that was a feature of the Sunday reception—the gift of Mrs. George A. McCormac, proprietor of Southern Pines Florists.)

—An orchid, worn by Miss Miller at the reception and on graduation night—the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Bridges of Carolina Orchids, Inc., on Midland Road.

—A copy of the school year's final edition of the Knights Herald, student newspaper at SPHS, with a dedication to Miss Miller, a dedication that was read by Mr. Hodgkins at the graduation ceremonies. This dedication recalled her long teaching career and said, in part: "In Miss Pauline Miller we find not just a teacher, burdened by worrisome students, not just a faculty member, but a truly dedicated member of society who seems to take an interest in each of the students she has taught and had in her room. Although we, as students resent authority, resent homework, resent responsibilities, we have learned through watching Miss Miller the true worth of experience. For some 45 years, this woman has faithfully executed the duties of a sometime teacher, sometime disciplinarian, but always giving of herself and her talents."

Looking over all this, the retired teacher said, "Everybody has been so wonderful that I just don't know..." There didn't seem to be any way to finish the sentence.

Born in Statesville, graduating from Davernport College in 1919, Miss Miller came here to teach in 1925 after teaching in Thomasville. She taught seventh grade here for three years and then joined the high school faculty, teaching English until World War II when she began instructing in Latin when the Latin teacher went into war-related work. She liked it and has been teaching Latin for the past 20 years, as well as English.

She plans a seven-week tour of Europe, that will take her to 10 countries, starting August 1. One of her Latin students, she said, asked her if she were going to travel over the routes that Caesar took—those journeys she has followed with her students in the classroom for many years.

"I'm going to miss the girls and boys terribly," she said this week, speaking of her retirement. She's been teaching about 150 students in her various classes.

"I've this to be thankful for: I've always known the nicest people in town—the boys and girls. I don't believe in 'juvenile delinquency.' It's terrible to class any boy or girl that way. Some boys or girls get out of hand—that's all. It's not a bit worse than it ever was. There will be four or five who cause trouble in any school.

"My students knew I loved them. When I fussed at them, they knew it was because they were not doing all they could. They felt no resentment—but I will say that children liked me better out of school than in school.

No student will do more than you expect. If you expect great things from them, they usually

Several Citizens Named To Boards By Town Council

Several reappointments and one new appointment to town boards and committees were made by the town council at its June meeting Tuesday night.

All the councilmen were present: Mayor Norris L. Hodgkins, Jr., Mayor Pro Tem Fred Pollard and Councilmen Felton Collard, C. A. McLaughlin and Harry Peñick.

Two three-year terms on the Recreation Advisory Committee were filled by the reappointment of Mrs. J. P. Marley and the naming of Leon Hamilton a new member, to the seat held by W. S. Thomasson who has moved out of the city limits and so was not eligible for reappointment.

Reappointed to the Advertising Committee, for one-year terms were all the present members: Chairman George Pottle, Ward Hill, George H. Leonard, Jr., Mrs. Jean Edson, Stanley Austin and Councilman Pollard representing the council on the committee.

Miss Lockie Parker and Mrs. James Boyd were reappointed to six-year terms on the town-owned public library's board of trustees. All the posts filled are voluntary jobs, without pay.

Zoning Hearing
The council approved a recommendation of the Planning Board for a change in zoning in West Southern Pines and set the next regular meeting on July 14 as time for a public hearing. No opposition to the change is expected.

Under the proposal, the zoning would be changed from Residential to "Business II" on the west side of S. Hardin St., between Pennsylvania and N. H. Aves. and on the south side of W. New Hampshire Ave., between Harden and Carlisle Sts.

The change originated with a request by W. E. Stubbs to permit construction of an office building in the New Hampshire block that is affected. The Planning Board extended the recommendation to cover the other frontages (all to a depth of 200 feet), to tie in with existing business zoning in the area.

The council authorized Town Manager F. F. Rainey (who was not present Tuesday, having been called out of town by a death in his family) to get a report from the Planning Division of the Highway Department in Raleigh on the long-proposed access street from N.W. Broad St. via Midlothian Road (a street on the map, but not opened) to Yadkin Road, near the Proctor-Silex and Trimble plants.

The council agreed that if the project is approved by the Planning Department, opening and improvement of the road will be sought from the Highway Department through application to the county commissioners.

Others invited, who possibly might come, had not been heard from early this week, said Dr. Starnes.

Miss Miller has no close relatives. There is a much younger half sister in Connecticut. Some cousins from out of town were here for her reception, which was sponsored by the Town Council, at the school Sunday afternoon.

Her father, R. A. Miller, lived here with her for three years before his death in 1950. She and Miss Chapman, a registered nurse, have made their home together for the past 12 years, six years at the present location at the corner of May St. and New York Ave.

"If I hear those bells ringing over there for class periods, I don't think I can resist them," said Miss Miller at her home this week. "I'll have to get up and go from one room to another every 57 minutes. I've been doing it so long."

Incredible, more persons have died on the highways than on our nation's battlefields; more have been injured in auto accidents in all the world's wars combined.
