

To Hurt Your Town.

Fight on the streets. Oppose improvements. Mistrust public men. Run the town down to strangers.

Go to some other town to trade. Refuse to advertise in your paper.

Do not invest a cent; lay out your money somewhere else.

Be particular to discredit the motives of public spirited men. Lengthen your face when a stranger speaks of locating in your town.

If a man wants to buy your property ask him two prices for it.

If he wants anybody's else, interfere and discourage him.

Refuse to see the merit in any scheme that does not exactly benefit you.

Run down your newspapers. Run down your officers.

Run down everything and everybody but Number One.

Talk in the barber shops and loafing places of how bad times are, of how everything and everybody is going to the "demnition bow-wows."

If a rich man gives you employment snarl at him; if he has no work for you snap at him; if he speaks to you grunt at him; if he pays no attention to you bite him.

If a poor man works for you swear at him; if he does not, be discourteous to him; if he asks you for work, offer him a nickel, if he refuses to work for you for lower wages than he can afford use your influence to keep him from working for any one else.

Say your town is the worst place in all Christendom; has meaner people overreaching business men, conniving neighbors, in fact, see no good in it, and speak no good of it, and you'll have a chance to grumble growl and swear to your heart's content, while better and more consistent men will get the rewards of the faithful and the plums of life.

We apologize for all mistakes made in former issues and say they were inexcusable, as all an editor has to do is to hunt news and clean the rollers and set type, sweep the floor and pen short items, and fold papers and write wrappers, and make the paste, and mail the papers and talk to visitors, and distribute type, and carry water, and saw wood and read the proofs, hunt the shears to write editorials, and dodge the bills, and dun delinquent, and take cussings from the whole force, and tell our subscribers that we must have money - we say that we've no business to make mistakes while attending to those little matters, and getting our living on hopper-tail soup flavored with imagination, and wearing old shoes and no collar and a patch on our pants, and obliged to turn a smiling countenance to the man who tells us our paper ain't worth a dollar anyhow, and that he could make a better one with his eyes shut.

to'd of how the railroad was begged and invoked to put on the train between Tarboro and Kanston and yet he had been on that train several times recently when he could not get a seat. He cited the Selma connection the great suit and fight and the obstinacy of the railroad in putting on this train and yet this train carrying passengers only one way was making a handsome return.

He then said the railroad was running the Spring Hope train either for price or patriotism, if patriotism why could they not extend it to a larger territory, why did they have such a peculiar fondness for the Nash County people, were our people not as good.

Mr. Kitchin went further to say that the people of this section had not sought this train through levity or frivolity as any lack of need for such service that present business conditions demanded there was a richer section in America than that through which the A. C. L. Railroad had its system of roads and that these petitioners represented the richest part of it.

The petitioners were very fortunate in having Mr. Kitchin present to represent them. He made a most telling presentation of their case.

Mr. Newell again attempted to reply to Mr. Kitchin but not doing him any injustice we cannot for the life of us repeat a definite statement that he made, when pushed for a definite answer he was either evasive or ignorant on the subject. He said that the management had offered to put on an extra freight between Rocky Mount and Plymouth which would make connection at Parmele and were willing to give this additional service.

Col. Lamb then related several experiences he himself had with the freight train and being left at Parmele, that freight trains ran all the way with same cars and equipment and yet were allowed to carry passengers for certain sections of the country when there were no connection for others, the inconvenience and cost of such a system and the total injustice of it.

Mr. W. T. Meadows told of his experience in making a trip to Richmond which required more than three days.

Mr. Martin speaking for the business interest of Plymouth, said that Plymouth with 2,000, Williamston with 2,000, Scotland Neck with 2,000, Halifax with 1,000, Robersonville with 1,000, Everetts with 500, Jamesville 500, Hamilton 500, inhabitants could not understand why they were discriminated against when towns of less business and inhabitants and fewer towns to inhabit were getting this double daily service. He said that the freight train would not meet the requirement.

Mr. Martin told of the crowded condition of the freight train that now carried passengers although it made no connections, ran on all kind of schedules and had poor accommodations, why would not a passenger train pay which correct all these evils.

Mr. Everett stated, in regard to the freight train proposition, that when that offer was made he and Mr. Fagan made a canvass of the petitioners and discussed the proposition only to find that it intensified the present bad condition, that it would allow two trains to pass here within an hour of each other both going the same way and none the other. He asked why the railroad insisted on giving us a train we didn't want and refused to give the one we asked for.

Mr. Newell replied that freight conditions and perishable freight demanded this train.

Mr. Everett replied that if the people gave them enough work to pay for this extra freight why couldn't they be allowed some concession in passenger service. That railroads had to look after freight traffics by penalty of law and force of competition. That the petitioners were asking for a passenger train and not a truck train.

The Commission asked if there were any others to be heard. There were none and the commission adjourned, leaving on the freight for Parmele which we are sure made connection one time in its existence.

The people of our section appreciate the consideration of the Commission in coming down here to hold its meeting. It saved much

FLUE CURING IMPROVES TOBACCOLIKE ROASTING IMPROVES GREEN COFFEE

Flue Curing Develops the Stimulating Aroma and Taste Found in Schnapps that Satisfies Tobacco Hunger

There are three ways used by farmers for curing and preparing their tobacco for the market; namely, sun cured, air cured and flue cured. The old and cheap way is called air cured; the later discovery and improved way is called flue cured. In flue-curing the tobacco is taken from the field and suspended over intensely hot flues in houses especially built to retain the heat, and there kept in the proper temperature until this curing process develops in the tobacco the stimulating taste and fragrant aroma found in Schnapps tobacco, just as green coffee is made fragrant and stimulating by the roasting process. Only choice selections of this ripe, juicy flue cured leaf, grown in the famous Piedmont country, where the best tobacco grows, are used in Schnapps and other Reynolds' brands of high grade, flue cured tobaccos.

Hundreds of imitation brands are on sale that look like Schnapps; the outside of the imitation plugs of tobacco is flue cured, but the inside is filled with cheap, flimsy, heavily sweetened air cured tobacco; one chew of Schnapps will satisfy tobacco hunger longer than two chews of such tobacco.

Expert tests prove that this flue cured tobacco, grown in the famous Piedmont region, requires and takes less sweetening than any other kind, and has a wholesome, stimulating, satisfying effect on chewers. If the kind of tobacco you are chewing don't satisfy, more than the mere habit of expectorating, stop fooling yourself and chew Schnapps tobacco.

Schnapps is like the tobacco chewers formerly bought costing from 75c. to $1.00 per pound; Schnapps is sold at 50c. per pound in 5c. cuts, strictly 10 and 15 cent plugs.
