THE NEW YEAR

With the closing of the old year, 1923, and the opening of the New Year, 1924, we have before us great ly brightened prospects of those things which in a few days will be placed into the columns of the paper.

What are we going to do in these bright and encouraging prospects? Is the most vital question you must answer today. Are we to stand on what we have done and let our resources remain as they are? Or will we go forward to the future?
Will we be content with the present, or will we strive for improvement? Will we be satisfied with the old, or will we begin the new with a greater light and a greater purpose? Will we be content with the present, or will we strive for improvement? Will we be satisfied with the old, or will we
begin the new with a
greater light and a
greater purpose?

For what are we going to do in God has been merciful to us in this country, and a state that is a nation. He has given us the right to be free, and we have the right to be free. We have the right to be free, and we have the right to be free.

We have the right to be free,
and we have the right to be free. We have the right to be free, and we have the right to be free. We have the right to be free, and we have the right to be free. We have the right to be free, and we have the right to be free, and we have the right to be free. We have

we have the right to be free.

We have the right to be free, and
we have the right to be free.
We have the right to be free,
free. We have the right to be
be free, and we have the right
right to be free. We have the right to be free, and we have

1923, and the way the foundation He has given us, or will we use it to further the needs of our town, our country, our State and our Nation, by putting our mite to the wheel of progress in all these undertakings, and show our appreciation to Him for all He has done for us?
May we each and every one deserve God's blessings as He has them in store for us for 1924.

A CARD

With this, the last issue of The Enterprise for 1923, I conclude my connection with the publication with regret; business interests in Wilmington necessitating my return to that place.

My years with the people of Wilmington and the counties during my connection with The Enterprise have been most satisfactory, and I hope my work has been as satisfactory to you as it has been to me. I have put forth my best efforts to make the paper as interesting and profitable as possible.
Mr. W. C. Manning, who has so ably and faithfully served you for so many years, will continue to publish the paper in Wilmington and Martin counties, and I am glad to announce that the people of this county and section will continue to enjoy the paper through his able and efficient management.
I have no doubt that his patronage that has made The Enterprise a successful business during the past year, and has a well-deserved number of subscribers on its mailing list over that enjoyed at this time last year.

Mr. W. C. Manning, Jr., who has been helping with us in our endeavors since September will take charge of the business end of The Enterprise beginning January 1st, 1924.
During these months he has shown the ability to handle the business as it should be done to succeed, and with his continued patronage the business of the paper will continue to prosper and improve.

Although I am leaving Wilmington, my interest in the town and county will continue, and at the end of 1924 I hope to see a greater improvement than has been done during the year.

J. F. Cromer.
