Cause for Consternation

The inexperienced district school toacher had exhausted all other expedients for the maintenance of discipline. Going out into the school yard, she broke off a good-sized switch that was growing there and administered primitive punishment to Jimmy Kel-

There were strange expressions norrified amazement on the faces of the children, and when school was dismissed at noon they gathered in excited groups and talked in whispers. Finally the teacher's curiosity could stand it no longer. Calling Henry Thomas to her, she demanded the cause of the discussions.

"Why—why—why, teacher," he ammered, "that—that switch you licked Jimmy with—that was the tree we all set out last Arbor day."—Harper's Magazine.

HAIR CAME OUT BY HANDFUL

68 Lewis St., Nashville, Tenn. "About three years ago I had the malaria fever, and when I recovered my hair was falling out so that the doc-tor told me to cut it off. My hair came out by the handful, and I had dandruff so that I had to scratch it out every week, and my scalp itched so that I pulled my hair all down trying to scratch it. I tried — and — and — but they failed to do any good. At last I tried Cuticura Soap and Oint-

"First I combed my hair out, made a parting on the side and rubbed my scalp with the Cuticura Ointment. The next morning I washed with the Cuti-Soap and water, and continued until the third application gave a com-plete cure." (Signed) Miss Nellie M. Currin, Dec. 6, 1911.

Mixing the Names.

Mayor Bacharach of Atlantic City, at a dinner at the Mariborough-Blenheim, told of a summer girl:

On the beach in the moonlight," he said, "a youth clasped a maiden passionately to his breast and murmured: "'Do you love me, darling?"

"'Yes-ah, yes, Reginald,' she sigh-

"'Reginald?' said the youth in a startled voice. 'You mean Clarence, don't you, dear?'

'Smiling sweetly, she nestled closer. 'How stupid of me! I was thinking it was the week end.'"—Exchange.

Keeping Water Cold.

If you are in the habit of taking a pitcher of iced water to your room on retiring, try this: Procure a square pasteboard box (with lid), sufficiently large to hold your pitcher, and give it two or three coats of varnish on the outside, allowing each cat to dry thoroughly. Place your pitcher of water in this box on retiring, putting the lid on tightly, and you are sure of having cold drinking water any hour of the night.

apparently a cheerful carefree land, but has to dive under surface at times find an undercurrent like that of the Bosphorus itself. Old globe trotters are well aware that the surface cur-rent of the Bosphorus flows merrily from the Black sea down past the Golden Horn and into the Sea of Marmora, while far below there is a countercurrent going the other way and carrying the salter waters of the Mediterranean up to the doors of Costanta and Odessa.

In the city of Constantinople one would suppose that was war unknown. Doubtless the heads that are under a million red fezzes have some inklings of it, but they do not think very hard.
"You see," said a member of the Young Turk party, "this war is about the unluckiest thing that could have happened to the government. It was a short time ago, as history is written, since the revolutionists came ver from Macedonia and with very little ceremony lifted the sultan out of the chair of his fathers and deosited him in the provincial city of Salonica, where he remains even unto his place, and started a new regime.

URKEY in war times is mouth and handles visitors and intruders with consummate sang froid. A company of gendarmes, very badly drilled and extremely awkward in appearance, lines up at the curb while an officer walks along and kicks their feet into some sort of position.

Presently there is a clatter of horses' hoofs and three closed carriages roll up from the west. In them are women wearing white veils. There are also some children. These ar from the imperial harem.

The horses are unharnessed and led away, and then the carriages are trundled by hand to positions against the curb east of the mosque. This im portant operation is supervised by the chief eunuch, a coal black Ethiopian over six feet tall, clothed in the black broadcloth of an undertaker, but wearing the inevitable fez.

Meanwhile the minister of war is lounging in front of the mosque entrance and apparently cracking jokes with another brilliantly bedecked officer. At any rate both are laughing, and so are most of the other military dignitaries. In a few minutes these officers are lined up in a diagonal direction from the mosque steps.

The music of a military band is heard coming from the east. Then the sultan's bodyguard, a finely mounted and well set up body of cavalry, "They did not let him take even comes up in a column of fours. When business for them. THE SUMMER QUARTER ON UPPER BOSPHORUS

If you ask a Turkish business man he will tell you at once that the war is ruinous. He will tell you that there is positively no business at all. In the Grand Bazar the merchants sit cross legged and smoke cigarettes. They leap at a stranger like so many hun gry wolves and almost drag him into their shops.

We left Constantinople at 5 p. m. on Sunday. The regular sailing hour is noon, but the vessels are compelled to start now at an hour which will bring them to the Dardanelles in the early morning. They cannot pass at night on account of the mines. It is at the ancient gateway of the Hellespont that one first realizes that grim war is not far away from Constantinople. The forts are all fully garrisoned and the quiet discipline of military routine is in evidence.

A 24-hour run from Constantinople brings us to Smyrna, the key to Asia Minor, the queen city of Turkey's Asiatic possessions, situated in a place almost ideally planned for attack from the sea. The gulf runs inland 34 miles. It is bounded by bold mountainous headlands. Off its shores ile large islands, Mitylene and Chies, behind which an enemy's fleets can assemble unseen and make sudden descents.

"There is no business at all," said a Smyrna merchant. "It is true that Constantinople has been affected, but it is very little. People continue to go there. But here everything has stopped. Why, you can buy our best rugs at your own price. We can't sell anything. We give things away. What can we do?"

"We don't have the big caravans," said a Smyrna man, "and there is no business for them. The little cara-
