Teammates In Morco Contest Tie At 63

Players in the best ball of all four mixed partners tournament for members of Morco and the Sandhills Summer Club completed their rounds Sunday, with a tie, seemingly becoming routine in these weekly matches, between two teams both scoring 63's.

Taking first place designation on the subsequent cut of cards, were J. Hubert McCaskill, Mrs. J. A. Ruggles, and Col. and Mrs. Leon Baker. Runner-up was the team comprising Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Crotty, T. C. Smith and Mrs. A. N. Derouin.

In progress this week for the members of Morco is a medal play tournament for individuals.

Pinehurst Youth Lost On Mountain Climb In Alaska

Bob Burwell, 14, of Pinehurst last week earned a membership in the Alaska Explorer's Club the hard way, through being lost for several hours on Mt. Juneau—and his mother, Mrs. L. C. Burwell, "died a thousand deaths," according to information received here from her, before Bob was found safe.

On vacation in Juneau with his family (father, "Squeak" is visiting Fairbanks and Nome on business trips), Bob left the Driftwood Motel where they are staying last Wednesday, July 15, for a hike up Mt. Juneau. He was accompanied by Bob LaRiviere, 16, and Rick Joulson, 17.

The three expected to return at 5:30 in the afternoon. At 8:30, Bob LaRiviere and Rick returned from the top of Mt. Juneau, bruised, shaken up and without Bob Burwell.

His mother immediately notified the police and chartered a helicopter to make a search. The police alerted the rescue squad, which eventually brought Bob in at 11 p. m., exhausted, scratched and full of nettles—he staggered into a bridge after having been gone 10 hours.

The excursion and subsequent rescue rated the front page of the Daily Alaska Empire, receiving also a strong suggestion from the Rescue Council to newcomers to be particularly careful when hiking on mountain trails and to avoid cross country hikes unless they advise authorities their planned route and are accompanied by a companion.

Young Burwell and his companions blazed their own trail to the top of Mt. Juneau, which is snow capped, precipitous and has many dangerous cliffs, ravines and crevasses.

Interest In Field Trials First Led W. Lee White To Pinehurst In '20's

A long-standing friendship with members of the Tufts family, in particular, with James W. Tufts, grandson and namesake of Pinehurst's founder, and a consuming interest in field trials has been bringing W. Lee White to this resort, and to the Holly Inn, since the mid 1920's.

This week, Mr. White and his wife came to the Holly Inn to sign closing papers making them owners of a winter residence here. Through the Col. George P. Hawes agency, the couple has purchased the former home of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Thompson on Everett Road, Mr. Thompson, vice president of Pinehurst, Inc., and his wife, moved about two weeks ago into their just-completed house off Midland Road.

A director for a number of years of the Pinehurst Field Trial Club, and a past director, also, of the Amateur Field Trial Club of America, Mr. White, whose first name is William, says he has been known within this country and abroad rather as "W. Lee White," known mainly, he says, because of the strain of English setters he has bred and developed for the past 60 years—a strain called "Chief."

Photos of his dogs have appeared on the front covers of many sports magazines, published in the United States and in other countries.

A minor sports activity in which Mr. White formerly found an outlet for his energies here was that of harness horse raising and racing. He was an amateur driver and one of the horses he owned and trained at the Pinehurst Race Track, "Spencess," later became the dam of "Senator Frost," a racer that has, said Mr. White, more two minute miles to his credit than any other horse.

Senator Frost is now at the Castleton Farms in Lexington, Ky. A native of Westport, Conn., Mr. White admits with pride that he is a "Connecticut Yankee" whose forebears came there in 1681, some living all their lives within a 10 miles radius of Westport.

The former president of Bankers Commercial Corporation of New York City, Mr. White, whose wife is a New Yorker, retired "in a bed in Moore Memorial Hospital in April, 1960," following a heart attack.

In good shape now, he can no longer ride horseback but likes to visit the trials held through the south during the winter season, following in a car and seeing how the dogs are running.

The Whites, busy this week with closing arrangements on their house and in selecting various furnishings, expect to spend about five months here during the fall and winter seasons.

Seasoned Senior Golfers Bow In York, Me., Tourney

Two seasoned golfers—Richard S. Tufts of Pinehurst and Egon Quittner of Rydal, Pa.—veterans of many senior combats, were downed last weekend in the Championship Flight finals of the Senior Invitation Four-Ball Golf tournament of York, Maine, by Warren Ingersoll of Radnor, Pa. and Daniel O. Delany, the latter competing in his first senior tournament.

The losers put up a battle which took the match to the 19th hole, where they went 1 down. This was the second renewal of the tournament, initiated last summer at the York Golf and Tennis Club.

In the Championship Flight consolation, James Ackerman of Princeton, N. J. and John Barclay, Jr. of Greensburg, Pa., were victorious over Bruce Coffin of Salem, Mass. and Edwin Metcalf of Princeton, 2 and 1.

Bride-Elect Karen McKenzie, Fiance, Entertained Here

Miss Karen McKenzie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene McKenzie of Southern Pines, and her fiance, Robert S. Koons, Jr. of Webster Grove, Mo., were honor guests at a swimming party and buffet supper given Friday at the Magnolia Inn by Mrs. Herbert J. Diethofer. About 8 couples attended.

The party was also a miscellaneous shower for Karen, and guests were asked to bring "fun gifts" for her fiance, Bob.

BEFORE YOU BUY A NEW ROOM AIR CONDITIONER, ASK YOURSELF THIS QUESTION:

How much will this unit be worth five years from now?

Take a good look at all the models. Ask the salesman how long you can expect cabinet finishes to hold up... or what kind of life expectancy is built into their compressors and other key components.

Then come see us—and the new Carrier Room Air Conditioners. They have features with a future—the kind of features that mean extra years of cool comfort and higher trade-in values.
