

RELIEF
The relief of economic distress has been an acknowledged function of government for centuries. North Carolina's Constitution of 1868 made provision to care for the needy. Today the public welfare department in Moore County and other counties carry the responsibility for assistance to needy persons too old to work, too young to work, and too disabled to work.

SPACEMEN OF TOMORROW—Fourth grade students at the East Southern Pines school, Julius McPhaul, left, and Clyde Black, inspect models of astronauts which are a part of a special display of the progress of flight from the time of the Wright brothers. Coinciding with the 61st anniversary of heavier-than-air flight on the 17th of this month, the unit of study resulted from a study of the planets. The entire class contributed to the displays which included drawings, model aircraft and missiles, and a scale model of a modern airport. Supporting the science and English curriculums, Mrs. Rebecca Bowen, class teacher, explained that the students were required to write an outline of the first flight of the Wright brothers at Kitty Hawk, N. C., on December 17, 1903.

Mrs. Cameron, 80, Dies; Services Conducted Sunday

Funeral services for Mrs. Herbert N. Cameron, 80, who died Friday night at Moore Memorial Hospital after several weeks' illness, were held Sunday afternoon at the United Church of Christ.

The Rev. Carl Wallace, pastor, conducted the service, which was followed by burial in Mt. Hope Cemetery. Pallbearers were W. H. Fullenwider, Robert E. Strouse, Yates Poe, Jr., Albert Priest, B. C. Doyle and Earl Hubbard.

Mrs. Cameron was the former Grace Walker, who moved with her parents to Southern Pines as a young girl.

She was married to Herbert Cameron, a descendant of Scottish pioneer families of Moore County, and on October 7 of this year they observed their Golden Wedding anniversary. Surviving besides her husband are two daughters, Mrs. Edwin W. Small and Mrs. Helen C. Lawson; one son, Robert F. Cameron, and eight grandchildren, all of Southern Pines; also two sisters, Mrs. Frank Buchan, Sr., of Southern Pines and Miss Edith Walker of Fannettsburg, Pa.

CARE Asks Funds To Send Food To Millions Overseas

The current CARE Food Crusade seeks $6,500,000 to complete a year-long plan to help feed 37,700,000 hungry people. U. S. "Food for Peace" donations of farm abundance are the mainstay of the plan. Under CARE partnership contracts, local governments will pay delivery costs for 34,000,000 persons. To reach the rest, CARE asks Americans as individuals to help by sending 6,500,000 packages, at a dollar per package.

In schools, orphanages, destitute homes, CARE "sees" for us. Here is a staff man's report, after delivering packages to a village in Columbia: "Most of all we were affected by the children, whose reaction to the simple food was almost like that of American kids to their Christmas toys. You never saw such smiles and tears of happiness on the faces of youngsters who, for most of their lives, never go a day without hunger."

Contributions may be sent to: CARE Food Crusade, 660 First Ave., New York, N. Y. 10016.

Heart Publication For Nurses Available Free

A new quarterly, "CardioVascular Nursing," will soon be available to North Carolina's 15,600 nurses from the North Carolina Heart Association, the state heart group announces.

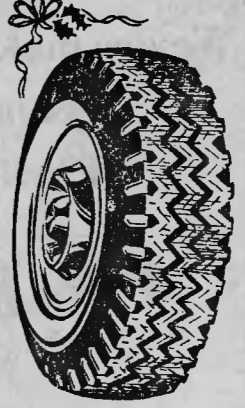

Published by the American Heart Association, the quarterly will concentrate on one topic in each issue, combining in-depth treatment of a subject with practical suggestions for the nurse.

All nurses—hospital, private duty, public health, industrial, and practical nurses — may request free subscriptions by writing Program Director, North Carolina Heart Association, 1 Heart Circle, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514.
