

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know It.

How To Find Out.
Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.
There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

BUSY SHOPPING DAY

We met at a hotel, and I thought her one of the most charming women I had ever seen.

Refined and almost hyper-sensitive, she struck me at once as being a woman of breeding and distinction. Yet on the few occasions, when, as our acquaintance ripened, I visited her at her smart and elegantly appointed flat, I felt an instinctive aversion to the friends and acquaintances I met there.

Of her people she seldom spoke—her parents were dead, she told me, and her husband was abroad, but might be home again at any time.

She was always exquisitely dressed in the latest fashion, and money seemed abundant with her. She was an adept shopper, quick at knowing what she wanted and quicker still at seeing it, and I was very glad she offered to pilot me through the difficult mazes of the winter sales.

We sat one evening arranging what we were to buy.

"It is far better to go now when the first rush of the sales is over," said Mrs. Vereker. "I went the first three days myself, but the crowd was awful, and there are still plenty of things to be had."

"Did you pick up many things?" I asked.

She laid down the list she was making and stared at me in dumb amazement. Then her face cleared.

"Yes—no, not so much. Let me see; I bought this tea-coat and some hats and my new gray coat—that is all, I believe."

She continued the list, and at last I rose with a sigh of deep relief.

"I'll call for you at nine tomorrow, and we'll get Norman to lend me his motor."

"Yes, do," she said. "I love a motor—we can go to double the number of shops and spend the whole morning looking around until we find exactly what we want."

The next morning I called for Mrs. Vereker and found her waiting.

"Won't you find that coat too hot?" I asked as we reached the first of our shops, and I slipped off my own heavy motor coat.

"No, I love it," she replied; "I am never too warm."

I bought my coat and selected some lace, and went on to—, where I chose a few modest and one or two expensive blouses, then we went on to a third and last shop. While I was choosing some ribbon in the multi-colored ribbon department, Mrs. Vereker said to me:

"I am just going to the handkerchiefs; I will join you in the fur department—you are going there?"

"Yes, I shan't be long."

"Nor I," she answered; "I am very tired." I had finished by purchases when she came back.

"Are you ready? I am feeling so faint. Do you mind hurrying?"

"I'm just ready," I said, "this very moment," and I put my hand in my purse to get my purse. There was no purse there, and I gave a cry of dismay. "Mrs. Vereker!—my purse!—it's gone—and I had £25 in it. I had it a moment ago—I must have put it down in the ribbon department."

"Let me pay," she began—but I interrupted her.

"Nonsense, it can't be really gone—and I almost ran to the ribbon department."

I found the shopwalker and the assistant—but no one had seen it, and baskets of ribbon were hastily searched without result.

I went back disconsolate to the fur department.

"I am awfully sorry to have kept you," I began.

"Pardon me, madam."

A grave-looking man in a frock coat stood near me and laid his hand firmly on Mrs. Vereker's arm at the moment she was stepping into my motor.

"What do you mean?" she stammered. "How dare you? Cannot you see I am ill and wish to go home at once?"

I sprang to her side. "Never mind about the wretched purse," I said to the man. "This lady is not well, let her go home, and I will come back about the purse."

The man took no notice of me, but bending to Mrs. Vereker said something that made her step suddenly back and stand by his side. Then, to my utter amazement, shaking obviously from head to foot, and without even looking at me, she turned into the shop and I followed in bewildered dismay.

It was soon over. A few minutes in a private room and two female searchers had taken the heavy coat, far heavier now with the lace and fur and flowers and blouses that were marvelously fastened in its ample folds. Under her cloak and attached to her waist by firm hooks hung several furs and many pieces of costly lace.

Mrs. Vereker, white as death, showed no sign of what she must be feeling, but looked in front of her with a dazed, set face, while I slipped outside to the waiting man. He was talking to another shopwalker, who, luckily, knew me well.

"What is it?" I asked. "Is she a thief?"—a silly question he answered at once.

"One of the worst shoplifters in London," he said laconically, "and yet we've never been able to catch her. Her husband is doing six months now for the very same thing. She knew you were known here, madam, and brought you to shield her."

"But how did you find her out to-day?" I asked, aghast, "and what did you see her take?"

"Something that belongs to you," he said, as he gravely handed me my purse.—R. Neish, in London Daily Mail.

A Literary Genius.

I've heard, remarked Jimmy O'Shay, Dat lit-er-a-choor doesn't pay, But I'm glad dat I am A lit'ry man— For I've made thirteen cents to-day.

Sure.

Jiggs—You look worried lately. Why don't you join the Don't Worry Club? Jiggs—I belong to it now. I'm be hind in my dues, and I'm almost worried to death for fear they'll put me out.

No Wonder.

The Man—What makes the kid with the cap on talk with such a peculiar accent? The Boy with the Derby on—Aw! he can't help it. His fader is an Irish comedian, and mudder sings coon songs in vaudeville.

It Just Suited Him.

Mr. Nicks—So you sold that estate to the Susan family, did you? Why, she said she wouldn't take it, because it would be impossible to get any water there. Partner—Well, I sold it to her husband, and he said that was just the reason why he wanted it.

He Knew It.

Yes, Mr. Gush, the man I marry will have to be a hero, bold and absolutely fearless. Undoubtedly, Miss Oldgirl.

Two of a Kind.

Get Off Cheap He may well think, he has got off cheap, who, after having contracted constipation or indigestion, is still able to perfectly restore his health. Nothing will do this but Dr. King's New Life Pills. A quick, pleasant, and certain cure for headache constipation, etc. 25c at S. R. Bigg's drug store; guaranteed.

A Difference.

Wantsa Noe—I heard you married a wit, w? Lunny Henpeck—No; she married me.

His Business.

Eaton Spayce—I heard there was a fight here last night, and I came to see about it. Hotel Proprietor—Who are you? Eaton Spayce—War correspondent for the "Nickelout Magazine."

Swift Punishment.

Mrs. Jane—What did you think when you heard me sing that new song? Hubby—Oh, I thought the execution was great. Mrs. Jane—What do you mean? Hubby—Oh, I mean you killed it.

Not as Usual.

Blanche (indignantly)—He wa snot himself. Will—No; he wa sober. Man absorbs knowledge as a sponge does water, and like a sponge he needs an occasional wringing out.

REFLECTIONS

About all the suburbanites raises in his garden is blisters.

Some men's ideas of charity is to contribute to a campaign fund.

The new woman was a failure because there were no new men to match.

The average man has a better opinion of himself than the Lord has of him.

It is easier for an orator to make a speech than it is for the speech to make him.

When a man flatters you put on your spectacles and look around for the ax he has to grind.

No Cordella an indulgent husband doesn't always come home early. Sometimes he's too full to get home.

After walking home from the race-track a man is in the humor to sneer at his wife for taking chances on the prize cake at a church fair.

Swim Across Atlantic.
The whales that swim about the islands which lie off the coast of Norway and Finland, in March and April, travel immense distances. In May they turn up at the Azores or even at the Bermudas and sometimes pay a visit to the Antilles. They swim fast, for in June they are back again off N-way. Some of these whales have been known to bring back evidences of where they have been, for harpoons of the peculiar kind used off the coast of South America have been found stuck in them.

The Skye Crofters.
During the crofter disturbances in Skye a British gunboat was sent up to Portree, having on board, among other people, the sheriff of Inverness-shire, Mr. Ivory. A clergyman who sympathized with the crofters took for his text on the following Sunday the words from Kings 10:22: "Once in th' y'ears came the navy of Tar-shish, bringing ivory and apes and peacocks."

Seven Inch Extension Ring.
A Philadelphia girl has what is apparently an ordinary four-coil serpent ring. It is, however, provided with an infinitesimal number of tiny joints which are only discernible upon the closest examination but which permit the ring to be extended into a spiral several inches in length. The ring is over 50 years old and was made in France.

A Tiny Boat of Pearl.
A jeweler in Turin has made a tiny boat of a single pearl. The hull is finely shaped, and might serve as a model for a racing sloop; the sail is of beaten gold, studded with diamonds, and the binnacle light is a perfect ruby. An emerald serves as its rudder, and its stand is a slab of ivory. Its weight is less than an ounce, and it is said to have cost $5,000.

Petrified Milk in Austria.
In the making of petrified milk or galathin in Austria, 20,000 quarts of skimmed milk are used daily. The curd is precipitated by chemicals and mixed with formalin. This product is used as a substitute for horn, turtle shell, ivory, celluloid, marble, amber, and hard rubber.

Alaska Not so Desolate.
Alaska did $50,000,000 worth of trade with Pacific coast cities in a single year, dug $30,000,000 of gold, caught $8,000,000 worth of salmon, turned out coal enough to prove herself self-supporting in fuel, kept two tank ships busy exporting petroleum and operated at least 100 steamers on the Yukon.

Quinine in India.
The inhabitants of malarious regions in India can now purchase quinine at practically cost price. It is put up in small packages by the government and sold at the rate of 1 cent for ten grains.

A man's hair turns gray five years sooner than a woman's.

There are said to be 230 glaciers in the Alps over five miles in length.

Wives as Game Retrievers.
The Emperor of Annam uses his wives to retrieve the game he shoots. Sometimes a wife is drowned in swimming after a bird and sometimes one is accidentally shot, but the imperial harem is large.
