NOAH MASSENGILL OUTLAWED.

On Friday night of last week Mr. Z. L. Lemay and Mr. J. W. Stephenson under the authority they have as magistrates passed outlawry proceedings in the case of Noah Massengill, a fugitive from justice. He is now an outlaw and could not claim the protection of law to save his life.

It costs money to carry on public health work that, if properly performed, means the lessening of needless disease and suffering. And in this battle between the dollar and the death rate if only the dollars are provided and wisely used, the victory for human health and happiness can be won. In this day and age good health is a commodity and can be bought, but the people must be willing to pay the cost.

LET US HEAR.

What has become of the Johnston County Baraca-Philathea convention? What has become of the officers elected at the meeting in Smithfield in 1911, and what steps are they taking to push this organization forward? This movement is a vital essential to Baraca-Philathea development in Johnston County. The classes want this convention, and we must have it.

LOW GRADE GUANO.

A reader asks: "If the 8-2-2 fertilizer is such a fraud, why does the law allow it?" There is no fraud in the 8-2-2 fertilizer. It is just what it professes to be, and the manufacturers are not to blame for making what the farmers demand. To make a fertilizer of this low grade in order to meet the demand for a low-priced fertilizer, they are obliged to use filler. What I have argued is that this low-grade fertilizer furnishes the plant food at a higher price than fertilizers of a high grade, and you pay for sacking and freighting the filler that is of no use to you. But the manufacturer is not the one to blame, but the farmer who buys the low-grade fertilizer because he can get a ton of it for less money than a better grade. When farmers fully understand that it is the value of the plant food in a fertilizer that fixes the price, they will soon see that they can get the needed plant food in a concentrated form for really less money than is costs in a low-grade article. In fact the report from the State analyses show that the manufacturers of fertilizers sold in the South, are really endeavoring to have their articles show a little better than their claim for they are anxious that no unfavorable report shall go out about their goods.—Progressive Farmer.

FARM MACHINERY EXPENSIVE.

"There is no manufacturing business that has its machinery standing idle so much of the time as his farming," said Professor R. C. Price, Dean of the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University, in a recent lecture. He pointed out the case of this binder, which is an expensive machine, yet it is needed only a few days in the year. "The average life of farm machinery is ten years," said Professor Price, "and counting depreciation and interest, it costs each year about 16 per cent of the original investment to keep it on the farm. The way some machinery is cared for it will cost more than this. Where it is possible to do so, it is more economical to rent machinery than to own it, on the smaller farms." The fact that the machinery is such an expensive part of the farm equipment indicates that better care of this machinery is an economical feature of successful farm management.—Indiana Farmer.
