I will take this opportunity of addressing myself to the Young Ladies, and inviting them to call and obtain a Prize, as it is unfortunately the case, but nevertheless a fact, that it is not in proportion to their personal charms and accomplishments that they are admired, but according to their wealth. Many young ladies have but few admirers, in consequence of their being unable to say: "Our Father who art in heaven"-Such would certainly do well to obtain a Prize, as it would afford them a much better assortment to make a choice out of. In fact, I can think of no person that would not be benefitted by an increase of wealth: therefore, ALL are respectfully invited to try their fortunes at
