Washington's and Greenville's Bridges

Jealousy between towns is usually without grounds and almost always harmful.

Some people say Greenville and Washington—the two fine old towns located on the Tar and Pamlico, although the same river, yet they refuse to call it by the same name—are each jealous of the other. Some go far enough to say that their rivalry is unexcelled except by the towns of Wilson and Rocky Mount.

The latest sensation came when the State highway commission decided to build a third of a million dollar bridge for Washington, and just an ordinary poor-town cheap structure for Greenville.

The Pitt County town did not want a new bridge of any kind, regarding the old bridge as quite sufficient for a number of years, and preferred that its State allotment of funds should go on a road headed toward Shelmerdine, Clay Root, and on toward the Craven County Capital. The bridge was designated by the highway commission, and then Greenville asked that the bridge be provided with a walk way and lights, both of which were refused.

Washington wanted a bridge, a nice one, one with lots of space for pedestrians and riders, highly illuminated. Their appeal caught the ear of the highway commission, so they are going to get a structure that will be a thing of beauty, both by day and by night, with beautiful pilasters and wide convenient safe decks and promenades.

Greenville says five times as many people walk on the Greenville bridge as on the Washington bridge and that to build a bridge without some safe means of travel for the walking public is criminal neglect. They further point to the fact that both bridges are in the same district and under the same commissioner. Greenville people are constantly asking if Mr. Kugler thinks more of one section of his district than another. The question seems to be reasonable, and from their argument, it looks like he does.

Mr. Kugler has also been mighty good to Route 91, from Swan Quarter to Zebulon, via Washington, and it is a way ahead of Route 90, from Columbia to Raleigh.

Presidential Candidates

There are lots of candidates for the Presidency these days. The trouble is that there seems to be only two real presidential bureaus functioning, Wall Street and Tammany Hall. The Republicans are at sea and are looking at Wall Street to ring the bell for a start. They have talked about candidates all the way from Maine to California, both the stand-patters and the liberals, and they have gotten nowhere yet. The latest thing that is trickling along the political stream is that they are going to give the country another dose of old Cold Coolidge.

Of course, Wall Street is not so much in love with Coolidge, but they do have a loving and tender affection for his Mellon, who is bossing the land. It makes no difference how high they kick nor how hard they paw the Western prairies, no Republican can enter the gate unless he has the Wall Street brand burned on him. It would be different with the Democrats, could they be led by a real man of the Wilson type; but so far no one has been found. Hence Wall Street is screaming mighty loud, hoping the country will hark to them, just as it has done in nearly every Democratic convention since the Civil War.

"How is Tammany" has been a question often asked by good Democrats throughout the land for 50 years. These people are apparently ignorant of the fact that Tammany knows less and cares less for other people than themselves than any other political organization in the world.

Wall Street will nominate the next Republican presidential candidate, and Tammany hopes to nominate the next Democratic candidate.

I have been bawled out, bawled up, held up and held down, bull-dozed, black-jacked, walked on, cheated, squeezed and mooched; struck for the war tax, excess-profits tax, per capita, State, dog, and syntax; Liberty Bonds, baby bonds, and the bonds of matrimony. Red Cross, green cross, and the double cross; asked to help the society of John the Baptist, G. A. R., Woman's Relief Corps, Men's Relief, and stomach's relief. I have worked like a horse; have been drunk and gotten others drunk; lost all I had and part of my furniture; and because I won't spend or lend all that I earn, and go beg, borrow, or steal more, I have been cursed and discussed, boycotted, talked to and talked about, lied to and lied about, held up, hung up, robbed and damn near ruined, and the only reason I am sticking around now is because I'm an optimist and want to see what in the hell is coming next. When I came to this old town I did not have a tooth in my head; I could not walk; I had to be lifted out of bed, and had no hair on my head—I was born here. I have run a bakery, cafeteria, rooming house and boarding house. I have owned and paid for eighteen high-priced automobiles and all I have now is a second-hand Ford.

20% Nitrogen = 31.5% Ammonia

The economy of the use of high-analysis fertilizers is a proven fact. LEUNASALPETER is a higher-analysis nitrogen fertilizer. One hundred pounds contain as much nitrogen as 167 pounds of nitrate-of-soda. It costs much less per unit of nitrogen.

LEUNASALPETER is a combination of quick-acting nitrate and slower-acting ammoniac, thus feeding the cotton all during the growing season.

MADE BY THE WORLD'S LARGEST NITROGEN PRODUCERS. For sale by dealers everywhere.
