HAT SHOULD DENOTE MOOD

Why and Wherefore of the Subject Dealt With at Length by English Writer.

I never put on a new hat without a certain feeling of pity for the mere man who can never enjoy the delicious thrill that it gives, writes J. M. in the London Daily Mail.

But there is much to be gone through before that triumphant moment arrives. For the business of choosing a new hat is fraught with nervous apprehension lest our choice fall upon the wrong shape or color.

Only moral cowards take refuge in perpetual black headgear. What, then, is it exactly that we feel within ourselves as we step into the open street for the first time in a new hat?

If the hat is an undoubted success, it gives a peculiar sense of elation—a knowledge that she is looking her best always makes a woman feel her prettiest.

Hats should be indicative of the moods of the wearer. Black for dignity, dark blue for sobriety, brown for calm days, red for hustling days.

The hat with the nodding roses denotes a gay midsummer mood, the "modest violet" toque makes a mute appeal to romance.

The dashing cavalier of a hat with sweeping plumes (none of your gilded travesties, but well-tourished billows, ostrich feathers) proclaims an adventure, while the Quaker gray toque with the floating veil goes with demure, downcast eyes.

But for real happiness give me the old felt hat that lives at the back of the wardrobe and has survived the "turning out" of many years. As we crum this old friend on to our head, with a pull at the brim to shade the eyes, the cool air of the uplands comes to meet us even as we reach for a stick and pass out through the open door on the road which leads back to the land of happy memories.

MARAT HONORED AS PATRIOT

Bloodthirsty Leader of French Revolution Interred With the Great Ones of the Nation.

From the destruction of the Bastille, 182 years ago, July 14, the commencement of the French Revolution is dated, and its sanguinary fanaticism has no representative of such odious repulsive syciness as John Paul Marat, who was assassinated in 1793.

By birth a Swiss, of Calvinistic parents, he had led a strange life for 47 years, latterly a sort of quack physician when the great national crisis brought him to the surface as a journalist and a member of the convention. Less than five feet high, with frightful countenance and malignant eye, he was an object of aversion to most people, but he had frantic earnestness and hesitated at no violence against the enemies of liberty, and so came to possess the entire confidence and affection of the mob of Paris. His paper daily clamored for blood and he desired every well-dressed person to be put to death. It was on July 14, four years after the fall of the Bastille, that Charlotte Corday stabbed him to death in his bath to avenge the fate of her friend, one Barbaroux. Marat's death was treated as a public calamity and his body was deposited in the Pantheon with great honors. —Chicago Journal.

Fight Locusts With Airplanes.

The locust plague in southern France is being fought with the aid of airplanes. The locusts have been devastated. The pests are hatching out in isolated spots on the great Crau plain, and each new "nest" gives birth to many millions of locusts. It is of vital importance to destroy the young insects before they are strong enough to fly far, and this is where the airplanes are proving so useful. Pilots now daily scour the whole of the Crau plain, flying extremely low. When they locate a breeding ground or "nest" of locusts directions are immediately telephoned to the anti locust headquarters at Miramas. If there is long grass near, petrol is poured on it and it is set afire. Otherwise the infested area is strewn with sawdust soaked in arsenic. This kills the locusts at once, and also any eggs that are unhatched.

French Courtesy.

In one of the smaller cities in central France used by a division headquarters during the winter of 1918, Alphonse, the barber, endeavored to learn to speak English. To this end he was diligently coached by numerous Yank dispatch bearers, sergeant majors and clerical workers, and Alphonse learned fast.

No less a personage than the commanding general of the division strode into the barber shop one day and demanded a shave in a hurry. Alphonse, who was tending a lowly enlisted customer, knew rank when he saw it, and rose to the occasion.

"Sairtainlee, mon general," he replied, bowing with the French politeness. "Siet down, mon general, an' you be nex beeg steef!" The general waited.

China a Flour Exporter.

At a time when there are so many appeals for funds with which to purchase flour for shipment to the Chinese famine victims, it is rather unbelievable that in normal times China produces sufficient flour for export purposes. Yet in 1920 almost six million barrels of Chinese flour were shipped to Europe. New mills are contemplated in the wheat growing sections. —Scientific American.

CARDUI HELPED REGAIN STRENGTH

Alabama Lady Was Sick For Three Years, Suffering Pain, Nervous and Depressed—Read Her Own Story of Recovery.

Paint Rock, Ala.—Mrs. C. M. Stegall, of near here, recently related the following interesting account of her recovery: "I was in a weakened condition. I was sick three years in bed, suffering a great deal of pain, weak, nervous, depressed. I was so weak, I couldn't walk across the floor; just had to lay and my little ones do the work. I was almost dead. I tried every thing I heard of, and a number of doctors. Still I didn't get any relief. I couldn't eat, and slept poorly. I believe if I hadn't heard of and taken Cardui I would have died. I bought six bottles, after a neighbor told me what it did for her.

"I began to eat and sleep, began to gain my strength and am now well and strong. I haven't had any trouble since. . . I sure can testify to the good that Cardui did me. I don't think there is a better tonic made and I believe it saved my life."

For over 40 years, thousands of women have used Cardui successfully, in the treatment of many womanly ailments.

If you suffer as these women did, take Cardui. It may help you, too. At all druggists. E 85

WHEEN SIMS GOT IN WRONG

Capitol Barber on Record as Making Bad Break to the Then Senator Harding.

The odds are 200 to 2 that the senators will say that Sims is the most popular barber in the senate barber shop. Sims has the cream of the senate trade and he has been in the senate barber shop longer than any one knows. He has become expert not only on shaving and cutting hair and massaging, but on political matters as well.

When President Harding was still a member of the senate he came in for Sims to do a little face work on him. Sims began shortly after the then senator took the chair, to talk about the dire effect on the senate of the Constitutional amendment providing for direct election of its members.

"Why, this direct election is sure a bad thing," said Sims in Mr. Harding's ear. "Why, the men who are here can't be compared with the men who were here 20 years ago."

Just about this time it dawned on Sims what he was saying and to whom he was saying it.

Probably his conscience was stirred by the fact that Mr. Harding's face was getting redder and redder as he tried to suppress his laughter.

"Oh, indeed, senator," said the stricken Sims. "I was speaking generally. I didn't mean nothing particular about it." —Los Angeles Times.

The "LITTLE GIANT" Bean Harvester

Is the Best Machine Built for Harvesting Soja Beans

The wheels and axle are the same as used on a mower. No tires to come loose, no wheel to dash out of shape, so your claims won't stay on. The body is equally adjustable from 4 to 12 inches from the ground, the beater weighs about 225 pounds and answers as a balance wheel assuring light draft. No matter how large your beans are, two 800 pound mules pull "The Little Giant" with ease. The shift lever on the left throws the beater in and out of gear without stopping your team. It is only 3 feet 3 inches from center to center of tread. Will work in a 3 foot row.

I guarantee it the most durable and lightest draft machine on the market. I also sell two models of the Pritchard Machines and two models of the Scott Machine.
