WHY NOT REQUIREMENTS FOR CONGRESS

Before a young man is permitted to begin the study of medicine; the law; the church; or in fact, most of the other professions he must pass an examination to prove himself possessed of certain educational requirements regarded as a necessary basis of his practice in the event of his entering, actively into the calling of his choice. This is wise, but it would be wiser if those who seek to enter the most important, the most difficult of all professions, the profession of government had to have a basic knowledge before they were eligible to run for public office particularly of a legislative character. Every man who wants to run for Congress, for example, should be compelled to have as a background, other than years of experience on a farm or a thorough course in some agricultural college. The man from the city without a knowledge of farming ought to regulate for the American people. The excuse offered is that it represents the territory and the people that elect him but as a fact he cannot represent any section efficiently unless he knows the farmer problem. He must vote on tariff matters, on agricultural legislation, on measures that have almost a direct bearing on all classes of our citizenship, urban, suburban and rural, and he does so as matters stand with nothing to guide his action but a certain amount of horse sense. Horse sense is well in its way, but we have had too much of this horse legislation. A clever cannot rise higher than its source and legislative enactments never will rise above the intelligent knowledge that we possess of local branches. Let us have some standard of requirement before a man is eligible to run for the state legislature and for Congress.

NORFOLK FAIR, SEPT. 4th-9th
The Norfolk Fair Association will hold its fair this season September 4 to 9 inclusive and they will have a much larger display of agricultural industrial and mechanical exhibits than at any former fairs. They hope to have a large attendance from Eastern Carolina and if the bridge is completed by that time doubtless many will attend from this immediate section.

STORIES OF GREAT INDIANS

By Elmo Scott Watson

CAPTAIN JACK, THE MARTYR OF THE MODOCS

THEY were preparing to hang Captain Jack (Kintpuash), the Modoc chief. There was a harsh clanking of iron as he rose to speak for himself and his people. "Let me die like a man, not like a dog," he said, "I am not afraid to die, but I am ashamed to go this way, with my hands tied behind me."

As he stood on the scaffold at Fort Klamath, Ore., a zealous minister tried to comfort him. "You must not be afraid to die," he said. "You are going to a beautiful land where you will never want for anything." "Preacher," replied Jack, "this country right here is good enough for me. You say the other is a fine place and I suppose you want to go there. I'll give you 25 ponies if you will take my place. I don't want to go right now." The minister declined.

Captain Jack's death marked the end of a war that had cost the United States more than half a million dollars and 100 lives, white and red. Who was most responsible? No man can say, Captain Jack and his warriors murdered General Canby and Doctor Thomas, peace commissioners, who had come into the Indian camp under a flag of truce. Twenty years before a Californian named Ben Wright had massacred nearly 50 Modocs under a white flag and had become a popular hero for the deed. Among these was Captain Jack's father.

Captain Jack was hanged, but other Modocs with blacker records went free because they deserted him and joined the soldiers in hunting him down. At first he had protested at the plot to murder the peace commissioners. Then some of his warriors placed a squaw's hat on his head, a shawl about his shoulders and threw him to the ground. "Coward! Squaw!" they jeered at him. "You are not a Modoc. You will not die with a soldier's bullet. We will save the soldier that trouble. Springing to his feet he shouted: "I will do your coward's work even though it cost me my life and the lives of all my people."

The white man's history records Captain Jack only as a treacherous murderer. Had he been a white man, perhaps it would have pronounced him a martyr. Forced into an act which he abhorred; waging a war which he knew was hopeless; betrayed by his own men; walking in chains to the Indian's most disgraceful death—small wonder that he cried bitterly: "What chance for justice does the Indian have with you white men and your white man's law? None!"

WITHOUT STREET ADDRESS YOUR MAIL IS DELAYED AT OFFICE OF DELIVERY

The Dead Letter Office has been in existence ever since Ben Franklin started our postal service. Even then people addressed mail to Mr. Ezekiel Smithers, "Atlantic Coast," and expected Ben to know just where Zeke lived.

Perhaps they had Zeke's address in letters up in the garret, maybe a chest full of 'em, but then it was easier to let Ben hunt Zeke. Today people are addressing letters to John Smith, New York, N. Y., or Chicago, Ill., thinking Uncle Sam can locate him, which is just as incomplete as was Zeke's address of yore. The Postoffice Department asks you to put the number and street in the address. It helps you.

Trinidad Col.

How do you expect the Postal Clerk to know whether you mean Trinidad, California, or Trinidad, Colorado? ALWAYS SPELL OUT THE NAME OF THE STATE IN FULL IN THE ADDRESS.

"MORE BUSINESS IN GOVERNMENT"

This apt phrase was used in President Harding's first message to Congress and applies particularly in postal management where postmasters are being impressed with the fact that they are managers of local branches of the biggest business in the world.

HERE COMES A STRANGER!

Let's make our post office look neat. Mr. Postmaster, Straighten up the rural letter box. Mr. Farmer, Tidy up some, Mr. Rural Carrier. First impressions are lasting. Maybe Mr. Stranger, taking notice of these improvements, will come back, bringing you benefits. Start these with "POSTAL IMPROVEMENT WEEK" May 14.

PUT AN END TO THE DRIVES

While all this talk of adjustment in the air it might be well for the ordinary people those who come in contact only with the ordinary things of life from day to day, to readjust their common sense and put a stop to the continuous exploitation they suffer from as a result of the money raising fever. The readjustment of the "drives" certainly is in order. People are asked to contribute almost weekly for everything from the Society for the Protection of Spavine horses to the Benighted Weeping Babies of the Chocktocks of Passamaquaddy. The drain on the average purse for this sort of silly charity is tremendous. Sacrifice and helpfulness are all well enough in their way, but imposition should be checked. There are all sorts of stories recording the number of persons out of work to be read in the newspapers, but try to find anyone who wants to do any work and you have a job on your hands. Every city tells the same story—park benches filled with 50 men and the suburban newspapers filled with advertisements for men wanted for work in gardens and about homes, with no men to be found. The farms are pretty much in the same condition. True, the city non-descript is not of much value on a farm even so but there are plenty of good homes awaiting men who are willing to work and willing to learn. Woman labor is in the same condition. Help—we no longer dare to call them servant girls—is impossible to obtain at any price. In the meantime the drives go on. Many of them are operated on a fifty-fifty basis; the collectors getting as much as the cause, and sometimes more and the foolishness. Draw down the curtain on the drives. We've had enough of them.

SHOOTING AT BEAR GRASS

Mr. Stencil Jenkins, a young white man who works for Mr. James F. Terry near Bear Grass was shot on Saturday last week by Dawson Keel, who runs a pressing shop in Bear Grass on Saturdays. It seems that a dispute arose over some work done on a pair of pants and when Jenkins attempted to use a brick on the negro he was shot through the thigh, the entire load passing through his right thigh. Knox fed after the shooting but came the next day and surrendered to the officers. Jenkins is called "rough" by neighbors.

SEVERAL STILLS ARE DESTROYED

Sheriff Roberson, deputies Cornelius James and C. F. Page drove down to the Free Union section Wednesday and after several hours hunt found a still with seven barrels of beer. Soon another still was found but no beer. After this a stand was found upon which a still had operated earlier. The still was from all indications, a small copper one, and had been removed. Five barrels of beer however, were found standing near by. Very near to this point was found a still with eight empty fermenters but no beer. The hunt continued and soon a stand was found from which it still had been removed. Five barrels of beer, however, was found there.

All of the beer found was made from meal and the three stills captured were of the gas drum type. All stills, beer and other material were destroyed.

No one was seen at any of the plants as the news flies very rapidly by certain well known signals that they pass from neighbor to neighbor as the officers are approaching.

This section of the county is perhaps the greatest liquor section in our county. It was at one time considered that the colored people of that section were among the best in this part of the state, but quite a number of them appear to have gone into the blockading business.

FACTS AND FIGURES ON LAST YEAR'S TOBACCO CROP

Raleigh, N. C. May 4.—The phenomenal reduction of forty-two per cent was made in the North Carolina tobacco sold by farmers during the recently closed season as compared with the previous year. The average was thirteen per cent higher than 1920. There were only 177 warehouses active last fall as compared with 204 operated in 1920.

The total of 251,000,000 pounds of farmers' tobacco was estimated to have been produced in North Carolina last year and 241,682,000 pounds were sold on markets of this state of which 99.8 per cent was reported to the department of agriculture by the warehouses.

The resales of dealers and warehouses amounted to 43,760,000 pounds or 284,938,000 pounds total sales. The average prices were $24.57 for all sales and over $25.00 per hundred pounds for the first hand or producers sales. This was a considerable improvement over the $21.28 average for the 1920 sales.

Inquiries of the border markets indicate a minimum of 10,000,000 lbs. of tobacco going out of this state to be sold by farmers in excess of that coming in. All of the burley of Madison and adjoining mountain counties is sold out of the state. Danville is so far that it gets quite a large amount from the section.

The indications are for an increase in the acreage and use of fertilizers this year.

Is there need for cooperation among farmers?

This question has been thrust upon us not merely because certain farmers have sought recently to organize marketing associations for the sale of their farm products, but because of certain economic conditions which are more clearly being brought to light every day.

It is generally known by all people that the real producers of wealth, the farmers, are the poorest class. If you will compare the South with its superabundance of resources, its climate, its opportunities; to say nothing about hundreds of other advantages it has over the New England states we wonder why the South is poor and the New England States are rich. The principal reason is organization among the New England people against division among the Southern population.

Referring to a recent government publication that said that 26 per cent of the American people are farmers and that the get 15 per cent of the country's income we say that it should arouse every high school boy and girl to make some mathematical calculation for the preservation of our Southland.

We will take the state of North Carolina and compare it with Massachusetts. We are farmers and they are not but our government says that when we get 58c the Massachusetts citizen shall get $1.00. It must be admitted also that the Carolina farmers have more invested than the Massachusetts mill man. Suppose we should increase this ratio to a life-time basis and we will take the average life-time of the American citizen which is 41 1/2 years, and it will show that when the North Carolina farmer gets $680.00 per year for 41 1/2 years he receives the amount of $24,070.00 and the citizen of Massachusetts who would get $1,000.00 at the same time would make his life income $41,500.00 or $17,430.00 more than the farmer received.

Nor can the cost of living be put down as being higher in the North than in the South for the farmer has to pay as much for goods as any other class or profession. Living in the country he naturally does without a good many things and he gets many cheap food articles because he produces them himself but he has to pay more for store goods because he has to get them on credit.

His annual income is $580 ; costs him just that much to live and at the end of his life he has no more than when he started and his State and community remains poor. On the other hand take the other citizen. His income is $1,000; if the cost of living is $580 there is balance of $420 which we will call real wealth. Interest on this amount at six per cent and on this excess of each year's income would make him worth more than $50,000 at death. This wealth is not accumulated by the rank and file of the people, of course, but by the organized classes.

Our whole system seems to be out of balance. The organized interests have exploited the property and rights of the unorganized. And unless agricultural sections organize and put their income on a basis with other peoples they will gradually grow poorer and poorer in proportion with other sections gaining in wealth.

In our own state seven-eighths of the income tax is paid by the Piedmont section of the State where the tobacco is manufactured by organized capital and labor. Yet ours is a farming state and less than one per cent of the income taxes paid are paid by farmers.

There is no other reason for this unbalanced condition than that the farmers are totally dependent on others to pay them the prices they choose for their products and they do not choose to pay them reasonable profits other than one year in five.
