sponsibility for the crime are those "good fellows" who have patronized Cox in his lawless liquor dealings. They are responsible for the growth of his business. They have helped to build a business that caused a man to commit murder to protect.

Every man who has participated as a customer of Cox's liquor business would do well to give heed to their folly and remember that if they had not patronized Cox's illegal business he would have had no business; he would have had no still to report; he would not have been mad with Henry Jolley; and would not have wilfully and feloniously murdered him.

Cox planted the evil seed. Those neighbors who cloaked and encouraged him fertilized it; and the friend who bought cultivated the evil tree, which grew into murder. One man guilty under our law; many responsible in the eyes of God.

State Board Deserves Thanks

For a number of years the State Board of Health has held clinics in the counties of the State, operating on thousands of school children, correcting troubles caused by diseased tonsils, adenoids, ears, eyes, etc. They purposely seek those least able to have their children treated by private specialists. This week one hundred children will be treated in this county by specialists and competent nurses.

While there are more than 300 cases asking for treatment, the State will serve those who are unable to pay anything first. Those who are regarded as being able to pay the nominal sum of $12.50 will come second; and in cases where the parents are able to pay the cost of private or hospital service, they will come third.

This is the kind of service that stabilizes a state and commends its government to the respect of the world. Let our State Board of Health receive the thanks due it for the work it is doing for the boys and girls, because they will make better citizens.

The Blessings of Poverty

America is suffering from an overdose of wealth received during the World War. The war dose was just too much for us and the balance of the world. We spent more money for one war than all the wars of the world have cost since Adam and Eve left the garden of Eden. This gorgeous expenditure was more than we could stand. Millions had money who had no sane idea what to do with it.

Now, the money has gone from the hands of the many into the pockets of the few, leaving the people in a dazed, drowsy, doped condition, staggering around hoping for the same flood of money we had 10 years ago.

Nothing would be more harmful than another flood of money like we had then. What this country really needs is enough poverty to keep it pure. Our politics, our business, and our morals are always better in moderately hard times than when wealth is flowing in gorgeous streams.

The human soul loses its sense of sympathy and love and mercy when it is drowned in floods of wealth.

It is generally the rich nations that are destroyed and the rich proud souls that are lost. Poverty is not what we want, but poverty in moderation is a good thing for us.

Tightening of Social Lines Needed

Williamston and Martin County suffered another shock Saturday morning when the news spread that a Williamston man had left a wife and four children and take a woman from the Jamesville section, leaving her husband and three children. The first thing one does when he hears such a report, of course, is to sigh, then the feeling of sorrow; next that feeling of righteous indignation that such a case demands.

It is only one more demonstration of the trouble when one woman's husband begins to hang around another man's wife, which seems to have been the condition in this case.

A tighter social line will help correct cases of this kind. There has been too much lagging along this line. If this man and woman had been given the cold shoulder at the beginning of their illicit love affair, then the more disgraceful act would most likely have been prevented.

One Guilty—Many Responsible

All of Henry Jolley's blood is not on the hands of Frank Cox, who, according to the verdict of a coroner's jury, secreted himself in the dark and shot him dead from ambush at his home on Sunday night. The only motive was vengeance, because Cox thought Jolley had reported his still, which officers had captured two weeks before.

The men who were in league with him and who had the same hatred for the law that Cox possessed gave him nerve and encouragement and fostered the horrible spirit of murder in the heart of Cox. They form a part of the murder; not guilty of murder under the law, to be sure, yet guilty of promoting crime.

Another class of people who share some of the re-

ICE and the June Bride

FORTUNATE, indeed, is the bride who starts housekeeping with a good ice refrigerator. As common sense as food refrigeration might seem to be when facing the new problems of married life, few things are more important.

Health and good meals are essential to happiness. And health and good meals are closely related. Good meals, of course, require good cooking. And good cooking demands fresh, pure, flavorful raw materials—made possible by good ice refrigeration.

Serve Ice-Freshened Foods
There's a savor and flavor to ice-freshened foods that husbands and guests are quick to notice and appreciate. Meat, vegetables, butter, milk, and eggs, even when intended for cooking, make much more delicious dishes if kept in ice-freshened air until ready for the stove. Ice helps to preserve their best flavors and most nutritive food values.

Use ICE Plentifully on Table
ICE in table service is the mark of an experienced hostess. And wise is the housewife who is on the theory that what pleases her guests will please her own family. Butter kept firm and tempting in shaved ice—celery, olives, and radishes on sparkling beds of ice—fruit and seafood cocktails served in ice-surrounded glasses—and a big bowl of cracked ice always on hand to keep table water and beverages at their best—what better way can a young wife find for making her meals most attractive!

Insist on a Good Refrigerator
Don't be tricked into buying a poorly made refrigerator. It soon eats up the difference in cost in the ice it wastes. A good ice refrigerator quickly pays for itself!

In the food it saves. Be sure your refrigerator is scientifically constructed to permit circulation of air—that it is well insulated, soundly built, and tightly fitted together.

Keep Refrigerator Well Kept
It is false economy to take ice only occasionally. It does no good to refrigerate food for a while and then let it begin to spoil. Good ice refrigeration can keep food from spoiling, but it cannot restore depreciated food. When it departs for an instant, it stays away forever. A plentiful supply of ice offers a two-way saving: it melts less rapidly, and preserves foods longer. Just tell your ice man to keep your refrigerator well kept at all times. Put the responsibility up to him. There will be less ice waste, less food spoilage, and much more flavorful foods.

An Ideal Wedding Gift
Give the bride a good ice refrigerator—a three-times-a-day blessing for years to come. If you don't know where to get a good refrigerator, ask us.
