Mr. G. W. Fowler, of Hightower, Ala., relates an experience he had while serving on a petit jury in a murder case at Edwardsville, county seat of Cleburne county, Alabama. He says:

"While there I ate some fresh meat and some souce meat and it gave me cholera morbus in a very severe form. I was never more sick in my life and sent to the drug store for a certain cholera mixture, but the druggist sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, and Diarrhoea Remedy instead, saying that he had what I sent for, but that this medicine was so much better he would rather send it to me in the fix I was in. I took one dose of it and was better in five minutes. The second dose cured me entirely. Two fellow jurors were afflicted in the same manner and one small bottle cured the three of us." BACKGROUND OF THE EYE. A European physician has succeeded in photographing it. According to a German Exchange the assistant of the university clinic of the Royal Charity Hospital, Dr. Walter Thormann succeeded in solving a problem which had received much attention from many others before him, but with little or no success. He has managed to photograph the background of the eye and obtain good pictures of it, too. His invention represents a material improvement in the ophthalmoscope invented by Heimboltz in 1850. The latter, however, only permitted viewing the background of the eye. The fact that all attempts to photograph the interior or the background of the eye had remained fruitless so far was due to the peculiar construction of the eye. It is difficult to light up the interior to such an extent as to enable one to take a photograph of it, and even in the use of strong sources of light the exposure would require so much time that the eye would have to be fixed, which would greatly inconvenience the patient. Now Dr. Thormann has constructed an apparatus with which he has succeeded in photographing the eyes of animals, especially cats.

No Chango in Amazon Region. United States Consul Ayme at Para, Brazil, sends a note of warning for the benefit of those who think there is a golden field for exploitation in the Amazon region of South America. "I despair," says Mr. Ayme, "of finding language strong enough to express the utter and absolute hopelessness of success that await any of those unhappy enough to attempt to make even a bare living on the banks of the mighty Amazon. Do not say that the acquisition of a fortune or a competence is difficult, doubtful or impossible; I say that such miserable existence as would disgust a Digger Indian would be hardly obtainable by one man in 10,000 of such as are thinking of coming here. It may be that there are places in Brazil where colonists might do well, perhaps, but I do not know of any such places. The rubber trees, Mr. Ayme says, are widely separated and they can only be reached by forcing one's way through a thick-matted almost impenetrable swamp forest which produces very little food for human beings.

Cases of Insanity. An alienist and a publicist were dining together. "What would you imagine to be the chief cause of insanity?" the alienist asked. "Alcohol," said the publicist. "Right," returned the other. "A census has been made of 136,000 lunatics, and it has been found that 18,230 of these went mad through drinking."

What were the other causes of insanity among them?" said the publicist. "Well, there was overwork. There was love. There was old age. There was sunstroke. But these causes were insignificant in number beside alcohol. Love, for instance, had brought on 8,224 cases of insanity; overwork, 761; sunstroke 1,687."

"Any strange causes?" "Oh, yes; there was dyspepsia; there was fright; there was disappointment; there was joy. One man went mad over the loss of his foot in a railway accident, another over the loss of inheritance of a large fortune; a third over his wife's death. Among the 136,000 persons we have been discussing, 3,796 were victims of some sort of religious mania—of Buddhism or Taoism, or Blavatskyism.—Washington Post.

English Milk Drying Machine. The Just-Hig-maker milk drying machine is extensively simple. The cylinders are heated by steam to a surface temperature of about 230 degrees Fahrenheit. They are separated from each other about one-eighth of an inch, and revolve inversely, making about six revolutions a minute. The milk to be dried is fed continuously upon the revolving cylinders and, passing between them, is spread in a thin, uniform layer upon the surface of each cylinder. The milk solids are then removed in continuous sheets as the cylinders revolve by stripping knives held in contact with the cylinders. By this process milk is reduced to dryness in less than thirty seconds. The sheets of dry milk are afterward pulverized by being passed through a sieve.—London Engineer.

Infant Marriages. According to a recent census report, 13 boys and 187 girls under one year old were married in India during a single year. The record during the same year for marriages of children under five years was 2,297 for boys and 3,534 for girls. As a consequence of this state of affairs there were at the time the census was taken twenty-two widows less than a year old and some 300 less than five years old. The evil results of this system have been so extreme and alarming among certain of the Hindu castes that a bill has lately been drafted in the province of Baroda which limits the marriageable age at 18 years for boys and 14 for girls.—Harper's Weekly.
