—There are two ways of getting into a newspaper—"purchasing an interest and purchasing an interview." There is still another way—pulling the wool over the editor's eyes and getting in for nothing. This is a very popular form of entry.

—Mr. T. S. Graham returned last Friday from Winston-Salem where he went to be with his mother in her last illness. Mrs. Graham died Tuesday and was buried Thursday. Mrs. Graham was 69 years old. The body was laid to rest in the family burying ground.

—Mr. R. D. Carter received this week several nice horses and a pony, that were purchased by him last week while in Virginia. Among the bunch is a very nice mare that will very likely develop into a good trotter. These horses are for the firm of Carter & Biggs, and we understand that another one of pretty good racing qualities is on the way to Williamston. Messrs. Carter & Biggs issue a challenge to trot or pace against anything in the county.

—Dr. James S. Rhodes and Messrs. K. B. Crawford and J. S. Cook, three of our local sportsmen, spent the day yesterday hunting. The sport was very good and a large number of quail were killed. When ready to return, the horses having stood for some time in the cold were anxious to move and began plunging and rearing and while trying to get away the pole was broken and one of the horses was thrown. Luckily for the sportsmen Mr. J. L. Woolard drove up about this time in a hurry and brought the three gentlemen to town. The horses were not injured.

—A few days ago a rather bashful young woman went into a store carrying three chickens. She inquired the price of chickens and at the same time put them on the counter. The clerk didn't know the chickens' feet were tied, and asked if they would lay there. She bit her handkerchief and said: "No, sir; they are roosters."

—It is not easy to learn to keep a household account book all at once. A young husband gave his wife a neat little account book pretty bound and designed to be inviting in appearance. He also gave her fifty dollars, and said: "I want you to put down what I give you on this side, and on the other write down the way it goes, and in two weeks I will give you another supply." Two weeks later he asked for the book. "Oh, I have kept that account," said the young matron; "here it is." And on one page was inscribed: "Received from Fred fifty dollars," and on the opposite was this summary, "Spent it all."

A very pretty and notable birthday party was given last Friday afternoon at the home of Mr. Walter Anderson, to his son, Clyde, and little Miss Glenwood Ellington. The occasion was to celebrate the ninth anniversary of these little folks.

The afternoon was spent in playing games, and having a good time in general. There was a large number of their friends present to congratulate them and wish them nothing but sunshine and pleasure through life's voyage.

THE BRIDE

The little white bride is left alone
With him, her lord; the guests have gone;

The festal hall is dim.
No jesting now, nor answering mirth.
The hush of sleep falls on the earth
And leaves her here with him.

Why should there be, O little white bride,
When the world has left you by his side.

A tear to brim your eyes?
Some old love-face that comes again,
Some old love-moment sweet with pain

Of passionate memories?
Does your heart yearn back with last regret

For the maiden meads of mignonette
And the fairy-haunted wood,
That you had not withheld from love,
A little while, the freedom of
Your happy maidenhood?

Or is it but a nameless fear,
A wordless joy, that calls the tear
In dumb appeal to rise,
When, looking on him where he stands,

You yield up all into his hands,
Pleading into his eyes?

For days that laugh or nights that weep

You two strike oars across the deep
With life's tide at the brim,
And all time's beauty, all love's grace
Beams, little bride, upon your face
Here, looking up at him.
