

MME. ANDREIEVA'S CASE.

Strange Situation Caused by Visit of Maxim Gorky.
The case of Maxim Gorky, the Russian author, and Mme. Andreieva, the handsome actress, whom he introduced in this country as his wife, is almost stranger than the strange fiction from Gorky's own pen. He came to this country in behalf of the Russian revolutionists, and elaborate plans were made for his reception and the inauguration of a campaign in aid of the revolutionary party in Russia. These have been largely disarranged, and all because of "the woman in the case." Gorky was married to Katerina Paulowna Pjoshkova, the beautiful daughter of a Russian officer of noble family. Two sons were born to them. The elder is now eight years old and the younger five. As recently as 1903 the author and his wife and two children toured the Caucasus together. Not long after that they separated. Both are Socialists and accepted the teaching of some members of that economic school that when husband and wife no longer love each other they should separate. Gorky continued to support his wife and children and does so, it is said, to this day, although she is a woman of wealth. It is difficult to obtain a divorce in Russia, and if one happens to be out of favor with the church or the government the difficulty is increased. Gorky is out of favor with both and, it is said, has never been divorced from his wife according to the laws of the empire. After he separated from her, however, he lived with Mme. Andreieva, and she was recognized as his wife. His first wife fully understood the relations existing between him and Mme. Andreieva, but nevertheless was devoted to him. She showed this devotion after Gorky's arrest in January, 1905. She journeyed from official to official and on her bended knees pleaded for his release from the dungeons of the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul. She secured his liberation, saw him but a few moments, and then he returned to Riga and resumed his life with Mme. Andreieva. Later came the journey to this country and the ejection of the author and his companion from hotels where they sought accommodations. Stranger than all this, however, is the story that there is today a provisional republican government in Russia, that through it Gorky obtained a divorce from his first wife and that both are bound by oath not to reveal the facts. It is said that Russians in this country who sympathize with the revolutionary party understand the situation to be of this character, and therefore contemplate with serenity the misconception which they consider the general public to have concerning the relations between Gorky and the actress he proclaims to be his wife.

THE PRESIDIO.
Famous Military Reservation in San Francisco.
Much has been heard since earthquake and fire overwhelmed and destroyed San Francisco about the Presidio, the military reservation in the suburbs of that stricken city. During the Philippine insurrection it was the rendezvous of troops on their journey to the battlefields of the far east, and at one time 6,000 soldiers were quartered there. "Presidio" is a Spanish term, and its common acceptance in Spanish-America and in English speaking localities where Spanish names have been adopted is that of an army post or barracks. The Presidio of San Francisco was established as an army post by the Spanish about 100 years ago. It was first occupied by American troops in 1849 and is now the division headquarters for the department of California. It is situated on a slope overlooking the city from the north-west and has one of the largest and most important military hospitals in the new world. The reservation embraces over 1,500 acres, and thousands of people fled to it as a camping ground after fire had devastated the city.

The largest individual contribution in aid of sufferers from the great Chicago fire was $50,000 given by A. T. Stewart of New York. For San Francisco there has been one gift of $200,000 from E. H. Harriman, and two of $100,000, from Messrs. Rockefeller and Carnegie. But relative to means or fortune the Stewart gift was much larger than either of the latter. Back in the early '70s individual fortunes of $100,000,000 or over were not known.

The Boston Herald remarks that "never was there a city, unless it is Paris, where night is of so little account as New York." Well, that depends on what one wishes to use it for; perhaps Boston wastes it in sleep.—New York Commercial.

Buy Oil From The Barrel.

Don't pay $1.50 a gallon for canned oil, which ought to cost but 60 cents a gallon. Ready-mixed paint is half oil and half paint. Buy oil fresh from the barrel, and add it to the L. & M. Paint which is semi-mixed. When you buy L. & M. Paint you get a full gallon of paint that won't wear off for 10 or 15 years, because L. & M. Zinc hardens the L. & M. White Lead and makes L. & M. paint wear like iron.
4 gallons L. & M. mixed with 3 gallons Linseed Oil will paint a moderate sized house.
Actual cost L. & M. about $1.20 per gallon.
Sold in the north, east, south and west.
C. S. Andrews, Ex-Mayor, Danbury, Conn., writes: "Painted my house 19 years ago with L. & M. Looks well today." Sold by W. M. Sanders, Smithfield, E. L. Hall & Bro., Benson.
