BOOSTING HOME INDUSTRIES

Following the awakening which has come as a result of the Made-in-Carolina Exposition, held at Charlotte recently, together with the wide publicity which attended that event, the business men of this section have reacted with much satisfaction to the Carolina Shopping List, published and distributed by the Observer Printing House of Charlotte.

The first edition of this shopping list comprises 10,000 copies and has been distributed through the Chambers of Commerce, merchants associations, libraries, civic clubs and commercial and manufacturing organizations. The reception of the first edition and the readily apparent value of the publication have resulted in the decision upon the part of the publishers to issue a second edition of 30,000 copies in the near future which will be more comprehensive than the first. The new shopping list enables the North Carolina consumer, retailer and jobber to purchase at home those articles which are manufactured within the two states in its classifications. Like the recent exposition, it is a revelation of the present state of development of the manufactures in the two states, and of the variety and quality of their products.

It is invaluable to the Carolina merchants in their new determination to keep Carolina money at home for the development of Carolina industry and the increasing wealth and prosperity of Carolina people.

Memory Fifty-fifty.

"Do you remember the time when your father drove a donkey cart?" The parliamentary candidate fixed his eyes and gazed thoughtfully at the interrupter. Then he replied: "As a matter of fact, I had quite forgotten the car. But I am thankful to see the donkey is still alive!"—London Tit-Bits.

Leprosy in Indians Rare.

Dr. A. De Matta writes in Brazil Medico (Rio de Janeiro) that in his 26 years of practice in Amazonian provinces he has seen but two of the Indians with leprosy. In prehistoric pottery figures from Peru there is no representation of any deformity suggest leprosy, although representations of other deformities are common and none of the early explorers mention leprosy among the natives.

Chaulmoogra Tree in California.

Steps have been taken to grow the chaulmoogra tree in the United States plant introduction garden, near Chico. The tree's oil has proved of great benefit in treating leprosy in Hawaii. It is a native of India. Seeds have also been sent to Florida and Maryland. Our California Correspondent, Los Angeles Times.

Woman Rules Empire.

The actual ruler of the Assiut empire, which comprises the new nation of Assiut, Egypt, is a woman. She is the head of the Assiut empire.
