"Have I won the prize?" Hundreds of spectators shouted "Yes!" but the Count De Dion, a member of the committee, approached and threw a damper on the enthusiasm by saying: "My friend, you have lost the prize by 40 seconds" Numbers of on-lookers protested against this announcement in lively terms, but the Count De Dion said:

"That is the decision of the committee in accordance with the rules of the contest."

At this moment M. Deutsch himself arrived at the club grounds, having only shortly before that moment reached Faris from Blarriaz. He advanced, embraced Santos-Dumont, shook hands with him and said:

"For my part, I consider that you have won the prize."

The great crows then gave the two

The great crowd then gave the two men an ovation, cheering heartily for Santos-Dumont and Deutsch. Santos-Dumont claims that he won the prize because he reached the park within the time and that the original rules governing the contest made no mention of having to touch the ground within the 30 minutes.

within the 30 minutes.

The dispute is due to the action of the committee which some time ago modified the terms of the contest by inserting the latter stipulation. San tos-Dumont at the time protested and refused to be bound by the fresh regulation and strenuously upheld this view with the Count De Dion and other members of the committee on descending, finally declaring that he had won the prize and would not try again. If the money was withheld, it was not his fault.

M. Deutsch said he would give 25,000 francs to the poor, notwithstanding the decision of the committee, but Santos-Dumont declined to accept the offer as a solution of the difficulty. There was a large assemblage of people at the Elifet tower and considerable interest was manifested in the experiment in other parts of Parls, groups of people gathering in the streets to watch the progress of the elongated, yellow balloon, with its long guide rope hanging and white canvas propellers whirling round, while those below distinctly distinguished the loud buzzing of the
