Why not have a cow law here? It is dangerous for people to walk out at night because of the cows on the sidewalks, most especially the lower part of Main Street.

We hope this matter will be discussed by our Aldermen and that the cows will be penned if they transgress the law. We must have side walks that are safe to walk on.

Were you ever tempted to think that the editor was indulging in personal "digs" when you saw something in the paper which seemed to fit your case? Discard that thought. Remember the old saying, "many a shaft at random sent finds a mark the archer little meant." Why only the other day we read of a Texas editor who published the ten commandments in his paper by request with the result that he lost half of his subscribers before he could have time to explain in the next issue that no personal reflections were meant.

With this issue we begin labeling our papers: these labels show when your time expires, or did expire. We hope that our subscribers will notice their labels and as soon as their time expires favor us with an immediate renewal. Our efforts are to make a good paper and be Figured on a Wife.

 Uncle Joe is an old negro on a farm near Chesapeake City, Md., a farm owned by the family whose slave he was years ago. He is a widower and lately has sprung up to a degree. Not long since one of the young men of the place started for the city, whom he was hated by Uncle Joe.

"Mistah George," he said sheepishly, "you done goin' to town? You might do a favor for me."
 "Certainly, uncle," was the response.
 "What is it?"
 "Well, you might you might get a marriage license for me."
 The white man was amused, but, seeing that the old negro was offended, he said, "I'll get the license, sure, uncle, I'll get it," and rode off.

After attending to his own affairs in town he suddenly remembered the marriage license, but was nonplussed, for he had not asked the name of Uncle Joe's fiancée. He happened to recollect that he had noticed Uncle Joe around the kitchen a good deal of late and that Amanda, dusky, fat and forty and the best cook in the county, always had a delectable morsel reserved for the old man, so of course it must be Amanda. Armed with the happy credentials Mr. George sallied home and handed the paper to the old man, who took it and looked at it. The license was read to him.

"Mandy Jones!" he cried when the bride's name was pronounced. "Why, it ain't her—it's Liza Allen, down by de creek."
 Here was a dilemma. "Well," said the white man, "there's only one thing to do. You must get another license. It is just $3 thrown away."
 Uncle Joe took the paper, read it and put it in his pocket.
 "I'll done ask Mandy to have me," he said, "foh I don't think dar's $3 difference 'tween dem ladies."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.
