Notice

THE ENTERPRISE will appear next week on Wednesday morning, and all communications must be in the office by Monday at noon. This arrangement has been made to give the force a holiday. The following week, there will be no issue as is the custom, but any work will be taken and be sent out the latter part of the week following Christmas.

To make the heart of the Editor glad, send a check for a subscription in advance, or remember to renew at this Christmas time.

The Secretary of the Navy has not forgotten how to spill berry juice when Raleigh needs boosting. This time it was the home boys winning the High School championship.

Horace Kephart's description of the razor back hog in "Our Southern Highlanders" show an intimate knowledge of this product of the South. But his kind is fast disappearing in the sections where bacon is one of the chief concerns of the farmer. Standard breeds have taken the place of the razor back, which is found now mainly in isolated sections, or roaming in the woods and swamps without home or master.

"Best Year Since the War"

"The best year since the war," is a common expression in the Atlantic and Gulf states. The tobacco farmer in Virginia and North Carolina are getting top prices for leaf tobacco, thanks to the real competition, in spite of common ownership, between the buyers and the companies of the dissolved Tobacco Trust. The drought in Texas and Oklahoma cut short the Texas cotton crop a million bales and lifted the price of cotton. In Georgia two and one-half million bales were produced this year, which means, at 500 pounds to the bale, at the price of 14 cents a pound, $70 a bale, with $10 added for the cotton seed, from which is made the poor man's butter and the rich man's salad oil—$200,000,000 for Georgia's cotton crop; $1,120,000,000 for the fourteen million bales the South produces this year. The banks in the cotton belt show greater assets and deposits than ever before. The cotton factories are running full time, in spite of the wails of calamity their owners uttered while the tariff bill was pending. With the tariff bill settled, the currency bill soon to pass, freeing the smaller banks from domination by the larger, the way will be cleared for carrying out the administration program of trust legislation at the regular session of Congress. —Harper's Weekly.
