

therewith communicated, showed that there was no danger of loss to the United States.

The evidence now offered and received, tends to show that there is a probability of final loss from this Bank; but in other respects there is no new view of the case presented.

The debt due to the Government from the Bank of Vincennes, has also been brought forward, and made the subject of inquiry and proof. Nothing distinguishing this case from those of other Western Banks in which the public money had been deposited, and in regard to which loss had happened, or was expected, had attracted the attention of the Committee, as important to be considered, at the time of their former Report.

The case of this Bank had been previously made the subject of a Report to the House by the Secretary, on the 21st of February, 1823, in answer to a resolution passed on the 31st of January preceding, in which a statement of the debt, and the means which had been taken and used to secure it, were laid before Congress. The evidence now taken, relates principally, as in the preceding case, to the amount of the loss which may be expected to be incurred.

The only remaining charge which may be regarded as not before examined, is an allegation, or intimation, that, owing to the fault of the Secretary, the pensioners and public creditors of the government in East Tennessee, were, in some instances, paid in bank paper not equivalent to specie.

The circumstances attending this transaction seem to be fully stated in the testimony of Hugh L. White. It does not appear that any knowledge of these payments having been made in depreciated paper was communicated to the Secretary. The measures adopted by him for the reasonable provision of a proper fund at the place of disbursement, were, as far as the Committee can judge, suitable and judicious. He had a right to expect the payments to be made in specie, or its equivalent; or, at least, to be informed if any thing should happen to prevent such payment. No information was given to him of any disappointment in this respect, by those whose duty it was to pay; and no complaint appears to have been preferred by those whose right it was to receive.

In regard to the contested letter of Benjamin Stephenson, of the 12th of October, 1819, the Committee see no cause to change the opinion which was entertained, and which they intended to express in their former report—that, although the letter was written, as stated by Mr. Edwards in his testimony, that there was no evidence that Mr. Stephenson communicated or transmitted it to the Secretary of the Treasury.

The Committee do not deem it necessary to extend their Report, by protracted observations on the various parts of the evidence, as the whole is submitted to the House. They content themselves with saying, that, in their opinion, nothing has been proved to impeach the integrity of the Secretary, or to bring into doubt the general correctness and ability of his administration of the public finances. To this point, as the main object of inquiry, the chief attention of the Committee has been directed; and they have come to the result, which has now been stated, with the unanimous concurrence of the members present. Other points there are, of less importance, but which may, nevertheless, be supposed not to have escaped consideration by the Committee. These, however, under all the circumstances, they have thought it proper to leave, without observation, in the light in which they are placed by the evidence.

Washington, June 24.—We published yesterday the reported resignation of Mr. Edwards of his appointment as Minister to Mexico. We are now able to state, with more certainty, that such is the fact. Mr. Edwards communicated his resignation immediately after the Report of the Investigating Committee was sent to the President, and before the President had time to read the report and evidence through.—Nat. Int.

Resignation.—Mr. Edwards it is reported, has transmitted his resignation, as Minister to Mexico, to the President; believing it to be a duty he owes to himself and friends to remain in the country in order to defend himself, should circumstances render it necessary.

From the Raleigh Reg. June 25.

Supreme Court.—The summer term of this Court commenced on Monday last. All the judges are present.

The following young gentlemen having passed approved examinations, were licensed to practice in the County Courts of this State, viz:

Benjamin F. Haywood, Raleigh,
Henry Miller, do.
James L. Gaines, Moore County.
Henry A. Martin, Stokes County.
James K. Belden, Fayetteville.

Another young gentleman applied for a license, but being born an alien, and not naturalized, he was not examined.

New American Play.—A new Comedy entitled "Blackbeard," has recently been published. The scene is laid in Currituck county, and the author is Lemuel Sawyer, Esq. a Member of Congress from this state. Its aim is to satirise electioneering chicanery and at the same time to ridicule the credulity of avarice. It abounds in allusions to the hobbies of the times; and particularly in relation to the practice of treating at the polls, and in regard to the depreciation of our currency it has some good points.

The Agent from Hayti.—When our private citizens visit Hayti, they are treated with every mark of respect; but a public agent of the Haytien government, who has visited our country for the benevolent purpose of facilitating the emigration of those colored persons, who are disposed to remove, has received a public insult. The agent in question is Citizen GRANDEVILLE, who, during the short time he sojourned in Philadelphia, gained the esteem of our citizens, by his correct conduct and gentlemanly deportment—He is an intelligent man, and the only thing that the most fastidious can object to him is his complexion, which is that of a dark mustee. On his passage from this place to New-York he met with most ungentlemanly treatment from a lieutenant of the navy, and behaved on the occasion in a manner which does him honor. We have received a verbal account of the affair, but prefer giving the statement of the New-York

Commercial Advertiser, who has enjoyed better opportunities for ascertaining particulars. It is as follows:
"Being seated at table, Citizen Grandeville was rudely spoken to by a lieutenant from the south, but took no notice of him until he was addressed in a more public and insulting manner. Upon this he immediately rose and observed, that, "When in his own country, it was his province to take into custody those Haytiens who insulted strangers." He then in a very handsome manner apologized to the company, by remarking, that he regretted having broken the rules of the country as it respected propriety and good breeding, and thereupon left the table. Eighteen of the passengers rose simultaneously, and ordered another table to be spread, which being done, Citizen G. was invited to dine with them, and the lieutenant left at the first table alone! He, however, much to his credit, sent an apology to Mr. G. to which the latter replied—"I write INSULTS on the sand; FAVORS, on marble." This answer would have done credit to Napoleon. It is sufficient to say, that he was treated with marked attention during the remainder of the day."

Hillsboro', June 23.—On Friday last, a black man by the name of Robert Archer, went to the house of Jacob Trollinger, near Haw river bridge, in this county, from which he took a gun, and after compelling a black woman, the only person about the house, to give him some spirits, took a station in the barn, and when Mr. Trollinger was passing by towards the house, fired at him, but fortunately missed his aim. Mr. Trollinger pursued after him, but upon coming up with him, was knocked down with the breech of the gun, which was broken with the blow. The black fellow then made his escape. He came from Guilford county, and has been in Mr. Trollinger's neighborhood three or four months: it is said he was raised in the settlement about Cain Creek, and may probably now be in that part of the country. He is of common stature, white eyes, large mouth, broad teeth; by some wound formerly received in his face he is not able to open his mouth but a little space. Should he be recognized, a public service will be rendered by apprehending him.—Rec.

Narrow Escape.—A man was lately tried for theft in Baltimore, and indicted by the name of Henry Chase alias John Butler, against whom the evidence was so direct that at first no doubt was entertained of his guilt. It turned, out, however, in the course of the investigation, that the prisoner, who had never borne any other name than John Butler, had been mistaken for a person named Henry Chase, the actual thief, whose resemblance to the prisoner was so great, that it was difficult to distinguish them apart. They had both a scar of the same kind, and on the same part of the face, and in most other respects were like each other.—The character of the prisoner was proved to be good, while that of Chase was shown to be extremely bad. The jury without leaving the box returned a verdict of not guilty.

Lexington, Ky. June 8.—Martin P. Frazier was executed at Shawneetown, Illinois, on the 10th of May last, for the murder of Mr. Dryden. On the morning of the execution, he made a confession, at the request of his father and others, in which he said, himself and Dryden had a settlement, and that Dryden was displeased, and was about removing from his farm. He was attached to Dryden's wife, with whom he had been on terms of criminal intimacy, and was averse to a separation. He also said Mrs. Dryden gave him to understand that she would like Dryden put out of the way, and thinks she urged him to be killed, and he did it at her instance.

A murder was committed in Montgomery county, in this State, on Sunday the 30th of May, by a Mrs. Richardson, on her husband. They had lately removed from Bourbon, and, in a quarrel between them, she seized a loaded gun and discharged its contents at him, which lodged in his body. He died on the Tuesday following. She is now in jail, to await her trial at the Circuit Court, which commenced in Montgomery yesterday.

From the West-Union (O.) Register, 15th ult.

The following "marvellous" article is from the columns of the "Olive Branch," printed and published at Circleville, in this state,—will probably make even the credulous stare:

"A farmer in this county, a few days since, had a cow that died immediately after bringing forth a living calf. The body of the cow was opened through motives of curiosity—when, incredible to relate, FIFTY-NINE completely formed calves were found, varying in size, which with the one before mentioned made SIXTY!!! Ohio against the world!"
