State of North Carolina—County of Martin. I, J. G. Godard, cashier of the Bank of Martin County, do solemnly swear (or affirm) that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

Witness my hand and subscribed before me this 17th day of April, 1906.

WHEELER MARTIN, President. J. G. STATON, Vice-President.
J. G. GODARD, Cashier.

Lydia Sturdevant Sterling, a contract, became suddenly homesick at Milan, Italy, fifteen days before Christmas and started for Berkeley, Cal., at once. Just as her family had set down to the Christmas dinner she walked in, not having allowed a servant, who had opened the street door for her, to announce her. She caused European engagements to make the trip, and returned in a week.

Oak City News.

Miss Lottie Quincy is spending some time with relatives. She will return to her home, in Cole-rain in a few days.

Miss Minnie Staton, of Lawrence, spent last week with her sister, Mrs. J. F. Quincy.

Miss Rebecca White is visiting relatives in Weldon.

Miss Zula Colaway, of Texas, is spending some time with her aunt, Mrs. John White.

Mr. J. L. Hines, of Port Norfolk, Va., was here a few days this week on business.

Just What Everyone Should do.

Mr. J. T. Barber, of Irwinville, Ga., always keeps a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy at hand for instant use. Attacks of colic, cholera morbus and diarrhoea come on so suddenly that there is no time to hunt a doctor or go to the store for medicine. Mr. Barber says: "I have tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy which is one of the best medicines I ever saw. I keep a bottle of it in my room as I have had several attacks of colic and it has proved to be the best medicine I ever used." Sold by R. Biggs.

TO BUSINESS MEN.

In order to secure good and accurate service it is absolutely necessary for the copy of all advertisements to be changed or that of new ones, to reach this office not later than Tuesday morning of the week in which the ad is to appear in the paper. It will be an accommodation to us and will be very much appreciated if copy is brought in on Monday, when it can possibly be done by the business man.

Found A Cure For Dyspepsia.

Mrs. S. Lindsay, of Fort William, Ontario, Canada, who has suffered quite a number of years from dyspepsia, and great pains in the stomach, was advised by her druggist to take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. She did so and says, "I find they have done me a great deal of good. I have never had any suffering since I began taking them." It troubled me with dyspepsia or indigestion, why not take these Tablets, get well and stay well? For sale by S. R. Biggs.

To the Voters of Martin County.

I notice that Mr. E. J. Everett is on the list. He is all O. K. for the Legislature. Hon. C. C. Daniels sounds all right for solicitor. Why can't we voters of Martin county put in Mr. S. L. Ross, of Robersonville, for clerk of the Superior court? That will put a finishing touch to the Democratic ticket.

A DEMOCRAT.

When applied and covered with a hot cloth Pinesalve acts like a poultice. Best for burns, bruises, boils, eczema, skin diseases, etc. Sold by S. R. Biggs.

WANTED—Man or boy to operate bottling machine. We pay 20 cents per hour. Apply at once to the Williamston Bottling Works, Williamston, N. C.

San Francisco is permeated with an air of romance and adventure. No where may one turn without being reminded of the legends that have been woven around the forty-miners and their immediate followers. The names of the streets and of the business blocks, such as Kearney, Sutter, Montgomery, Dupont, Flood, Crocker and Sharon, bring to the mind of the visitor long forgotten stories of riot and adventure and of fortunes whose vastness once excited his wonder or made him incredulous. To read the words that are painted upon the street cars of San Francisco is to be carried back in fancy to the time when the city was peopled only by those who, having turned from all else that men hold dear, had gone in search of fortune and found it, always just as they were about to give up in despair and die of starvation or succumb to the hardships with which human endurance could no longer cope.

Serenading the Duke. One time the aged duke of Savoy, king of Cyprus and Jerusalem, was in love with the beautiful young Mme. de Valentinois, who had an estate at Monaco. Says Mme. de Creguy: "He often came to Monaco, without sound of trumpet or drum, so as to give her an agreeable surprise. Mme. de Valentinois did not care in the least for her neighbor, who, moreover, was a septuagenarian and humpbacked like a sack of oats. In order to put a stop to his visits she used to have his movements watched, and directly he passed her frontier he was saluted from all her batteries. Twenty-one guns was the precise number, sufficient to proclaim for miles around that his grace was taking an outing."

Fade of Queens. The queen of Roumania is a great collector of rare books, as well as being herself a poet, and Queen Wilhelmina of Holland boasts the finest collection of old lace in Europe.

STORY TOLD BY AN OLD MAP.

Made in 1792 and Lacks Many Newer Connecticut Towns.

Representative Albert Carlos Bates, librarian of the Connecticut Historical Society's library, has received from Mrs. Rowe, of Ohio, a descendant of Joel Allen, of Farmington, who was at one time a well-known engraver of this State, a map of Connecticut published in March, 1792, says the Hartford Times. The map was engraved by Joel Allen and printed in Middletown by William Blodgett—1792 Governor of the State in that year was Samuel Huntington, of Norwich. The map is of decided interest. It shows in its brown color and faded ink, its venerable age, though it is in a satisfactory condition of preservation. It is needless to say that in the Historical Society's library the map has found a resting place where its existence will be carefully prolonged, and where it will be safe from the irreverent fingers of the curious or the despoiling hands of the indifferent.

In the explanation of the marks and figures that are printed on the map, the publisher makes a distinction in those indicating the churches. There is a distinctive mark for the Episcopal churches. It is interesting to note that Mr. Blodgett uses the word "church," without the denominational qualifications to indicate the branch of Christianity to which it belongs, when indicating the offices of the Episcopal Church. A different sign indicates the Presbyterian, Congregational and Baptist churches. The offices of the Congregational and Baptist denominations are called meeting houses. These are the only church edifices marked on the map. If there were others in the State the publisher did not think it worth while to indicate them. The Little River, running through Hartford is shown. There is a tributary, named "Wood's River," which is now known as the north branch of the Little River. In the city of Hartford are shown one court house and two Presbyterian (Congregational) meeting houses.

When the map was engraved, New Britain, now a flourishing city of 40,000 people, according to the estimate of its hopeful citizens, had no corporate existence. It was not until forty years later that a section of the town of Farmington took the name of Shakespeare's river and was enrolled among the townships as Avon. Newington continued its allegiance to Wetherfield for eighty years after the map left the publisher's hands. South Windsor was still a part of the town of East Hartford were then extended far enough eastward to include Manchester, which is now a town of 13,000, and populous enough to assume the dignity of cityhood. Canton was still in the parental jurisdiction of ancient Sunbury, and Burlington was happily governed by the wide township of Bristol. Plainville was developing into a sturdy township under the fostering care of Farmington, and Burlington for nearly fifteen years longer hung on to the apron strings of Bristol. Rocky Hill formed the southern part of the town of Wetherfield, and the martial name of Marlborough was given to a small, peaceable district in the town of Colchester. This district developed into a town in 1803, and to give it sufficient area Colchester, Glastonbury and Hebron gave up part of their territory. Marlborough now has the distinction of being the smallest town as regards population in the State. The census men in 1900 could find only 22 persons living within its boundaries. When the town was incorporated it had a population of more than 700. It would be a pity if Marlborough committed town suicide. Hartland was one of the family of towns that then made up Litchfield county. It now belongs to Hartford county.

A classmate at Williams of ex-Governor Briggs, explaining why he always wore black stock but no collar, says the Governor was interested in a young man who was a slave to strong drink, and when urged to stop the young man said to the Governor in jest: "If you will never wear a collar again I will never drink again." "Agreed," said the Governor, and he never wore a collar again and the young man never took another drink.

Mamma—I thought there was an apple on the sideboard and I was going to give it to you, but it has disappeared. Fred—Well, you can give me something in the place of it, mamma, 'cause the apple wasn't much good anyway.
