American Education Week

American Education Week should be one of the big weeks of the year. The purpose is good and is designed to acquaint the public with the work of the school.

Monday, November 5, is Health Day. Tuesday will be home and school day. Know Your School is the subject of Wednesday's program. On Thursday School Opportunity will be stressed. Friday will be Citizenship Day and Saturday will be Community Day.

The week's program is a good one. Every day's program presents very important duties to the community.

Health is such an easy thing to have, and yet we permit many children to grow up in weakness and suffer the ravages of diseases which would never occur if a few simple plain rules of living were followed. We will not be an efficient unit of citizens so long as we permit a large number of folks to be sick from causes so easily eliminated.

Home and School Day, on Tuesday, brings a wonderful opportunity to get more education for our money. We have parent-teacher associations and clubs of many kinds, but we are still not succeeding as we should. There is too much shifting of our responsibilities. The home is trying to cast the burden of making perfect citizens of their children on the schools, and the schools are too often depending on the home to do more for the children. This game of passing the job to the other fellow by the home and the school is not giving the child as much as he needs.

Knowing your school would be a fine thing, and yet we do not. It is extremely doubtful if 10 per cent of the Williamston folks know the Williamston teachers by either name or face.

School opportunities slip by too many boys and girls, from one cause or another, generally neglect, of either parent or teacher. And the sad thing is that passed opportunities never come by again.

The week's program offered is a challenge to the people who are spending such large sums for education to take a vital interest in making every dollar count the most for their children.

Much of the ignorance of the day is the fruit of neglect. Most of the young men who are entering the prison doors today are the victims of neglect. We need to give more attention to our children.

The Automobile Beats Them All

The automobile beats them all. Our country may improve her high-powered cannon, airplane bombs, poison gas, or any other black death method, but we can never do the killing stunt quite so easily as the automobile is doing.

The question of "What is Success?" can easily be answered: Killing by automobile.

Certainly, with the many millions of cars on the road daily, filled with passengers, we may expect some accidents. However, most of the automobile trouble comes from carelessness rather than accidents.

Our next General Assembly will have no more important job than to try to regulate the automobile traffic. Our forefathers made the crime of burglary one of the greatest offenses and prescribed the death penalty against any person who enters the home of another in the night. The severity of the penalty is based on the supposition that when a person enters the home of another, although he has no intention of doing bodily harm, yet under the circumstances and the pressure that might arise, should he be detected while pillaging the house he would kill if necessary. Now, what about the drunken automobile driver?

Is there any less danger in being on the public traffic lanes where he drives than there is in a house where a burglar slips in and steals. It is possibly an extreme view to say that the person who takes the wheel of an automobile while drunk and drives among thousands, endangering the lives of all, should be punished by death. It is not an extreme suggestion, however, that the penalty must be multiplied many times more than it now is.

At any rate our laws must be so strengthened that riding the public highways will be safer, whether it is to make each driver procure a license to drive and furnish a bond for his actions, or whatever it is, something must be done.

An indispensable community institution—the public library.—Mary Sherman, president General Federation of Women's Clubs.

NOTICE

Under and by virtue of a judgment in the superior court in an action entitled "D. G. Matthews vs. Ed Rogers" I will, on the 5th day of November, 1928, at 12 o'clock noon, in front of the courthouse door of Martin County offer at public sale to the highest bidder, for cash, the following described real estate:

Same being a house and lot in the town of Williamston, N. C., adjoining Main Street, the railroad, Carrie G. Godard, et al., and being the same land set out and described in tax certificate of sale dated June 7, 1928.

This the 1st day of October, 1928. B. A. CRITCHER, Commissioner.

NOTICE OF SALE

North Carolina, Martin County; in superior Court. R. W. Salisbury & Bro. vs. James Hooker

By virtue of an execution directed to the undersigned from the superior court of Martin County in the above-entitled action, I will, on Monday, the 5th day of November, 1928, at 12 o'clock, at the courthouse door of said county sell to the highest bidder, for cash, to satisfy said execution, all the right, title, and interest which said James Hooker has in the following described real estate, to wit:

Bounded by the lands of Nat Brown, the Higgs farm, the road leading from Highway No. 125, near the Higgs farm and Conoho Church. Containing 2 acres, more or less, and being same premises formerly occupied by the said James Hooker.

This the 8th day of September, 1928. A. L. ROEBUCK, Sheriff.

TERRIBLY ILL

Kentucky Lady's Health Was Very Bad. Had Severe Pains and Could Not Sleep.

Lexington, Ky.—Mrs. J. H. Nichols, who lives at 513 Elm Tree Lane, this city, says that Cardui has been of valuable assistance to her on two occasions, which she tells about below:

"Some few years ago, my health was bad. I had very severe pains in my sides. My nerves were in a terrible condition. I could not rest. The lower part of my body was very sore. I could hardly stoop over to lace my shoes. I would have to put my foot on a chair. I did not feel like eating, and did not sleep well at all at nights.

"A friend of mine recommended Cardui. I began taking it and saw quite an improvement in my condition. I kept it up until I felt strong and well."

About a year ago, Mrs. Nichols says, she found herself in a nervous, run-down condition. "I took Cardui again," she adds, "and it helped me wonderfully. It is a splendid tonic."

Thousands of women have written to tell how Cardui helped them to get rid of pain and suffering. Cardui is a mild, medicinal tonic, made from purely vegetable ingredients. At all drug stores. NC-190
