LIBRARIES

In the last issue of the University News Letter the Library question was extensively discussed. A study of our people will disclose the sad fact that they are not great readers. We have very few good libraries with most of them in the cities and large towns. In most places different forms of entertainments are taking the place of reading. The best time of the day for reading is usually taken up at the picture show and instead of going to bed to dream of a new thought it is a picture of some impossible love affair or family tragedy that has fired our imagination and not aroused our thoughts. We have simply used the eye and the other four senses are dormant.

If we read good literature and live news we become thinkers and are getting an education. But building a library is a long, hard job and it takes a five, wide awake person to handle it. Yet it is gratifying to note that the work in many sections of the state at this time, and if Williamston would get busy we could get one of these extension libraries with state aid.
