Look Out

Watch your ten dollar bills. See that they have no eagle with spread wings. The spread eagle ten dollar bills have been raised from one dollar bills.

The Independents are warning up. It is current rumor that there will be an opposition in the field this year. The republicans and independents are holding frequent caucuses.

AN OMISSION.

In our last issue we unintentionally omitted the name of Mr. J. H. Riddick from the list of the County Executive Committee. The Enterprise extends its apology to Mr. Riddick dick and promises to be more careful in the future.

A SHIRT FACTORY.

At the stockholders meeting of the Martin County Tobacco Warehouse Company Wednesday evening great enthusiasm was shown over the idea of a shirt factory, and over $2,000 was subscribed then and there.

Much success to the venture and may it be only a short time before the town is dotted with manufacturing plants.

VOL. VI, NO. 1.

The Enterprise enters on its sixth year with this issue. Vol. VI, No. 1, is the way it looks on the first page.

We have put in that press we were talking about last year and it is working nicely. There has been a great improvement made in the typographical appearance of our sheet.

Now that we have that press and are in a position to print the paper in a hurry, and in nice shape, we need more subscribers, and need the money that is due us by some of our old ones.

THE FUTURE OF THE SOUTH.

The future of the South is as sure as the promise of the rainbow. The people are in possession of the sources of their wealth, and no syndicate nor corporation, however strong or greedy, can dispossess them.

The cotton spinner in Europe is losing money every day he turns a wheel. And but for the presence of pauper labor, he would, under present conditions, be forced to close his business for all time.

It looks now that the manufacturing interests of this country, especially of cotton and of iron, is approaching a crisis never before experienced.

The Southern people are in possession of the necessary resources for manufacturing purposes. They have the land and the labor, and the capital and the energy to work; who shall stand in their way?

Y., "but when all other remedies failed, we saved her life with Dr. King's New Discovery.
