Four Good Suggestions

The conference of Western governors, recently held in Iowa, proposed things which should commend themselves to the people of the country.

Tariff changes were suggested—a thing that is seriously needed for the purpose of giving equal benefits to all classes of people and business.

Currency expansion was also suggested—a thing which we will have to come to, or we will never be able to pay our debts.

Other recommendations included a moratorium on farm debts and orderly marketing of farm crops.

These four suggestions will go a long way toward getting this county on its feet if they are carried out. Every voter should go to his Congressman before he votes and demand such of these reforms as require congressional action.

State Institutions Under Fire

Our State University and the North Carolina College for Women seem to be under fire on account of permitting certain lecturers, call "philosophers," and "scientists," to address the boys and girls of those institutions, and for the use of certain books in the courses of study.

We are not well enough versed in those fields to offer criticism, and, besides, we are living in a day when it is rather dangerous for a person to express himself lest he be called a fool. No doubt we have held to many old traditions that may have held us back in our march of progress.

On the other hand, lecturers of the type mentioned in the complaints will prove far more dangerous than any of the so-called "old fogey" fool ideas that civilization has been guided by for thousands of years. The principles taught by the Nazarene have promoted honor, truth, virtue, peace, charity, love, service and unselfishness—all that is good in life.

Now comes along a new type of men that upset all these teachings and say that Jesus Christ's teachings are antiquated, too old and dull for a progressive age, that we need more privileges, to do as we please; that we ought to drop virtue and substitute free love, trial marriages, and modern thought, which frees us from obligations to follow the Christ and His teachings.

Whether the accusations charged against the lecturers in these institutions are true or not, we do not know. If so, then we fear the results of broadcasting such ideas may bring sorrow, shame, and decay in our civilization. We fear to trust any flighty fellow who suddenly discovers so much more than all the generations of the past, and we fear the truth of statements made by such fellows. Most of them have to discount Christ and put Him aside before they can find a starting point.

We believe in and respect true science, which is constantly unveiling the mysteries of this world and all life therein. It is doubtless God's purpose to have man draw closer and closer to Him. Such scientific thought and discoveries have never tended to lower the principles of love, truth, honor, and virtue of the human family. But when it comes to some agnostic coming before man claiming to know something new, yet discounting the principles which have been the basis of strength upon which men and nations have safely stood through millenniums, we fear their leadership.

There are very few fathers and mothers sending their sons and daughters to school these days who would have their simple faith destroyed and a new order of life instilled in them.

Constitution Week

This is being observed as Constitution Week through out the United States. The American Bar Association has put on a campaign in which a broader knowledge and a greater respect and closer obedience to the Constitution is urged.

It is regarded as a serious handicap to good government, peace, and happiness when people disregard the Constitution of the state and nation, both of which have been born from long experience of pure hearts, filled with love and honest desire to make the path of life easy and safe for the feet and hearts of men.

Every school child ought to read the constitution of his state and the nation, and then obey them. They were devised for the safety of the person and property of us all, from the smallest to the largest.

Alcohol Can Not Be a Safe Beverage

In the scramble for votes the politicians have listened to the drum beaters of the liquor traffic. They have forgotten the influence and value of soberness and gone grappling for votes.

It is indeed a pitiable state of affairs when the voice of the rabble drowns out the cries of women and children who are praying for sober husbands and fathers. The worst feature about it is that every politician will suggest some method of respectability for he handling of liquor. They will tell you how they deplore the idea of the saloon, yet they are friends of the same alcohol that has all to do with the disrespect and disgrace of the barroom.

Everybody knows that when liquor is taken out of a saloon, it becomes at once a place where women and gentlemen may visit without losing their self-respect.

Now, we have two candidates for the presidency who want state's rights and believe in the national government keeping its hand off. Yet they would make the public believe there is no danger of the old bar returning.

No man of serious mind believes for a moment that when liquor is given the power to dictate the sales policies of alcohol that there will be no barrooms. Perhaps some state will not permit such methods, but in most states the places of liquor sales will outshine all others to be found in the cities. There will be music to enchant, pictures to suggest—an idea of which we find at the movie palaces. They will have their sobering rooms, and provision will be made for their scarlet women. Everything will be used to attract trade for the liquor barons, without regard, in most cases, for morals and decency.

Proponents of the change of course argue that these things can not be, because of police protection. This is a false promise, however, because every person who knows anything about the liquor traffic knows that it is never satisfied until it owns and controls the police forces. When we had bars in the days of the past they dictated the policies of the politics of most towns and handled most of the policemen just as they did their other hirelings. And the police patrolled these illegal haunts and protected them.

Let people have all the saloons they want, but keep alcohol out of them—there is where the danger lies. And show us the man who profits by drinking.

No man can make alcohol a safe beverage, and the man who says he can devise a safe method of handling it is more than human.

The West and the South

Hoover is trying to capture the west and Roosevelt is hammering after the north. We would like to see Mr. Roosevelt fight more for the west and give less attention to the north. He can not carry Vermont, but he can carry California. This nation needs a closer cooperation between the south and west. The north for many years has been whipping them both. Now, when we join forces, they can't do it.

Just as long as the other parts of the country depend on the north for bread, they will get a stone.

Hoover's Defense

President Hoover reports that there were many criminals in the Bonus Army recently driven out of Washington. Of course, this report is made in defense of his action in putting the army on the run.

However, there is no doubt but that many of them were pretty common fellows and probably some of them were criminals. Certainly, the rank and file of the world war veterans did not approve of the action of the marchers.

Watch Out for Forest Fires

With the advent of the hunting season and the increasing drought, the danger of forest fires becomes increasingly great. Every person entering the woods should be very careful about smoking and building fires. The proper precaution will save land owners many thousands of dollars.

The laws are pretty strict on woods burning, and every man is responsible for his carelessness as well as deliberations. Every person should be careful with fire. What it burns is a total loss.

Leave the Farmer Alone

The politicians are always howling about the condition of the poor farmer—and especially is this so along about election time.

All that the farmers want is for the politicians and their friends, the trusts and combines, to stop riding them.

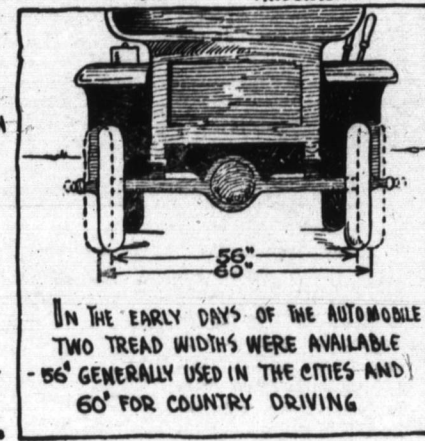

The only trouble with the farmer is that these cruel combination of manipulating trusts and unfaithful politicians have ridden him so long that his back is sore. That is why he is kicking. Get off of the farmer and let him vote like he pleases. He will be all right.

Mistakes

The Churchman.

An editor, in commenting upon the fact that newspapers sometimes make mistakes in their columns, says he made some in his issue and a good subscriber told him all about it. He goes on to relate that the same day there was a letter in his post office box that did not belong to him; he called for No. 98 on the telephone and got 198; he asked for a spool of No. 50 thread and got No. 60; he got his milk bill and there was a mistake of 10 cents in his favor; he felt sick and the doctor said he was eating too much meat when he hadn't tasted meat for two months; the garage man said the jitney was missing because it needed a new timer, and he cleaned a spark plug and it has run fine every since. Yes; newspapers make mistakes—and so do other folks.

Wake Up Your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blotches. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931, C. M. Co.
