READ THIS LETTER IN FULL CAREFULLY

Mr.
Wilson, N. C.

Shelby, N. C., Sept. 27.

Dear Sir:

One of our representatives writes us that he has sold you a small block of stock of the Cade Manufacturing Co., and that you are considering the purchase of a much larger block of stock, but before doing so you desired information direct from the officers of the Company touching the status of the business and the plans for the future, hence this letter.

PURPOSE:—This Company was organized to finance the invention of Mr. Baylus Cade, a practical printer in his youthful days, an experienced newspaper man and a mechanical genius. The Company had three purposes in view, viz: First to secure necessary patents; second, to develop a machine on the line of the patents; and, third, to manufacture machines for the market.

ACCOMPLISHMENTS TO DATE:—We have secured four (4) American patents, a fifth has been allowed and a sixth applied for. We have thirteen (13) foreign patents covering the leading countries of the world. Other patents will be secured from time to time as improvements are made on the machine. The initial machine completed is a mechanical success and fully demonstrates the soundness of the principals involved.

The machine was operated in the shop of the builders for several months after its completion for demonstration purposes. Several persons from this community witnessed its operation, among the number being the writers of this letter. All expressed surprise at the splendid and positive manner in which the various parts of the machine worked; all were enthusiastic and predicted a bright future for the machine.

PRESENT PURPOSES:—Under our charter granted under the laws of North Carolina, we are now selling stock to raise capital for building and properly equipping a factory at some suitable point for the manufacture of machines for the market.

We hope to build a plant large enough to turn out at least 1000 or more machines the first year of our operation. We are informed and believe that the machine can be built and sold at a cost of approximately $600. If we sell the machine at even as low as $1,500.00 (which is less than half the price of the standard machine now on the market), there will be a clear profit of $900.00 on each machine. While the work of selling the stock and building the factory are under way, the Company will have built under contract a limited number of machines for demonstration purposes. This work will start in a few weeks.

CONTRACT WITH INVENTOR:—As required by law, all patents were issued in the name of the inventor, but on the 14th day of October, 1914, all patents were assigned to the Cade Manufacturing Company absolutely, the assignment being drawn by Jas. L. Morris, a leading patent attorney of Washington, D. C. and being registered on October 17, 1914, in Liber Q. 96, page 26, of the transfer of Patents in the Patent Office. All future patents to be granted to the inventor on this machine covering improvements will inure to the Company. The inventor says that every feature of the machine is covered by patents.

INFRINGEMENTS OF PATENTS:—Numerous Linotype experts have examined the machine from time to time and so far as the writers know there has been no alleged infringement on any other patent. To the contrary, one of the writers hereof heard the following remark relative to the Cade Machine from a mechanical engineer of the Mergenthaler Linotype Company: "You will never have any trouble with our Company about infringements of our patents. Your machine is unique. You are entitled to all that is in your invention." We do not believe there is the remotest possibility of any infringements.

LOCATION OF FACTORY:—The location will be determined by the Directors and Stockholders. As this is the fruit of NORTH CAROLINA BRAIN and CAPITAL, the writers would be pleased to see the OLD NORTH STATE secure the factory and all that such a plant would mean.

We believe this is the greatest business proposition before the American people today. We would be glad to have your hearty co-operation on a large scale in making it a world-wide success, as we believe the sales will be limited only by our capacity to manufacture.

Thanking you for your subscription, which we hereby acknowledge, and awaiting your further command, we are,

Yours very truly,
(Signed.) E. B. HAMRICK, President.
(Signed.) J. H. QUINN, Secretary-Treasurer.

A prominent and wealthy business man of Wilson says: One of the greatest opportunities for investment the people of our State have ever had.

Read his letter. The original with signature will be shown to any one interested:

Cade Manufacturing Co.,
Shelby, N. C.

I have your favor acknowledging receipt of my application for the purchase of stock in your company.

Knowing Dr. Cade for many years, and of his years of tireless effort to perfect his Typesetting Machine, I am very glad indeed to have the opportunity to buy stock in the Company that will build and market his wonderful invention.

I fully realize the importance as well as the possibilities of Dr. Cade's Typesetting Machine and what it means to the printing world, and I consider the stock of the Cade Manufacturing Co. one of the greatest opportunities for investment the people of our State have ever had, and I will take great pleasure in recommending this investment to my friends.

Wishing the Company great success in its undertaking, I am,
Yours very truly,

There are nearly one hundred stockholders of the Cade Manufacturing Company in Wilson and vicinity.

The stock of this Company carries tremendous earning possibilities. The investment in this stock we believe to be sound and conservative.

YOUR FIRST OPPORTUNITY
—or for that matter the first time the people of the South have ever had the chance to give to the world's market, and share in the enormous profits of an invention that would reduce the cost of producing one of the greatest world necessities.

Do You Know that until a few years ago all type was set by hand?

A wonderful and complicated machine—the Linotype, was invented and put on the market—that machine has earned and distributed over $46,000,000 of dividends to its stockholders—in 29 years.

Now comes Dr. Cade's typesetting machine that does the work equally as well, more rapidly—from a machine, far more simple in construction and can be sold at from $1000 to $1500 less.

NO FOREIGN COUNTRY HAS A TYPESETTING MACHINE

Do you realize the immense possibilities of Dr. Cade's wonderful invention on which he has worked for nearly twenty years?

Stock of the Company is now selling at par—$10 per share—fully paid and non-assessable.

If we remain SLAVES OF PRECEDENT we can't be MASTERS OF OPPORTUNITY. If you WAIT too long to be CONVINCED the opportunity WILL SLIP FROM YOUR GRASP.
