And Dino? How frightened he was when he found Tessa and the baby gone. Though half famished, he had no heart to eat the food he had bought with his scanty wages. He rushed into the street and through all the aleys and stairways. through all the alleys and stairways and stores. But no Tessa could be found. Finally, worn out and sick at heart, Dino went back to the cold, dismal little room, threw himself on the bed, and cried bitterly until he fell asleep.

The door opening wakened him. In an instant Tessa's arms were about his neck, and she was pouring into his bewildered ears the whole story. When she stopped a moment for breath, Dr. Winthrop gently ex-plained it all, and giving money to buy coal, promised that to-morrow he would come again. Was there ever such a Thanksgiv-ing Day as Tessa had—or such a din-ner as that they ate with Dr. Winthrop and Miss Maxwell in the clean, new rooms made ready for them? How Dino's heart nearly burst with joy when the doctor told him that, if he wished, he should be a gardener at the great Winthrop country place up the river. And Tessa and the baby should be with him, for there was a should be with him, for there was a little cottage covered with roses where Tessa could dream that she was back in Italy. "If he wished!" Why, so the blessed Madonna gave him the dream of his life.

Thanksgiving Party Game. A pretty game for very little guests is the "Mulberry Tree." It is a game of action, picturesque and having an accompanying rhyme for repetition. They can learn the verses in a few trials, for they are not so long as most kindergarten songs. Select two children from the company and let them divide the others into two groups, each leader alter-nately choosing a child. One of the leaders represents the "mulberry tree" and the other "the hill." The tree stands near one end of the room and the hill quite at the other. The tree's children are all mulberries, and they stand about her in a circle, each with one hand touching the shoulder, chest or back, and the child ahead. The remaining band of children are "birds," and they stand in a corner of the room at the end where the trees and berries are First the berries chant:—

Oh, mulberry tree, so green, so green, May we taste of your berries sweet?

And the tree replies:--

And they rush forward, while the berries, releasing their hold from the tree, run toward the hill in the ef-fort to touch her hand and get back to the tree before the birds catch them. As the chase begins all or only the tree and hill unite in crying:—

"Away, little berries, over the hill And back to the mulberry tree."

When all the "berries" have been caught they become "birds." As the catching pregresses the prisoners stand apart and wait for all of their side to be captured.

WORLD'S OLDEST INDUSTRY.

facture of Gun Flints Used in Africa and Asia.

Probably the oldest established by s in the world is at Brandon in Suf folk, where the manufacture of gur fints has been carried on as the sucfinits has been carried on as the suc-cessor to the prehistoric manufacture of arrow heads from the same mate-rial. It is estimated that for more than ten thousand years fiint working has been carried on at that spot; the only change made since those early days be-ing in the introduction of metal tools for working the flints in place of the stone and horn of the average. Gun flints are still in use in various parts of Asia and Africa, where the possession of percussion cartridges is forbidden to the natives. The average weekly production is still 150,000. weekly production is still all lock though in the days when the fiint lock was the universal arm millions were turned out weekly, since Brandon is noted as producing the best flints made.

Gun flints are not the only product however, for in Latin Europe the "strike-a-light" is still given the preference over matches, and of these al twenty thousand a week are manufac-tured for the Italian and Spanish trade During the Boer war 14,000 flints were issued to the British troops and were found valuable in emergencies where the ordinary match would not have served.

The strata of flint are in five layers on Liugheath Common, a mile south-east of the village. Each miner works by himself, employing the same meth ods as were followed by the earlier workmen, the ground being uncovered in layers or "steps," that the dirt may be carried away without the use of windlass and buckets.

The product is sold to the chippers who work at their homes in the village spite of the fact that each blow of hammer is from a different angle and is struck with various force, the workman instinctively guides the chisel and the flakes fall into the baskets in an almost continuous stream. are shaped with a chisel-like hamme on a block of iron and are then packed into barrels containing from 5,000 to 20,000 each.

Child Marriages in India.

More than 250,000 girls in India, seems of age or less, were already mar-

years of age or lees, were already mar-ried when the last census was taken, and of these necessarily many have become widows. Between 5 and 10 years the number of married girls was well over 2,000,000, between 10 and 15 years it had risen to nearly 7,000,000. Of course, to the girls in the first two categories marriage meant nothing more than a contract entered into for them by others, long before they themselves were capable of understanding it; many of them had been bound by engagements when they were still children in arms; some had even been be-trothed before they were born. Most of the widows of such tender years become so before they know what widowhood means. It is only as they grow out of infancy that they learn the sad life to which they are condemned, a life of misery which is inconceivable to people of western countries, yet is enforced by Hindoo customs. It is a life of hardship, of unmerited shame, of irksome penances and of wearisome attendance at religious functions.

Though the English law in India would recognize the legality of a re-marriage of these youthful widows, inexorable custom forbids it and its occurrence is rare. There were in India in 1901 nearly 426,000 widows under 15 years of age, of which nearly 20,000 were less than 5 years old.

Measuring Eye Jumps. We know that an eye, at ordinary reading distance, takes in about one inch of a line at a time, and that in reading a line of an ordinary book the eye makes five or six (more or less, according to the length of the line) distinct jumps. But how many know what direction the eye takes in making these jumps? And, as the movements are so very minute and rapid, how have they been studied? A very ingenious means has been employed, as follows: A beam of light is thrown upon the cornea of the eye under examination, and this beam is reflected by the cornea on to a photographic plate. As the eve moves in reading the reflected beam also moves, and upon developing the plate, which is also kept moving, a zigphotographic tracings shows that the eyes in turning back to pick up the next line have some difficulty in so do-

The longer the line of print the great-er the effort, and for this reason we may conclude that a narrow line is better for an eye than a long one, and if the line be much wider than the ordinary newspaper column there is greater effort involved.-Jewelers' Circular

- Whale Meat Instead of Beef. Newfoundland is developing a new industry, in the form of seiling whale meat in place of beef. One of the dealers says that the new meat tastes more like ventson than beef, and plans are already being made to ship some to England, where it is expected that it will sell for at least 12 cents a pound.

DOCTORS HAVE FAILED

RHEUMACIDE has cured thousands of cases of Rheumatism after all the doctors and all other means had failed. Rheumacide cured John F. Eline and others, of Baltimore, after the famous specialists of Johns Hopkins Hospital, the greatest hospital in the world, had failed. Rheumacide cured Austin Percelle, of Salem, Va., and D. H. Olmstead, the Norfolk, Va., contractor, after they had spent large sums on other remedies and the doctors had given up hope. Rheumacide cured Mrs. Mary Welborn, of High Point, N. C., of rheumatisms she had endured for 20 years. Rheumacide cured W. R. Hughes, of Atkins, Va., after the most famous New York specialists failed. There is a reason why it cures: Rheumacide is the latest discovery of mediating in very bad form linfammatory.
