

SIZE AND FINISH SAYS STATE MUST MAIN FACTORS IN SALE OF TURKEY

Medium Bird, Fat and Well-Cared For Brings Premium

An extra large turkey, undeveloped and poorly fattened, stands a poor chance in the general markets against a medium bird that is fat and well finished.

Bryan Nesbit, turkey expert for the poultry department at State College, believes that some turkey fanciers have gone too far in trying to grow out the largest birds possible. Since the beginning of turkey raising, he says, the birds have been bred for their size and the regular standard weights have been raised from year to year. Only recently, the standard weights for all birds, except the bronze, were raised three pounds each.

The average turkey grower of North Carolina finds it almost impossible to grow out a well-finished bird of large size between April, the time of hatching, and Thanksgiving, the time of selling. Therefore, instead of getting a good premium for his large, husky toms as he has been getting in years past, he finds the public wanting his smaller, well-finished hens. Then, too, he has found that the consuming public is moving into small apartments and that families are smaller so that the largest birds are not wanted as they were in years past. The beef breeder has gone through a similar experience.

Mr. Nesbit says people have learned in buying their turkeys for Thanksgiving dinner that the hens are fatter and better developed than are the toms. The flesh of the tom is also coarser-grained than that of the hen.

Ehringhaus Also Says State Must Maintain Bonds At Par

Raleigh.—North Carolina must do two things: Balance her budget and keep her bonds at par. It would be impossible in this depressed period to collect taxes enough to pay off the deficit now being piled up in a reasonable period, so it will be necessary to issue bonds to fund this deficit and name them 'Hoover Prosperity Bonds,' J. C. B. Ehringhaus, candidate for governor, is telling his audiences in his campaign speeches.

Mr. Ehringhaus classified governmental activities as fundamental necessities and unnecessary desirables, saying it is just as essential to continue the fundamental necessities as it is to eliminate the unnecessary desirables—following a policy of economy with sanity.

With this in mind, Mr. Ehringhaus, saying he would seek to find any wealth that is not bearing its just portion of the burden and adequately tax it, offers what he considers a fundamental tax program, as follows:

1. Every citizen and every kind of property shares in the benefits of government, so every citizen and every class of property should pay something toward the support of govern-markets which will pay a premium on the extra large birds that are fat and in good finish, it will be impractical and unwise for the commercial turkey grower of this State to attempt the production of large numbers of such birds," says Mr. Nesbit.

LITTLE HOPE FOR FARMERS IN BIG CROP PEANUTS

Must Be Cut in Acreage and Lowering of Cost of Production

The outlook for profit from peanuts is so poor this season that there must be a drastic reduction in acreage, a lowering of the cost of production, and an effort made to improve the quality if any profit is to be expected this year.

"Peanut prices have been below the cost of production for the past two or three years," says P. H. Kime, agronomist of the North Carolina Experiment Station at State College. "With the large carry-over from the crop of this year, there appears to be little hope of any profit this fall unless the farmers themselves take a hand in the situation. They can do so by reducing the acreage first; by cutting down on the expenses of growing the crop second; and by improving the quality as a third step."

Especially important this year is selecting the land best adapted to peanuts. Thousands of acres are planted to the crop each season, which would not be profitable even if good prices were paid for the nuts. Such soils should be planted in legumes or some food and feed crop. Good stands are also needed for best acre results. Each year there are great areas in the peanut belt with stands running from 70 to 75 per cent. This decreases possible yields from 10 to 40 per cent. Then in many instances where the stand is regular the plants are not thick enough on the row to give best results.

We further wish to express our appreciation to all those in Everetts and surrounding community and to those from Robersonville for their able assistance in the various bucket brigades and in moving and saving merchandise and household furnishings.

Be it further resolved that these resolutions of appreciation be injected into the minutes and record of the Town of Everetts, a copy sent to the Williamston Fire Department and a copy to be published in The Enterprise.

APPRECIATION

We, the undersigned commissioners and mayor, in behalf of the citizens of the Town of Everetts, wish to express to the Williamston Fire Department our sincere gratitude and keen appreciation for the heroic service rendered by the men of the department Monday morning, April 4, in checking the fire that would have spreaded to many other buildings—and especially dwellings that were in the line of fire had it not been for the noble efforts of that department.

1. Recognize that North Carolina is in competition with other States and make it desirable for outsiders to live and to invest money in the State.
2. Require each to pay in accordance with his ability, the rich according to his wealth, and the poor according to his poverty.
3. The fairest measure of ability to pay is income, actual or potential.
4. Strive, not for exemptions, but for equity, requiring all people and all property to carry its proportionate burden.
5. Recognize that heavy tax burdens are destructive—that the power to tax is the power to destroy, and that power must not be abused.
