The Three Systems.

We have three systems of railroad running through North Carolina, each great in its way, and each having its different characteristics. The Coast Line is the oldest of them all and has made more money than either of the others. It has never gone into the hands of a receiver, but has made a great deal of money for its stockholders. It is not broad-gauged in its policy, but lives, moves and has its being for itself alone. It runs through a fine section of the State but has never done anything for the development of the country along its lines. The Atlantic Coast Line towns have prospered because of their own push and energy and not on account of any special sympathy or help from the railroad. There are few, if any, public institutions on the Coast Line, though the section it traverses is above the average in intelligence. It cares little for the comfort or convenience of passengers, running few local trains and they for the most very ordinary. It has made some effort to capture the Florida travel and puts all its emphasis one or two through trains. It has done a tremendous business in fruit and vegetable hauling, and here is where the Coast Line is seen at its best. The Seaboard is the peoples road. It is nearer to the average North Carolinian than any other. It has advertised the State widely and at Southern Pines it has expended much of its energy and means. The Seaboard has always been accommodating and reasonable. Its Officials are extremely courteous and keep up the beautiful traditions of the old South. It gives excellent service, and, unlike its sister, the Coast Line, it is willing to share its profits with its patrons. Through the State there is the kindest feeling among the people for the great Seaboard system. The Southern has been more roundly abused, but has done more for the South than all other roads combined. It is the great developer. It has built thriving cities along its lines, and fosters every industry that helps to add to the wealth and population of the towns it touches. It is not afraid to "plunge" and creates traffic by its very daring. It runs more trains and finer trains than any other road in the South. However it "oppress" those who complain at its policy, we are compelled to confess that the Southern Railway has been by long odds the greatest factor in making Piedmont North Carolina the most attractive and the wealthiest section of the State.—Charity and Children.

Graham County jail at Clifton, A. T., is the strongest jail in the world.

Killing Out Cut Worms.

There are six kinds of cut worms in the South, and as soon as it is warm enough for vegetables to grow in the garden they will begin their work of chewing down plants. They will do most of this work in the night, hence their name, agrotis clandestine. Let every farmer provide himself with a pound or two of Paris green or London purple, and he can greatly check them. Take twenty pounds of wheat bran and mix with it one pound of Paris green, having Paris green and bran dry; then add enough sorghum syrup to sweeten the bran, and add a small quantity of water. The bran should have enough moisture to make it adhere. Make the poisoned bran into balls with the fingers, as there is no danger in handling it, and drop a ball not as large as a marble every foot or two, near the cabbage or other plants. The worms will come out at night and attack the poisoned bran and that will be the last of them. Keep chickens away from the garden when this poisoning is going on, or early in the morning go over the garden and gather up the balls to be returned to the garden or corn field the next evening.—Southern Agriculturist.

The greatest sorrow may be but a small price to pay for enlarged sympathy.

Character Building.

What is it we all have in common no matter what our environments? Life that glorious opportunity to be, to do, and to grow, is ours. Life, with all its possibilities, the greatness of which we have not dreamed, is actually slipping by without our cognizance, because we are so occupied with the things which we think make us unhappy and which have to tremendous proportions, been magnified by our own vision.

What matter if others are rich or famous, so long as we have the one great chance in life which over shadows all these things, and is the only thing which will stand the test of time? In a few years death will claim the rich and they must depart, leaving that for which they have labored all behind. But the character goes on forever.

Happiness being a condition of the mind, yours is the power to place happiness there by creating this condition, which you can do solely by your thoughts.

Thoughts which cause unrest or worry, you must cast out. This is not easy for those who have been accustomed to allow themselves to be constantly annoyed by these things.

Remember, first to place character above all else, for there is nothing to be compared with. And let me say, no matter what else you have in life, this you will acquire. This determination will alter your frame of mind, and when firmly fixed, will change the appearance of conditions and surroundings.

All thoughts which are not character builders you must banish, and you must view everything in this light. "This cannot be done at once, and is only achieved after many trials.

Always see what you have to be thankful for when depressed or unhappy. This mental inventory will make lighter any load. Don't worry about anything, for it does no good and only lessens your opportunity for helping yourself.

If you are character building there is nothing that can come to you which cannot be used as a step on ward, if looked at in the right light, and anything which will place you a step further cannot bring harm.

Always look on the bright side of everything, for there is always a bright side to everything if we will but see it.

Cast out all thoughts of anger or rage, and never allow yourself to lose your temper.

School yourself in conquering fear of all description. To him who builds character there is nothing to fear. And just in proportion as obtain this mental balance you will find happiness everywhere and life will become a glorious thing, instead of a drudgery.—New York Weekly.

Terrific Race With Death

"Death was fast approaching," writes Ralph F. Fernandez, of Tampa Fla., describing his fearful race with death, "as a result of liver trouble and heart disease, which had robbed me of sleep and of all interest in life. I had tried many different doctors and several medicines, but got no benefit, until I began to use Electric Bitters. So wonderful was their effect, that in three days I felt like a new man and today I am cured of all my troubles." Guaranteed at S. R. Bigg's drug store.

A mans position in the world depends on his purpose.

Saved by Dynamite

Sometimes a flaming city is saved by dynamiting a space that the fire can't cross. Sometimes, a cough hangs on so long, you feel as if nothing but dynamite would cure it. Z. T. Gray, of Calhoun, Ga., writes: "My wife had a very aggravated cough, which kept her awake nights. Two physicians could not help her; so she took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which cured her cough, gave her sleep, and finally cured her." Strictly scientific cure for bronchitis and La Grippe. At S. R. Bigg's drug store, price 50c and $1.00; guaranteed. Trial bottle free.

Modern Banking.

All the banking and all the restrictions of the federal and state governments may deem necessary to throw around the State and national banks for the protection of the depositors and creditors seem to be of no avail. Whenever an official of one of these institutions wants to steal the funds he seems to have no trouble in doing so. Not only can he steal and pilfer all he wants, but he can so doctor the books and hoodwink the director and bank examiner that they cannot find out anything about his stealings until he chooses to come forward and give them information as to the real condition of the finances which they are supposed to keep watch over. It seems that there is but one safeguard against embezzlement of bank officials these days and that is the honesty and integrity of these officials. There is nothing in state or federal laws and no means in present intricate system of book-keeping to detect wholesale stealing of bank officials.

About the only way to make banks perfectly safe is to keep the funds and the books locked up in the vaults so that none of the officials can get their hands on the one or their erasers on the other. The idea of a bank official being able to steal a million and a half of cash without the directors' knowledge, whose duty it is to see that he does his duty and is honest, is inconceivable. The Milwaukee bank affair reminds us of some things which happened in bank circles in this state in recent years only in the latter cases the directors did not come forward with money to make good the stealings, and the officials who were the rouges did not stand and face the music but they and the directors let the fall as far as possible on the widows and orphans and other unfortunates whose money happened to be entrusted to them for safe keeping.—Wilmington Messenger.

A Creeping Death

Blood poison creeps up toward the heart, causing death. J. E. Stearns, Belle Plaine, Minn., writes that a friend dreadfully his hand, which swelled up like blood poisoning. Bucklen's Arnica salve drew out the poison, healed the wound, and saved his life. Best in the world for burns and sores. 25c at S. R. Bigg's drug store.

The Child's Bath.

In the May Delicator Dr. Grace Peckham Murray gives some suggestions in regard to the child's bath, which will be appreciated particularly by young mothers: "The ideal bath-tub for cleanliness is of glass but is not practical in the ordinary house. It is very heavy, and is liable to be chipped or cracked or broken. For the tiny baby, a foot-tub or a large dishpan of enamel ware, which is not expensive answers very well. There is a great variety of opinion in regard to the giving of a child's bath. Those who believe in cold baths recommend a very low temperature, and think that it toughens and hardens the skin, and that even the child of months should be dipped into a cold bath then rolled up in a blanket without further drying. Others think that the bath should be given very hot. Certainly for cleanliness this is necessary. The depth of the water is recommended by some to come to the navel of the infant. It is better, I think, and the child is less likely to take cold, if he is covered up to the neck with the water, which then him about like a garment. I also think that for a very young child the water should be very warm—certainly not under 85 degrees. The wash cloth is either of soft linen or cheesecloth and should be fresh every day. It should be boiled and dried in the sun after using. This is important for the adult, and much more so for the tender skin of the baby which is more susceptible to impurities. Sponges should not be used, as it is impossible to keep them perfectly clean. The temperature of the room in which the bath is given should not be below 70 degrees.

The Czar's Day of Judgment.

That the welfare of millions should hang upon the will, whim, and word of a single individual—and this individual walled away from all real knowledge of the people's condition and natural wishes, is an anachronism of tragic proportions—an anachronism which leads to deplorable assassination on the one side, and on the other to such hideous massacres of the confiding innocent as took place in St. Petersburg, on Sunday, January 22, 1905.

In all history of man no more pregnant opportunity was ever offered a sovereign than was offered to the Czar Nicholas when his people came to him, not with swords and guns, but bearing a petition carrying the sacred ikons; and pictures of the Czar, and following a cross. The humblest Turk is protected in presenting a petition; but the White Czar, the beloved Little Father, allows his petitioning subjects to be slaughtered like mad dogs!

The psychologist and the philosopher can find a score of explanations of the conduct of the troubled, perplexed, and wrongly advised Czar on that day of judgment for him and for the exploded system of government which he represents. Yet it remains true that, strive as he may to undo the awful effects of his action, on January 22nd the doom of the Russian oligarchy was sealed. Through whatever slow or rapid processes, by means of whatever wise concessions or hysterical convulsions, Russia from now on will advance painfully, perhaps with pitiful reactions toward some modern and rational form of government. The new government may or may not retain imperial forms, as in Japan. The danger is that the blind brutal, stupid measures of repression, the grinding system of imperial uniformity, may so inflame the people that fearful reprisals and chimerical schemes of reform will take the place of wise and orderly measures, and that the "man on horseback" may, for a time, stand in the path of progress—April Century.

Strictly Genuine

Most of the patent medicine testimonials are probably genuine. The following notice, recently appeared in the Atchison (Kan.) Globe: "Joe Tack, a well known engineer, running on the Missouri Pacific between Wichita and Kiowa lately appeared in a big one, with a picture, and when he was in this office to-day, we asked him about it. He says he had terrific pains in his stomach, and thought he had cancer. His druggist recommended Kodol and he says it cured him. He recommended it to others, who were also cured." Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat and cures all stomach troubles. Just as surely as the sun shines your stomach can be brought back to its originally pure condition and life sweetened by this lasting and truly the greatest digestant known. Public School Gardening.

A comparatively new and interesting extension of the work is its introduction into public schools where it was a prominent success from the start. Already the day of experiment is past, — nature-study and gardening are becoming important factors in educational circles and an effort is being made to bring them within reach of every child. Boys and girls are becoming more and more interested in this attractive work, which takes them out of themselves, out of doors, and into closer and more sympathetic relations with one another. The purpose, primarily, is to teach children how to plant and grow flowers and vegetables by permitting them to do the actual work, so that they may have such practical knowledge of farming as to be able to make a living from it should the need and opportunity come. In addition, they get instruction and exercises which help them morally mentally and physically. Each child is given its own garden—about nine by twelve feet—on the condition that the holder must work faithfully and must not trespass upon others. It is an inspiring sight to see these little ones cultivating the ground that it may bring forth a beautiful flower or a useful vegetable, and, above all, to realize that they are privileged to breathe fresh air and to look up to nature's God through long hours of glorious and health-giving sunshine. The hope is indulged that this cultivation of the soil by the children will instill into their hearts such a love of outdoor life that many will turn their feet countryward and seek a living upon farms rather than remain to find employment in the already overcrowded offices, shops, and factories. Waiting for Something to Turn Up.

In this twentieth-century no habit is more reprehensible than procrastination. But how many young men are idling along in their mediocre position waiting for something to turn up? Nothing ever "turns up" in this world. If it does it is more likely to be damaging than beneficial. It is the duty of every one of the world's workers to make things turn up for him to use every ounce of his ability and available energy in the development of his surrounding.

This is the difference between the life of the city and the life in pastoral villages and towns, here strenuous example is in constant evidence, there it is peaceful; quiet and everything invites to repose and stagnation.

How often in the commercial world a young man wastes his good years in unproductive labor attended by comparative ease because he was waiting for luck to turn something up for him. At the same time his firm was begging for ideas and experimenting with suggestions that would place them in the lead of competitors. Don't loaf! Don't wait for anything better, seek it, and seek it ardently! Be strenuous!—Selected.
