Hallo, Dear Folks) SIRE TO ATTEND A

The student who attends a state school comes in contact with the outside world more than a student in a church school. A church school is more like a large circle of friends. A pupil is greatly benefitted by coming in contact with so many people, b cause we soon learn to stand up for self; we get a general knowledge of the different natures, of people also. State school students have the advantages of better lectures and conceits. Certainly being a state school attracts famous men to the college These men make great speeches of different subjects. Good concerts are given for the sole benelt of the students.

Naturally, being alarge college offers better opportunities for working your way through school. Some may think that a church school has a. many ways of working through collegs, but this is not true. Because in a large college, there is much to be done, and many jobs demand many pupils. In a church school only a few of these positions are open.

hurch schools have a tendency of encouraging a feeling of selfishness to kindle in the hearts of students in regards to their individual sect. A feeling of this kind is the worst kind of cellishness. Many of our cruel war: were caused from the different opin ions of religion. States schools are n partial to any one denomination A man or woman, boy or girl, who realy and truly aspires to serve Go does not need anyone or anything to be constantly urging him to do se Where there is a will, there is a way Students from a church school have a bighters by love for all of their secbu, for those of other denomination: they have a different feeling, or love They seem to think that there mus be something existing in them to: they cannot understand; or else the would believe as they do. Some loo upon them scornfully, and other will

A student in a state school recare not his money. He gets he knowledge from well trained teachers he has the use of better equipment he hears and sees better lectures an concerts; he gets a better trainin from all angles, unless it is in ite lisious work, and he has the oppor tunity to taking a special course the study of the Eable. The dat sc. ool is the most interesting to the Why? Because, as a ture p. No are the most interested in in el where they can secure the m for the money.

Staam, government is motio antage to the students of RICE L. state schools. Of course chuse scional use it toof but the necessity is not so great as in a state school for instance the trained animal acts Gosh, the nerve it must take to ge inside one of these cages with them beasts growling as you enter. The how that guy who does go in, them to jump around and do stunt just as he wants them. They are a fraid of him, but it must take son skill to make them that way.

Why? Because the state schools have so many pupils, that it would indeed be unreasonable to think, or expecthe faculty to watch over each pupil.

"Then there will be the flyin' peo ple-acrobats or aerialists-you know who 1 mean.
