The Intruder.

Sir Arthur Sullivan, of the famous Gilbert and Sullivan combination, loved to hang about the back of the dress circle a few nights after his first performances. One night he was rather taken with one of his tunes, and started humming the melody, when an angry patron cried out: "Silence! I came here to hear Sullivan's music, not yours."

Beauty and the Child.

"People who are pleasing to look at have no idea of their power over the young mind. It is an odd trait in the child's character that while he will positively adore an ugly, inanimate object, such as a battered wooden doll or the mere remnant of a horse, he will not forgive ugliness in a human being. It seems to outrage his sense of fitness."—Anonymous.

What Man Escapes.

Women may have a sense of humor. But if a man wore a section of elevator cable around his neck, and fastened onto it a can-opener, a young monkey-wrench, an ice-pick, a whiskey-desk, a screw-driver and a sardine-can, he wouldn't have nerve enough to call the mess his vanity outfit.—Cincinnati Enquirer.
