Glad to see Mr. J. B. Honrine, who has been suffering for some time with rheumatism is able to be at his work again.
Glad to see a new machinist shop going up in our town under the firm name of J. T. Holt & J. E. Wall. We wish them much success.

Last Monday morning one of the men working on the local freight for the Southern Railway Co., had the misfortune to get his hand mashed nearly off by coupling cars. We fear it will have to be amputated.

Last Monday morning two men, both colored, got into some trouble here, one Walter Lassiter drew a pistol and shot Remus Frazier four times, two balls entering his person, one just under his right shoulder the other breaking his left arm. Dr. L. A. Muns and Dr. R. J. Noble were called, and we suppose they think it a very bad shot, almost a funeral shot. Lassiter has fled to parts unknown.

Sheriff Ellington's Wife Dead.

The home of Sheriff J. T. Ellington, at Clayton, was saddened Wednesday morning by the death of his wife, Mrs. Ellington had been in bad health for several years and for the past few months her condition had been such that her death was not a surprise. She leaves a husband, one daughter and three sons.

The funeral sermon was preached yesterday afternoon by Rev. J. W. Suttle, pastor of the Smithfield Baptist church, after which her remains were laid to rest in the Clayton cemetery.

Mrs. Ellington had been a member of the Clayton Baptist church for many years and was prepared for the summons to cross over the river.

Sheriff Ellington has a host of friends throughout the county who sympathize with him in his great loss.

Modern Surgery Surpassed.

"While suffering from a bad case of piles I consulted a physician who advised me to try a box of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve," says G. F. Carter, Atlanta, Ga. "I procured a box and was entirely cured. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is a splendid cure for piles, giving relief instantly, and I heartily recommend it to all sufferers." Surgery is unnecessary to cure piles. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve will cure any case. Cuts, burns, bruises and all other wounds are also quickly cured by it. Beware of counterfeits. Hare & Son, Benson Drug Co., J. R. Ledbetter, Hood Bros.

The doctors have so far advanced every reason why a certain man can eat no breakfast, save the real one—his wife looks like such a fright in her early morning dressing saccie that he has no appetite.—Acheson Globe.

Sin may find a man out, but it usually finds his family at home.

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

How an Elephant Punished the Boy That Tormented Him.

Bolivar is a big elephant owned and housed at the Philadelphia zoo. He is one of the largest elephants in the country and has more visitors every day than any six men in the city. He does not carry a car, as does the elephant at Lincoln park, nor is he useful in any way except as a peanut consumer, says the Chicago Tribune. It is through him that the peanut man at the park makes all his money, for who would buy peanuts if it were not for the elephant and his overwhelming appetite?

The drinking cup which is Bolivar's very own is a four gallon iron affair which would do very well for a small boy's bathtub. It does not, however, hold enough water to fill Bolivar's trunk, which has a capacity of just six gallons.

It happened not long ago that a small boy had been teasing Bolivar, holding forth a peanut and then withdrawing it just as the elephant was about to gobble it up. Bolivar did not like it, but what could he do? He pulled at his chain and flapped his ears and sneezed, but the boy only laughed.

Just then along came a keeper with the four gallon drinking cup full of water. Bolivar blinked his little eye and thrust his trunk into the water as though he were very thirsty. It interested the boy, and he drew nearer. When Bolivar raised his trunk, he did so quickly and, pointing it at the boy, turned on the power. The force of the stream carried the boy off his feet and landed him on the other side of the roadway, a dripping, wretched creature. Bolivar enjoyed the joke immensely and flapped his ears and clanked his chain as though he were trying to say, "Come over here again, won't you, little fellow?" But, needless to say, the boy did not accept the invitation.

Mabel's Singing.

Mabel, whose years number three and whose voice is the delight of the household, was talking very eloquently about her favorite kitten.

"But," said her mamma, "your kitty will grow into a big cat after awhile, and then she will catch the dear little birds that come here just to sing their pretty songs."

Mabel fell into silence and struggled with the problem thus presented. She dearly loved her kitten and did not like to have its character attacked in this way. By and by the cloud passed from her face, and turning to her mamma she said: "But, mamma, it wouldn't be bad in kitty to kill the little birds that don't sing, would it?"

"Why, Mabel," answered her mamma, "how would you like to have some great monster come along and eat you up just because you did not sing nicely?"

"Oh, but, mamma," cried Mabel, "I do sing nicely, you see."

The Emperor's Little Friend.

A little Australian boy recently met with a piece of luck. He lives in a street in Budapest, and whenever the Emperor Franz Josef drove past on his way to the station the lad always greeted his majesty by vigorously waving his hat.

The emperor noticed the child, and whenever he was in the Hungarian capital looked out for his young friend.

This continued for quite six years, until one day in April the emperor noticed that the boy was missing from his usual post. An hour later a messenger from the emperor called at the house and inquired what had become of him.

On learning that the lad, who was now 12 years of age, had been sent to school the emperor promised to pay for his education and afterward make an officer of him if he were physically fit.

A Little Gentleman.

A small boy was at a table where his mother was not near to take care of him, and a lady next to him volunteered her services. "Let me cut your steak for you," she said. "If I can cut it the way you like it," she added, with some degree of doubt. "Thank you," the boy responded, accepting her courtesy. "I shall like it the way you cut it even if you do not cut it the way I like it."—Ledger Monthly.

Missed the Monkey.

The organist of the church was a guest of little Margie's father, and at dinner she said to him: "Do you play an organ?" "Yes, my dear," was the reply. "Then," gravely inquired the little miss, "where's your monkey?"

Queer.

Said a little white cloud to the deep blue sea: "If I were you and you were me, You could sail up here, while I'd roar so loud! What fun it would be!" said the little white cloud.
A little schoolgirl came down to the shore And listened to hear the big waves roar. "How queer it seems that the deep blue sea And that little white cloud are the same!" said she.

CATARRH

Catarrh has become such a common disease that a person entirely free from this disgusting complaint is seldom met with. It is customary to speak of Catarrh as nothing more serious than a bad cold, a simple inflammation of the nose and throat. It is, in fact, a complicated and very dangerous disease; if not at first, it very soon becomes so.

The blood is quickly contaminated by the foul secretions, and the poison through the general circulation is carried to all parts of the system. Salves, washes and sprays are unsatisfactory and disappointing, because they do not reach the seat of the trouble. S. S. S. does. It cleanses the blood of the poison and eliminates it from the system all catarrhal secretions, and thus cures thoroughly and permanently the worst cases.

Mr. T. A. Williams, a leading dry-goods merchant of Spartanburg, S. C., writes: "For years I had a severe case of nasal Catarrh, with all the disagreeable effects which belong to that disease, and which made life painful and unendurable. I used medicines prescribed by leading physicians and succeeded by numbers of friends, but without getting any better. I then began to take S. S. S. It had the desired effect, and I cured me after taking eighteen bottles. In my opinion S. S. S. is the only medicine now in use that will effect a permanent cure of Catarrh."

is the only purely vegetable blood purifier known, and the greatest of all blood medicines and tonics. If you have Catarrh don't wait until it becomes deep-seated and chronic, but begin at once the use of S. S. S., and send for our book on Blood and Skin Diseases and write our physicians about your case THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.
