The Small Temptations

Yield not to temptation seems to be one of the fixed principles of Charlie Lindbergh. Had he yielded in his boyhood, as many young men do, he never could have reached the goal of his ambition and made the 3,600 mile trip alone over a wild, restless, roaring ocean. We try to imagine this as being one of the greatest dangers yet overcome by man. Still, the yielding to a few of the small popular temptations of the day have caused even greater hazards than Lindbergh faced on his long flight.

Many little social rides seem to be sending lots of fine young men and young women to the death daily, or nightly. Lindbergh might have lost himself in the thousands of temptations that were in his reach, but if he had given of his time and strength to the temptations of today, he never would have had manhood enough to fly the ocean. We say with Tennyson, "Cursed be the social wants that sin against the truth! Cursed be the social lies that warp us from the truth."

Something That Can't Be Prohibited

The Lordship of the school authorities is becoming more apparent day by day. But, unless we are mistaken, it has struck a rock it can't move in saying that a woman teacher shall not love and marry. It is just plain folly to try to enforce such an edict. To love and marry was one of God's first commands, which has been approved by every government—religious and civil—since our history began. And at this late day to see some school authorities trying to crown themselves with the power to say "Woman, thou shalt not love," looks foolish, as well as unwise; because it reverses the very course of human nature. It forces the teacher to lay down the highest aspiration of life itself. It robs them of a freedom that must change their attitude toward life, government, and people. Who would want to send their child to a teacher who had been denied the freedom to love and marry, if she liked. Such a person would doubtless not make a good teacher. Certainly, the school has the right to demand that certain rules of decorum be observed by the teacher. She should not be a jazz belle; the school has a perfect right to restrict her in that line. She should not be expected nor allowed to dance half naked. She should not be permitted to cut her dresses too far above her knees, nor take the lead in what is known as the new era of flying society. If these things are all the schools are demanding, that is alright. In fact, it is the plain duty, because no teacher should go into a community and speed up the society, because God knows it is fast enough everywhere. When it comes to loving and marrying, it is quite another thing. If a lady school teacher gets the chance to marry a good man, and one that she is really sure is a good man, then she should be allowed to marry him in the middle of the term, or even in the middle of a lesson.

The fact that schools often suffer by the employment of simple, indiscreet frivolous flappers is no reason why stern rules should be written for the government of real teachers with sense. It might be quite as well if the school boards would ban the teacher who drops out of college without experience and goes out as a teacher only to suck the marrow bones of the community until he can get something better to do.

When it comes to running the schools with teachers who have been forced to sign contracts that do not harmonize with the very forces of nature, and the robbing of the teacher of the higher aspirations of life will mean a cold, stern mechanical training for the child out of harmony with every true phase of life. Teachers should be from the best class of people, and then be permitted to be just human folks.

What Do the Tax Reformers Say Now?

That old big tax lie about North Carolina has been nailed to a sour apple tree by the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company which has decided to move all its factories from the Trust Cradle State, New Jersey, and the old railroad Dominion, Virginia, to Winston-Salem, N. C. We are anxious to know what the propaganda peddlers will get out of this to talk about. It has been so recent that they have traveled over the State and argued that no corporation could live in North Carolina on account of the excessive taxes charged against them. But Reynolds, the largest and richest concern in our State is moving every thing here just the same. Now we hope the Reynolds company has not been immunized against taxation by our State bosses.

A "Head-Line" Year

So far 1927 has been a great "Head Line." Of course it is hard to remember them all now. We can, however, recall a few Nicaragua, Mexico, because we were supposed to have had two wars down there. Then China got on top of the paper, and the marines shouted, "We're going to China, and have us a real yellow war. But that all died down. The destructive flood waters of the great Mississippi then began to sweep over the rich valley, carrying hundreds to their death as well as their horses and cattle. Millions and hundreds of millions of dollars damage was done to property. Under our plan of government, the whole nation was rushing to send millions and whip the poor Mexicans and Chinamen. But when it came to helping the dead and the dying in the flood, it was a different tune. The Red Cross and other agencies had to soften the hearts of the folks until they got together about $15,000,000 to feed the half million people who have no more to eat than a jaybird on Friday. We are great for war expenditure, but have no appropriations for charities. However, they did spare Mr. Hoover long enough from Washington to go to the scene of the flood to help manage the situation. The thing that has required more ink than any other is the Atlantic flier. It will soon play out, and yet we have seven more months for headlines. No body can tell exactly what will come next. It may be the fight between the lion and the bear as England and Russia are growing at each other. Russia has pinched England's trade tale, and that will always make John Bull bellow. There will always be plenty of excitement to keep the folks stirring, because dull times are over.

Things To Think About

By JAMES D. TAYLOR

WHAT DOES YOUR FACE REFLECT?

My pastor recently told me about a man who daily lived the ten commandments and whose face reflected them. The ten commandments could be clearly read in the man's face. Stephen's face was like that of an angel when he was being stoned. He was thinking of, and was very near, Jesus. Your face expresses something. What is it? Does it reflect a wasted life or does it express a life of clean thinking and clean living? If you daily walk with God and daily talk with God, your face will express the fact. But if you are a gambler and a cheat, your face will reflect the kind of life you lead. What is reflected in the face of a little child whose every thought and act is clean? You know what such a face expresses. The beauty or the evil blackness of your soul will be reflected in your face.

UNEASY SLEEP

"Nerves Were All to Pieces," Says Lady Who Tells How Cardui Helped Her When She Was Run-Down.

Hopkins, S. C.—Mrs. G. W. Asstons, of this place, says: "I was suffering from spells of weakness. These would come on me suddenly and I would have to give up and go to bed. For several months I did not sleep well at night and got no rest from sleep. I was very nervous. I could not hear the least noise. The children worried me. My nerves were all to pieces. "I had taken Cardui several times before, so I sent at once for some and began to take it again. At the end of a short time I felt much better, so I kept right on taking Cardui. When I would feel a nervous spell coming on, I took it more frequently for a few days. "I can certainly say Cardui helped me wonderfully. For after a time the nervousness disappeared entirely. I could sleep at night and my general health was better. My appetite picked up and I enjoyed my meals, too." Thousands of other women have told of the benefit they have received from the use of Cardui. Keep it on hand, to take when needed. A medicine of long-established merit; mild, harmless. NC-108
